Patience . . .

Nebraska university is having a little trouble returning to its pre-war prominence in football. Naturally, this is a subject with which all university students and Nebraska fans are concerned.

In the first place, our school was not blessed with a Navy V-12 unit until September, 1945. True, Nebraska had an ASTP unit, but because of government regulations, these Army men were not allowed to participate in inter-collegiate athletics.

In the second place, many of Nebraska's outstanding high school athletes have been going to other schools. Too little attention has been given to these men in the past few years.

This editorial is not meant to run down members of the Nebraska team. They're all good players and deserve a lot of credit.

The situation is gradually improving. Patsy Clark, Coach Good, Coach Weir and other athletic heads are renewing Nebraska's efforts to obtain top quality men.

All we students and fans need to maintain now is patience. It won't be long, with everyone's co-operation before Nebraska will once again take its place among the leaders of inter-collegiate football.

The only reasons, we think, that would induce students to pilfer from the Ag Student Union library are: to salvage English themes, to build a private library because their own text books either aren't interesting enough or don't contain pretty pictures, just pure cussedness, or perhaps, because last year's Monkey Ward catalogue has been misplaced.

Regardless, those books are property of every N. U. student and are placed in the Union lounge for everyone's enjoyment.

Sincerely, Derald May House rules committee Ag Student Union

As I Was Saying . . .

Today the big push begins as Nebraskans prepare to invade K. U. land. More and more couples have decided daily to make the jaunt and include Ginger Meehan and Tom Loisel, Carolyn Bukacek and Scotty Christian, and Pat Baldwin and Bob Axtell.

One of those remaining in Lincoln over the week-end is Nancy Glynn, who is just plain confused about her love life and wants the time to think the whole situation over.

Get Your Issue. Have you read the hottest book to come off the press since Forever Amber? This new book, Luscious Lena, is stark and startling!

A few days ago, six senior women were elected to the honor of being finalists for Honorary Colonel to be presented at the Military Ball.

Busy Lois Gillett only finds time to catch her forty winks in Love library and refuses to be awakened by the librarian.

Beryl Lotspiech finds it very embarrassing to walk into the Crib with Jack Meehan for a coke date and have him introduce her to Randy Ewing.

Sherry Swanson draws attention by sitting all by herself in the Uni. Drug drinking a cup of coffee. What a blow to learn that you don't have a nickel to pay for it and that you don't know a single person in the place to borrow one from.

Jackie Wightman faithfully attends the ATO Intramural football games now that she is going steady with Gene Deeter.

After Thoughts: Ted Liggett is still looking for a girl whom he can go with for more than a two-date stretch.

John Olson changes the sorority sticker on his black Chevy to fit the occasion of any date and polishes the car daily in front of the Theta house.

Meddling With Melick

By M. J.

We went to the Notre Dame game last weekend. You did, too? What a coincidence. So did 30,000 other people.

Rumors flew thick and fast through the collegiate air all week. Those we heard were bitter commentary about "exorbitant ticket prices," "adults in student blocks" and "double sale of seats."

This then is "the word" from higher up. Mr. Lewandowski has explained the situation which occurred at the Iowa State game to the complete understanding, if not satisfaction, of the student body.

Any double-dealing on the ticket score has been strictly unofficial and isolated. There are diverse methods of capitalizing on this ticket business and those individuals who will resort to such tactics as burning their own grandmothers at the stake for "that green stuff" seem to have figured out all the angles.

One concrete example of how it's done runs something like this. The books marked "stairway" are tampered with and the net result is a book marked "B 47 11" or any other seat number.

Mr. Lewandowski has to do some tall guessing each January when he plans the seating arrangements in the Stadium for the coming season.

Let's have a little square-shooting by all concerned for the rest of the season. Lew's cards are on the table. It's up to us to play them.

What about next year? Take a look at the schedule for next season. No Notre Dame game? No UCLA! It is games like these which create the avalanche of ticket demands.

But for this year let's have some of the old "pull-together" spirit to make the best of a situation which really "ain't" so bad.

We can all be seated if we only will. There's room! Just take up your share!
