Tigers Meet NU Saturday

Missouri's golden-garbed Tigers, conquerors of Doak Walker and Southern Methodist, come to Memorial Stadium Saturday for the 42nd annual Nebraska-Missouri football game.

Kickoff is at 2:00 p. m. A crowd of 35,000 or more, is expected to be on hand for the game.

Coached by Don Faurot, smart, lean originator of the cutting split T formation, Missouri's five game winning streak was snapped by Oklahoma. Faurot's backfield may be weakened considerably this week as regular Halfbacks Lloyd Brinkman and Mike Ghnoully are listed as doubtful starters.

Nebraska also lost to the mighty Oklahoma Sooners last week by a 41-14 count.

The lifetime series between the two schools shows Nebraska winning 24, Missouri 14 and three games tied.

Missouri has a great line with Chester Fritz, the 204 pound left tackle, a blocking, tackling stand-out.

Cage Entries Due Nov. 27

Entries for intramural basketball are due Nov. 27 in 102 Physical Education Bldg. League play will start Dec. 2.

Teams may practice at the P. E. Building any hour daily, however, only two teams per day may reserve the practice floors from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. Nightly sessions are available by reservation.

Competition will be divided into separate leagues if sufficient entries are received. The leagues will be divided as follows: Interdenominational, Interfraternity A and B leagues, Interdormitory, Interdepartmental or intercollege, Ag College, College of Engineering, Law and Dental Colleges, Independent leagues, Military leagues including ROTC and NROTC.

Players will be required to furnish their own suits. The IM department will furnish colored game jerseys for all teams not having their own. These should be checked out by the team manager at least ten minutes before game time.

Benchwarmer

BY HAROLD ABRAMSON

Saturday is the last home game of the season and the last chance students will have to show their spirit and appreciation to a hard fighting team of Nebraska football players.

Saturday will be the last home appearance for such Husker stars as Cletus Fischer, Junior Collopy, John Sedlacek and Dick Hutton, to name only a few.

Though the Scarlet gridsters have been able to eek out only two victories they have given a good account of themselves this season. Win, lose, or draw Saturday the students should be behind them.

At every home game this year cheerleaders have knocked themselves out trying to raise some spirit in the stands. At times (when we were rolling toward the opponents goal) the stands were afire with that real Husker spirit. But those instances were in the minority. Most of the time the listless stands on the Nebraska student side represented only a half hearted attempt on the part of rooters to cheer the team.

Despite the fact organizations are split into small groups it is still possible to follow the motions of the cheerleaders. The only groups that will not be able to make themselves heard are those seated anywhere in the main stadium will be able to give the Huskers plenty of cheering and show plenty of spirit.

Along with this comes an age old gripe at the student body. Why can't students raise their arms as the KU cheering section does. Not only did a few KU rooters raise their arms, but everyone in their student section joined in with the swaying of the arms whenever the signal was given by the cheerleaders.

The grade and high school kids who locate themselves in the North knothole section will offer a serious challenge to the student cheering sections come this Saturday. C'mon Huskers, let's see if we can at least outdo the high school kids.

K State Extension Club

Kansas Staters recently organized their first extension club.

Some of the aims of the organization include association with others going into the extension field and with state personnel. More recognition for extension work and a better understanding of the scope of the field is another aim.

Club membership is drawn from students studying to be home demonstration agents, county agents and 4-H club agents.
