

Need a Job?

EDWARD H. SMITH, director of student housing and employment, glances over a list of available part-time jobs for students. And he probably has another much longer list, for this year he has found 750 jobs for students.

Jobless Men Rescued By Placement Bureau

"A man without a country" may run into a lot of trouble, but a man without a job usually runs into even more trouble. The "man without a country" has no recourse at the University, but the man without a job can solve his problem.

To help students solve their job problems, the University operates a little-known but highly valuable service, the office of student employment. At the head of this office, the University has placed Edward H. Smith, '48, who now holds the official title—Director of Student Employment and Housing.

Job Center Provides Housing

Students can go to this office, located in room 209 of the Administration Building, for help with both employment and housing, but as far as this article goes it is assumed that the students are well-housed but perhaps without employment.

"The Employment Office," explained Mr. Smith, "serves as a bureau whereby jobs can be channeled for student employment." The office is open to all university students, office hours from 8:30 to 12 a. m. and from 1 to 4:30 p. m.

In explaining the methods of the office, Mr. Smith said that all the larger firms in the city are informed by letter of the work of the office, while the smaller firms are informed by word-of-mouth and by contact with the larger firms. A great number of the Lincoln firms, therefore, inform the employment offices whenever jobs are available.

Type of Work Explained

The office also works in conjunction with the U. S. Employment Office. But aside from merely locating jobs for students, the office also helps the student understand the real nature of the job before taking it.

The Employment office doesn't engage merely in fancy red tape letter campaigns, for it has already landed 750 students jobs. And, of course, the office will continue to find jobs for students during the rest of the school year.

"A large number of students are starting to feel the pangs of high prices, and therefore many of them are looking for jobs," according to job director, Smith. He went on, however, to predict more available jobs during the coming Christmas rush period.

More Jobs Available

"Thus far," reports Mr. Smith, "students have been doing a good job on the whole. Up to now,

NU Calendar Sales Drive To Continue

A spirited Nebraska calendar sales campaign will continue for two additional weeks, according to Jeannie Sampson, Student Foundation sales manager.

The memorandum and date books will be offered to students through organized house visits, booths, and campus bookstores. The 80th anniversary booklet is also on sale downtown exclusively at Miller and Paine department store.

Workers Canvass Houses

Foundation workers will canvass all organized houses and booths this week under the direction of Jan Nutzman. Several hundred calendars, suitable for gifts, have already been sold in the houses. Men's houses will be contacted Monday night.

All university faculty members will be visited by Foundation members to sell the Nebraska calendars. Sally Holmes is in charge of the faculty campaign, which will be carried on in each campus building.

Booths will be set up in the library and Union under the supervision of Rockne Holmes. The Christmas gift theme will be carried out at the booths.

Sell for $1

Calendars are being sold by the Foundation, with the approval of the university, for $1 each. University alumni have also been contacted. They are 30-page booklets and boxed ready for mailing.

An idea of Genevieve Mitchell, Student Foundation head, the calendars are the first to be made on this campus.

berdshery or Byman's Blood Bank;" and Tau Kappa Epsilon, "Chew, Chew—Choo Choo."

An interesting attraction of the evening will be that in each program there will be a special coupon. This coupon, along with fifty cents, will admit one couple to Kings after the show.

Another new attraction this year is the innovation of a special men's quartet which will entertain between acts. The quartet, composed of Gordon Galy, Bill French, Lloyd Lotspeich, and Herb Jackman, will highlight their program by harmonizing the Kosmet Klub Nebraska Sweetheart song, "Sweet Nebraska Sweetheart." Lew Forney will accompany the group.

Students to Vote

As usual, the 1948 Price Kosmet and Nebraska Sweetheart will be elected; each ticket counting as one vote.

Nebraska Sweetheart candidates are Jeanne Sampson, Louise McDill, Patty Nordin, Laverna Acker, Dorothy Borgens, and Joanne Bergman.

Nominees for Prince Kosmet are Dick "Ajax" O'Meara, John Carson, Bob Berkshire, Rex Hoffmeister, and Al Thompson.

Innocents selected the Sweetheart candidates while the Prince Kosmet finalist were chosen by the Mortar Boards.

Male Hunting Season Opens for M. B. Ball

"Listen, my children!"—female children, that is.

Less than a month remains in which to sink that dreamboat with an invitation to the Mortar Board ball. He has undoubtedly been floating about on a sea of admiration the entire semester, but at least the time has come.

Are you shy? Do you quake at the thought of broaching the subject to that handsome hunk of hero?

M. B.'s Anticipate Shyness

Members of Mortar Board anticipate this situation, and for that very reason the ball has always been one of the more formal and staid of campus affairs. Plan, therefore, for a delightful evening in the most refined company.

Last year's ball reached the epitome of conservatism.

The M. B.'s called for their dates in a hearse, while others traveled in the plush comfort of a hay-rack, wheel-barrow or a model T.

Lasses Urescent Unique Corsages

The more timid lasses presented their dates with corsages of onions, dog biscuits, mistle toe and Wheaties, while the really brave gals loaded their dates with Christmas trees, horse shoes and bulletin boards and shackled them with chains. At intermission a number of "happy-go-lucky" individuals spread out a table cloth and held a picnic, without ants, on the coliseum floor.

But enough of last year's feeble endeavor. The '48 Mortar Board ball promises even more. A nationally known coast-to-coast heard, hit-parade topping band will turn out danceable music. The loudspeaker and acoustics will be adjusted to carry a whisper.

Bachelor Presentation Planned

Eight eligible bachelors will be presented—at a distance designed to insure their safety. Last year's bachelors were: Irv Dana, Lee Goodwin, John Ayres, Bob Wenke, By Hooper, Jim Swanson and Al Potter.

Tickets will go on sale very soon, so bring that piggy bank out of the moth balls and put him into action.

The ball is Dec. 10. Pick that club, magnifying glass and hand-cuffs, and let's go!
