Check-Up! . . .

"Keep your resistance high," says Dr. Samuel Fuenning, director of the student health service. He gives this advice in view of the recent large number of flu cases on the campus and the unusually long polio season this year.

Most readers will probably scoff and say, "University students don't have to be told to take care of their health." However we don't think it hurts anyone to be reminded once in a while that no one is immune from sickness. Care should be taken especially since so many students have been reporting to the health service in the last two weeks with colds and flu.

But the main thing we urge, for your own protection and for THE PROTECTION OF OTHERS, is for students with bad colds or "aches and pains" that might indicate flu to report to the student health service for a check-up. Check your colds or flue before you pass them on to others.

The student health service is on the campus for YOU! Use it!

Letterip

To the Student Body:

This is to explain to the students of the University of Nebraska that the NEBRASKA INDEPENDENT, which is published by the Nebraska Independent Association, whatever that is, is NOT IN ANY WAY CONNECTED WITH THE INDEPENDENT STUDENTS ASSOCIATION.

Some of the partners in this publication are members of the Independent Students Association, but this paper does NOT in any way reflect the views or opinions of the ISA.

The purpose of the ISA is to stimulate activities and social affairs for independent students. We do not bear any ill will towards the organized houses or any other student group. Furthermore we are not interested in revolutionizing the organization of this University.

Therefore, I sincerely hope that there will be no confusion in the student's mind between our organization and the above mentioned publication.

Sincerely, BILL MOORE President Independent Student Assn.

J. Paul Sheedy* Switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil Because He Flunked The Finger Nail Test

REMEMBER the mane? You should have seen the one on this social lion before he switched to Wildroot Cream-Oil. It was positively beastly! So may we paw to make a suggestion: try a little Wildroot Cream-Oil hair tonic on your own hair. You'll roar with approval when you see how it grooms your hair neatly and naturally without that greasy, plastered down look. Now it relieves dandruff, removes loose dandruff and helps you pass the Fingernail Test! Wildroot Cream-Oil is non-alcoholic and contains soothing Lanolin. Ask your barber for a professional application. And get a bottle or tube for your den today. You'll find it at any drug or toilet goods counter. We aren't lion when we say you'll like it better than any other hair tonic. Most of the cats do!

As I Was Saying . . .

By Pat Nordin

Phi and Theta pledges are buying up all available liniment due to a strenuous calisthenics session at the Phi house Monday eve. Buck up, widdies! After all, it's for a good cause.

Question of the week: What are Mardelle Buss and Janet Dallam sewing? All reports indicate that the garments are bedecked with feline creatures. Clothes to suit the women—we always say!

Pinnings

Phyl Harris—Paul Blumer
Wanda Young—Don Cochrane
Jo Mellen is reported to be dating "in every house." That's quite a feat for a frosh—but then Jo is no ordinary freshman.

Now that they're "goin' steady," Jane Bailey and Tom Ludwig have worked out a share-the-car plan with his club coupe.

Watch for "bootiful" developments in the Joyce Buck-George Randol corner—dark corner, that is.

John Anderson is now pinned—for the fourth time this year. His Sig Chi son, Cliff Christensen is proving that old adage, "like father, like son," by arranging a steady deal with Janice Lindquist. If all goes right, Jan could mark Cliff's second pinmate.

Well, 'nuff said.

Radio Show Looks For Hidden Talent

"Thar's talent in that thar university."

At least that is what the campus radio show, "Talent N. U.," is out to prove. Every Wednesday two university students appear on the program, which is broadcast over station KFOR at 11:00 p. m.

Mary and Bob Baker, host and hostess of the program, invite all students interested in participating on the show to contact them through the Nebraska Book Store.

Appearing on the first program were Mary Sue Holland and Jack Carson. The two were each presented with a gift for performing.

At the end of each program, a question is directed to several members of the studio audience. The participant who comes the closest to answering the question is awarded a five dollar certificate which can be used to purchase books.

The purpose of the program, as outlined by Bob Baker, is to foster a competitive spirit on the campus and to find hidden university talent.

Meddling With Melick

By M. J.

While poking one of our more prominent features into campus affairs we unearthed a choice bit of scandal which we wish to deplore loud and long.

Since way back when your fathers wore short pants the highlight of the gridiron season at this and every other university has been Homecoming. The big game of the season has always been set aside for this event and it is a time when the whole state takes an interest in the university.

In the past the sparke of enthusiasm has always been set off by a parade through the campus and down O street the morning of the game. This year a large group of students, namely the sororities, which have always made up at least half of the parade, have decided that this part of the Homecoming program is expendible. Perhaps they are not stirred by martial music and the sight of rallying Cornhuskers. Perhaps they do not feel that it is essential for campus spirit to prevade throughout the city on such an occasion.

We are certain that these arguments are not the real causes for withdrawing sorority support of the project, and yet the reasons we have been able to discover for discontinuing the Homecoming parade are equally lame.

The statements are this

1. The time consumed in preparing a float for the Homecoming parade is so great that large numbers of affiliated girls are acquiring "down slips" as a direct result.

2. The materials involved in constructing a float are expensive.

To the first reason we would like to say "Really!", in our most disgusted tone. It seems absolutely inconceivable that sixty women—the total membership of most sororities—could not organize their time in such a manner that it would be necessary for some of its workers to fail while promoting so simple a project. At the most, the time consumed in constructing a float could not exceed 30 hours. Divide that number by 60 and discover the large slice of time it takes out of one person's study routine.

We realize that these groups are simultaneously erecting house decorations for the same event. Perhaps a choice should be made but we doubt it. Under any other circumstances that half-hour of work, usually devoted to a float, would be spent "cribbing"—without a doubt the most necessary of pastimes.

The financial angle is ridiculous from the outset. The limit on funds spent for a Homecoming float is $15. This sum looks feeble indeed alongside the staggering amounts spent for spring formals and house parties.

True, the parade may go on without whole-hearted support but the game is not just for fraternities and affiliated groups—who, incidentally are willing to sacrifice a few hours for Husker spirit. Football, getting behind the team, Homecoming and all the fun that goes with them are for everyon to contribute to and to enjoy.

Come on, girls, let's get in there and pitch. Nobody wants to stand on the sidelines and watch life go by. With an inconceivably small expenditure of time and money you can once again become an integral part of THAT CORNHUSKER SPIRIT.

What Is It?

It's a convention! It's a campaign! It's something the Corn Cobs are selling!

Rumors are flying about the green and yellow lapel tags that are appearing all over the campus. If one takes a closer look, several conclusions can be drawn: (1) the person wearing the tag undoubtedly is an Ag student; and (2) the tag mentions something about "Let's go to the Farmers' Formal."

Which means: The biggest hick event of the year is approaching this Friday night—the Farmers' Formal. Get your date and get your ticket from any Ag Exec Board member now and LET'S GO TO THE FARMERS' FORMAL!
