Unwritten Policy . . .

Questions have been pouring into the office as to what The Daily Nebraskan is going to do about the presiwhat The Daily Nebraskan is going to do about the presi-dential election and what sort of stand we are going to Rankin took the fatal step Sun-

There is an unwritten law on this publication that the editorial columns do not advocate the election of a particular candidate in national, state, county or city elections, so as not to create any misunderstanding as to University backing of a certain candidate.

The University is supported by tax-payers of all political affiliations and so cannot support any political candidates. Therefore, The Daily Nebraskaan, since it is the only official publication allowed by the University and the only official channel for University news, cannot than just a football game. Ansupport any particular political candidates. This does not, however, prevent comment on the actions of any candidates.

Although this unwritten policy exists as far as editorial comment is concerned, The Daily Nebraskan letterip Eliza a 11:30 ceremony upon her columns are open to any student who wishes to express opinion or support of candidaates.

As the fifth week of school gets underway, the annual coke and blind date period is slowly drawing to a close. Each year a mad attempt to meet members of the opposite sex results in endless coke dates and frantic switching at hour dances.

This year's first month may go on record as having the fastest results to date. To save campus fellas and girls the trouble of trying to arrange dates and finding the desired parties already entangled, this column will be devoted for one day only to bringing the student body up to date as to two-somes existing at the present time.

(Ed Note: This article is reprinted from a pamphlet called Communism Exposed, published by the United States Chamber of Commerce.)

There are not many communists in the United States. Giving them all due credit for skill and energy, they would still be rather harmless if they worked openly. But they do not work openly. They are experts at lying and deceiving. The result is that they use people many times their own numbers. What is more, many of these people are powerful and influential.

There are two main lines of Communist success in the United States today. The first is the formation of "front" organizaations. The second is boring into, or infiltrating, respectable groups. Thus, Communists bore into the labor movement, the press, radio and the movies.

A "front" organization is a group which is apparently respectable, but which was aactually organized and is currently controlled by Communists. Such a group works for high-sounding aims: peace, democraacy or social reform. It collects prominent people as sponsors who are taken in by its program. It uses them to collect money and get prestige. Then it cleverly twists the group into a coice for some particular Communist policy.

There are hundreds of such front organizations in the United States. Among the fronts which deal with general problems are the Progressive Citizens of America, the Civil Rights Congress, and the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship. Those aiming at special groups include the National Negro Congress; American Youth for Democracy; and the Congress of American Women. But there are others for religion, atomic scientists, farmers, consumers, business-men and others. Moreover, there are fronts which specialize in one phase or other of our foreign policy.

Front organizations can do much damaage. This is especially the case where Communists have a definite program and the average citizen does not care much about the situation. The result is much hue and cry on one side of an issue and silence about the other side. Then commentators, government departments, and Congressmen are stampeded into following the Communist policy.

Good examples of that were our former bad foreign policies in Germany, China and Argentina. Front groups manufactured opinion for policies which may cost us billions of dollars and might even lose the next war, should we be unable to avoid it. In each case the Communist policies cost us allies in vital areas, needed for our security.
