To New Staff

Since this is the last paper of the semester and the Publications board does not meet until Saturday morning to select next semester's staff, we will have to give our congratulations and best wishes to an as yet unknown staff.

However, we do wish the new editor and his staff good luck and hope that they will be able to get more newsprint for bigger papers and not have any more printing troubles; or do the impossible and devise some means to get all the stories and announcements of every organization on the campus into a four page paper.

Another trusting thought that we have is that the Publications board will select the new staff on a merit basis by paying attention to the records made by staff members and reporters. A suggestion to the board is that student members be required to pay a few visits to the office and find out how the paper is organized, what work is done and by whom-a thing that has not been done this semester In fact there is only one student pub board member that we

Again we wish the new staff congratulations and good luck.
