Union to Have Activity Office

Have your daily siestas in the Union lounge been interrupted by the unrestrained din of carpenters at work?

Strain your brain no longer, friend—the union is to have a lovely new activities office in what was the inner powder room of the women's lounge. "Lovely" because the flowery green wallpaper is to remain, and also because Union committees and Mrs. Dorothy Day, activities director, have been for some time in dire need of a home.

A new door will be cut in the wall opposite the window of the main office of the Union. Also (we do not know of what consequence this may be) Union Director Duane Lake announces that bars will be placed on the windows of the Union. The work is expected to be completed in two weeks.

No 'Pox' Epidemic In Women's Dorm

If residents of the girls' dorm are scratching and worrying about chicken pox, Dr. R. B. Miller, Student Health staff physician, announced today that "there is absolutely no danger of an epidemic."

Two freshman girls living in the dorm have come down with the sickness this week and are confined in the Student Health Infirmary.

Dr. Miller, commenting on wild chicken pox rumors on campus said the girls may be "susceptible," but the predominantly adult population rules out any danger.

Meanwhile, a Student Health nurse is on special duty at the residence hall to check on any new pox developments.

ship, Thursday at 4 p.m. in Ellen Smith Hall.

In her talk, entitled, "The Women in White," Miss Kyle will describe various aspects of a nursing education, including preparation for nursing work in industry, public health, teaching, schools, colleges, dietetics in many institutions, and hospitals.

"Nebraska and the nation needs many more nurses than schools of nursing now graduate," Miss Kyle says, "because the nation is becoming more health conscious than before the war. There are many opportunities for service to people and society as a whole in the nursing profession—and they pay is good."

Today's meeting is open to all women students who are wondering about the future. "There is nothing to sign," Miss Kyle added. "Just come and listen. Then make your own decision about a career."

Ball Announces Change In Council Committees

With an addition of some new committees and committee members, President Dale Ball announced a revision of the committee system at the Student Council meeting Wednesday night.

Explaining the revision, Ball said, "I believe with the experience of one semester of work behind us, we can now carry out a faster scale of operations and be more effective in our work."

Senior members of the council will act in an advisory capacity and will be excused from active committee work. This was done, Ball explained in order to give the Junior members a more active part in the Council and to benefit by the experience. Ball also pointed out that through this experience, the Junior members would be in a better position to select new members.

The revised committees and their members:

An investigation of University owned buses between the Ag and City Campuses—Jack Dewolf and Lloyd Wirth.
Scholarship—Maxwell, Pat Larson and By Hooper.
Traffic Survey—Bob Axtell and Rex Hoffmeister.

New Bookstore To Open at Ag

A University bookstore will open on Ag Campus Thursday, Jan. 20, according to Jim Cusick, manager of the Regents Bookstore on the city campus.

The store will be located in the Ag Union where the store room is now located. Books used by Ag students on both campuses will be available. It will be open from 9 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 5 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sunday. During the first four weeks of the new semester, the store will be open on Saturday morning from 9 to 12 a. m.

"We are limited in the number of people we can handle in the downtown store," said Cusick. "The Regents store is the only one on the campus that can reduce prices as the result of Student Council action, and the Ag store will afford students on that campus the same cut of 5 per cent on all used books," he said.

Students desiring part-time work should see Mr. Cusick. The store will be student-operated. Veterans will be afforded the same billing privileges as they receive on the city campus. Used books will also be purchased at the same price offered downtown.

Three Ag Clubs To Hold Joint Meet Tonight

The proposed merger of three Ag campus clubs which was discussed before vacation will become a reality tonight when members of Varsity Dairy, Poultry and Block and Bridle clubs will hold their first joint meeting.

Dr. C. B. Schultz, director of the museum, will give the feature address before the assembled groups in room 301, Dairy Industry. The meeting will begin at 7:30, according to Glenn Claybaugh, president of Varsity Dairy.

Ag Students Welcome

All Ag students are welcome to attend the program, which will be supplemented by films taken of museum work last summer. After the talk, the various clubs will hold individual business meetings, Claybaugh said.

Under the provisions of the merger, which has been agreed to by representatives of the three clubs, no man may be a member of more than one of the three organizations. Joint meetings will be held once a month on the second Thursday and will be followed by separate business meetings. This will enable the clubs to preserve their own identity, and, at the same time, sponsor more informative discussions of agricultural problems.

Setup Centralizes Clubs

"By our new setup, we hope to make Ag college clubs more centralized and remove some of the activity which crowds the evening available for club work," remarked Claybaugh. "Limiting allegiance to one of the three clubs will also allow members to be more active in their chosen organization."
