One for the Bells . . .

Adverse comment on the Mueller Carillon Tower has not been great, but there are many who, like a letter-to-the-editorial writer in the Journal, feel that the $85,000 could be used to a much greater advantage.

We will concede that what the University needs most at the present time is not a carillon tower. However, in consideration of the wishes of Mr. Mueller, the donor, and the architectural beauty the tower will afford the campus, one must extend the scope of his thinking beyond practicality.

It goes without saying that the Nebraska campus, as yet not distinguished for its beauty, is hampered by its location—squeezed as it is between the Lincoln shopping and industrial district and the railroad tracks—and consequently cannot have the advantages of spacious grounds on which to expand. Any beautification to be done must come from landscaping within the area (a project now underway) and adding structures of architectural beauty. In this respect, the asset of the carillon tower can not be denied.

We refer those who say "why bother about beautifying the campus?" to the multitude of students who are forever lamenting the "unattractive campus" situation and always comparing the U.N. campus (the loser) with other schools in the area. Migration trips never fail to produce such comments as ". . . wish we had a campus as beautiful as theirs . . ."

The Nebraska campus needs many improvements. Most desperately needed at the present is an auditorium for the University Theatre, unless we are willing to let the drama department suddenly collapse after its long and hard years of steady progress in developing an able physical plant and excellent training grounds for speech students.

But our thinking processes shouldn't be turned by the fact that here is $85,000 going into a carillon tower when it might be used elsewhere. If the wish of the donor is to build a carillon tower, let us be thankful for that—in short, $85,000 for a carillon tower is far better than no $85,000 at all—and continue to make our needs for other things known to those who can do something about them—members of the Board of Regents and the state legislature.

As I Was Saying . . .

By Don Dutton

The Sigma Nu's were in true form for their annual Pigge dinner Saturday night. Thrilled by the pomp and pageantry of the impressive affair were such personages as J. B. Coffman and pinmate Pepi Volave, By Hooper and Ardis Butler, Walt Samuelson and Ellie Swanson. Big event of the evening was the pinning of Jack Young and Gloria Stevens.

The Delta Gammas went all out Friday night for their formal at the Cornhusker. Attending were Marcia Pratt and Jim Pollock, Katie Rapp and Chuck Clem, Sarah Devoe and Jerry Warren.

Small talk—Paul (Lover Boy) McKee has decided that making love by long distance is too expensive since his recent experience in Omaha.

It seems to me that Donna Burley is doing a pretty good job of playing coupé up lately. For reference, see Pat Gundy and eligible bachelor Rex Pettijohn.

Saturday night was an experience for happy Harris Carnaby. He maintains that he had the best date of all and that it was his soberest Saturday night in years.

The new officers of Delian Union for the next semester were nominated last night at 7:30. Other business of the meeting included a report on the Christmas food basket and an announcement on the short story contest.

Furtive Figures Hunt For Gridiron Mentor

BY EARL KATZ.

I was standing in a train station, leaning on a time table and watching two sorority girls clubbing a faction member to death and waiting for my train going to California, when suddenly two furtive looking characters slunk up to me and said:

"Come with us, we want to talk with you."

Instantly I knew they had caught up with me at last. Suddenly I became flooded with neuroses, psychoses, feelings of regression, aggression, repression, obsessions, fears, phobias, anxieties, compulsions . . . my neurasthenia, hysteria and hypochondria came back . . . I also was a little worried.

My tan, work-hardened hand snaked to my hip. I whipped out my horse pistol which I had raised from a colt.

"I ain't done nothing," I cried meekly, blowing the head off one of my abductors.

The other was extremely frightened. But never the less, he sidled up to me and whispered a few words in my reluctant ears.

I could not believe my eyes at what he said. "But I couldn't," I said coyly, "I know nothing about the business."

He asked me if I had a name. I told him it was Shannahan O'Greenberg.

"Ah, that's a big name," he said with satisfaction.

Anyway, it seemed that these two men were really not officers of the law, but two University of Nebraska representatives. They were trying to sign me up as a coach . . . and this one was wondering if I had a big name, so I could be a big name coach.

I almost accepted him. I told him how my grandfather's grandfather was a coach, my grandfather was a coach, my father was a coach and I was the caboose. I finally turned him down though.

I'd rather have some nice steady secure job, like a flag-pole painter.

Theta Xi to Present Movie Star at Dreamgirl Prom

Virginia Huston

Columbia starlet, Virginia Huston, will be presented as "Sweetheart of Theta Xi" Friday night at the Theta Xi Dream Girl Formal at Hotel Lincoln.

She was chosen by unanimous vote of the Theta Xi chapter and arrangements for her appearance are being made by her brother Bob Huston, an active member. Huston is a sophomore who majors in architecture.

Miss Huston has appeared in "Nocturne" and "Out of the Past" and will soon be seen opposite Randolph Scott in "The Great Manhunt." She is a native of Omaha.

She attended Duchesne College in Omaha where she majored in music and dramatics. She also participated in athletics, specializing in tennis and swimming.

Early dramatic experience was gained in the Omaha Community Playhouse where Dorothy McGuire and Henry Fonda started their careers. She played the title role in "Janie" at 18.

In 1945 Miss Huston went to Hollywood where she was signed by RKO. Later she worked for Warner Bros., and is now under contract to Columbia.
