

NU Cagers Entertains IS Tutor Five

Husker cagers will entertain a strong Iowa Teachers five on the Coliseum court Saturday night. Coach Good's men will be after their second triumph of the season.

The Teachers quint is defending their North Central Conference championship this year with a veteran-packed lineup. Three of the returning men scored 700 of the teams 1000 odd points last season. The Teachers won 9 of 10 Conference games and had an over-all season record of 14 wins and 6 losses. Among the losses was a three point defeat by Iowa State which closely followed Iowa State's double win over Michigan.

McArthur Out

A shadow fell across Husker cage hopes Wednesday when it was learned that the injury suffered by Don McArthur in Tuesday's scrimmage was a torn cartilage. McArthur, who is to be operated on is a veteran of the 1946-47 Cornhusker quintet and will probably be lost for the season.

Coach Good is devoting practices this week to ironing out the wrinkles which appeared in the team's first two games. Of most importance is improving their rebounding on the offensive and defensive boards. This weakness was very noticeable in the encounter with Minnesota, but it was due more to the play of the six-foot nine-inch McIntyre than to any fault of the Huskers. The experiment with the fast break was unsuccessful as it weakened the Huskers' board work on the defense. When a shot was taken, the guards tended to float to the sidelines a little too soon and the center was left to battle the Gopher forwards alone for the rebounds.

Travel East

In addition to the Saturday game the Huskers are looking ahead to their swing into the east, the latter part of next week. Friday, December 18, Coach Good's five invades LaFayette, Indiana, to tackle the Boiler-makers of Purdue. Last year Purdue took a narrow 60-58 verdict. Saturday

Football Squad Holds Banquet

Nebraska Footballers held their annual football banquet at the University club Tuesday night.

Fred Dawson, Husker coach from 1921-24, told the players they must start now in preparation for next year. He said the team must have the great Husker spirit both on the field and in the classroom.

"We are proud of a team that they move on to take on the Cincinnati five. The following Monday the NU quint will challenge Duquesne in Pittsburg. The tour winds up in Cleveland with the Huskers meeting Western Reserve Tuesday, December 21.

didn't quit in spite of bad breaks and a dismal season," he said.

"Potsy Clark is doing a swell job in the leadership department. The future holds much promise in his development program."

Athletic Director George Potsy Clark introduced squad members and praised them as good players who fumbled at times and dropped passes at times but never quit.

The University Club presented engraved watches to the eight senior footballers. They are Bob Lipps, Bob Costello, Cletus Fischer, Jack Hazen, John Sedlacek, Dick Hutton, Alex Cochrane and Frank Collopy.

"We are going along for Nebraska, and we are all pulling for the same thing—Cornhusker success," Potsy said.
