Pat Bach Wins Costume Contest

The Cadet Officers association announced yesterday that the entry submitted by Patricia Louise Bach in the Honorary Colonel costume design contest has been selected as the winning entry. Honorable mention went to Marge Reynolds, Ag Senior; Anne

Whitham, Arts and Sciences senior; and Phil H. Rueschhoff, Teachers College junior. The contest was sponsored by the Cadet Officers association to design a new costume for the Honorary Colonel. The 1948 Honorary Colonel will wear the winning costume when she is presented at the annual Military Ball Friday, Dec. 3. The identity of the Honorary Colonel and the description of her costume will remain secret until that time. The judges in the contest were Carolyn Ruby, Home Economics department; D. J. Platt of the Miller and Paine fashion department; and Col. Howard M. John, P.M.S. and T

Menfolk, Beware! Gals Training For Sadie Hawkins Marathon

News flash—for immediate release: Although at Dogpatch it is the battle of the schmoos which makes the headlines, at the University it is the fate of every healthy red-blooded all-American boy which is in the news today

According to a proclamation which has mysteriously appeared on several of the lone trees that grace the campus. Saturday is open season on males. Proclamation: Attention all wood-be Dog-patchers and Moonbeam McSwine follers: Beg shin-dig Saturday nite at the Stooden Yoonyun, the anyouall Sadie Hawkins Day dance. Yo gals ketch yo self a big brawny specimen of Man-hood (or as reasonable a lacksmyle of it as is hoomanly possybyle in this h'yr dessert) and dreg it to the big brall! P.S. It's hokay for all eager males to ask the gals, too! Editorial comment: This is just one of the projects of the Union and we feel that it is a worthwhile one. University students have a chance to participate in an educational program and in a woman's world it seems to us particularly vital that male consciousness of such events be developed. And, although the need for such an event as this may not be so evident in 1948, (after all, nearly two months still remain of Leap Year) we would like to point out that there can never be too much of such good things. See you Saturday—don't be shy!

Union Craft Shop Holds Open House

Today is open house at the Student Union Craft shop. Committee members will be on hand from 2 to 5 p. m. to answer any questions.

The Craft shop program includes making your own Christmas cards and making Christmas gifts. Projects offered are leather work, metal work, wood burning, textile painting, cork work and block printing. Instruction is provided at no expense and materials used are obtained at cost. Displays of some of the handi-crafts made in the shop will be on hand for inspection at the open house.

The Craft shop is located in Room 12 in the Union basement. It will be open daily, Monday through Friday, from 2 to 5 p. m. Free instruction is provided on Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 7 to 9:30 p. m.

The Hobby Interest and House Rules committees are in charge of the open house. Members are Neva Jean Huttner, chairman, Shirley Seward, Betty Ann Sawyers, Janette Johnson, Nancy Clark, Marilyn Harms, Bob Mosher, D. T. Kietly and Charles Jones.

Geier Will Attend Nat'l SDX Meet

Leo Geier, president of the Nebraska chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, will represent the chapter at the national convention in Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 10-14.

Geier is a junior in the College of Arts and Sciences and is a journalism major. He is the only delegate from the Nebraska chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

Faculty to Hear 4-Point Proposal

Roswell Howard, chairman of the Student Council committee investigating the possibility of consolidating spring activities, has announced a plan to be presented to the Faculty Senate.

Two meetings were held with presidents and chairmen of the concerned organizations: Mortar Board, Joan Farrar; Innocents, Norm Leger; Engineering Executive board, Fred Chael, and Farmers Fair board, Don Smith. More Students in Class.

Howard stressed the point that, under the proposed program, more students will be in classes than have been during previous spring activities periods.

An outline of the plan to be presented to the Faculty Senate at its meeting soon after Nov. 15 is:

1. Engineers Week will be held Thursday, April 28, and Friday, April 29. Classes for engineering students will be dismissed Thursday at a time designated by Dean Green and Friday at 11 a. m.
2. Farmers Fair will be held Saturday, April 30. Classes will be dismissed at a time designated by Dean Lambert. Any pharmacy open house which may be planned will be held at the same time as the Farmers Fair.
3. Ivy Day will be held the first Saturday in May. All classes will be dismissed Saturday morning.
4. If accepted, this program will be in effect each year unless it is altered before Nov. 1 by either faculty or student committees.

Former Dean Of Women Dies

Miss Amanda Heppner, former dean of women died Saturday morning at her home.

Miss Heppner, who was a staff member of the University, was responsible for the formation of the "big sister" plan which became the present Coed Counselor organization. During her term as dean of women, Ellen Smith hall became the center for women's activities and Carrie Belle Raymond hall was built.

Miss Heppner, a native of Lincoln, received her A.B. and masters degree from the University where she majored in Sanskrit. She was also a member of Mortar Board and Chi Omega sorority as well as an honorary member of Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Chi Theta.

She devoted her summers to directing tours of Europe for university women and was an active member of the National Association of Deans of University Women. Burial took place yesterday.

Waring's Director Plans Stay Here

Students interested in singing will have a chance next Thursday and Friday to perform under the instruction of Dr. Lara Hoggard, exponent of streamlined choral performance.

Dr. Hoggard, who conducts the Fred Waring Glee Club, will direct rehearsals of the University of Nebraska Singers and chorus groups at Nebraska Wesleyan University and Union College.

He was formerly director of choral music and professor of music education at the University of Oklahoma and joined the Fred Waring organization in 1945 after being discharged from the Navy.

Presidents of the following organizations must come down to the Cornhusker office within the next two weeks in order to have pictures of their organizations in the year book. Presidents are requested to contact Betty Green or John Connelly any afternoon between 2 and 5 p. m.

Harrison Talk to Highlight Religion Week Program

Headlining the series of events planned for the University's annual Religion in Life Week will be an address by Dr. Paul Harrison, nationally known medical missionary, at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Union ballroom.

In connection with the week's

Arab Doctor To Address Convocations

Dr. Paul Harrison, eminent surgeon and medical missionary from Muscat, Eastern Arabia, will speak Thursday morning at 10 o'clock in the Union Ballroom and at an Ag College convocation at 8 the same evening.

Wednesday he will speak at the Faculty Luncheon in the Union parlors XYZ and at a Huskerville convocation at 8:15 p.m. at the Huskerville Chapel.

Dr. Harrison is one of the team of nationally known leaders on our campus from Nov. 7-11 for Religion in Life Week. He will share with other leaders in counselling and classroom appointments.

The doctor is a native of Scribner, Nebraska. He attended Doane College and was graduated from this University with honors in 1905. After graduating here he entered Johns Hopkins Medical school. He began serving in Arabia in 1910 and returned to this country in 1948 for a final furlough which will lead to his retirement.

program discussion groups have been planned for tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in parlors XYZ of the Union.

To Speak at Ag Dr. Harrison will also speak at the Ag College convocation at 8 a.m. Thursday. Wednesday he will talk at the faculty luncheon in Union parlors XYZ and at an 8:15 p.m. convocation in Huskerville.

The discussion group sessions will be informal. Individuals have been assigned topics and will serve as information sources during the discussion but it is not planned that these people will make speeches.

The topic Tuesday night will be "Can National Problems Be Solved Ethically?" C. G. Hoffman, the Rev. Philip Schug, Dr. O. H. Werner and Don Crowe will be present to answer questions that arise or to ask some of their own.

Wednesday Last Meet Wednesday at the last meeting "Lost and Found—Personal Ethics" will be the problem and the Rev. Rex Knowles, Kady B. Faulkner, Barbara Speer and Ed Jordan will aid in organizing the discussion.

Dr. Harrison graduated with honors from the University in 1905 and entered the Johns Hopkins Medical School. During his student days he decided to be a medical missionary, preferably in a place where the going would not be easy. Muscat, in eastern Arabia, seemed to answer the requirements and he began to serve there in 1910, returning to this country in 1948. Well-known all over the world for his work in the fields of brain surgery and spinal anesthesia, he is particularly famous in Arabia; people come from all parts of Iraq, Iran and India to consult him professionally. Dr. Harrison is also the author of several books, including "The Arab at Home" and "Doctor in Arabia." He is a native of Scribner, Neb.

Dr. Walter Judd, also a medical missionary and now a Minnesota congressman, spoke at the opening convocation of Religion in Life Week, Sunday evening.

Students Hear Everton Monday morning, students heard Dr. John Scott Everton of Grinnell (Ia.) College. The answer to the questions the world is asking today, he pointed out, may be found by redeeming "the time being from insignificance. The hidden issues of the future are with the Eternal, but the unfolded issues of the day are with us and our children," Dr. Everton said.

Other Religion in Life Week events held Monday included: Two classroom lectures by Rabbi Lou H. Silberman of Temple Israel, Omaha; a noon conference of speakers and Religion in Life Week committee members in the Union, and personal conferences with students, conducted by Rabbi Silberman and Dr. Everton.

Visits to organized houses by the guest speakers were scheduled for Monday evening, followed by the discussion conference in the Union. The topic Monday night was "Are International Ethics Possible?" Ruth Shinn, W. E. Hall, Ghita Hill and Marie Liepelt were leaders.
