Dear Mr. Leger:

Everyone is entitled to their own opinion regardless if it is in relation to the merits of the National Student Association or the integrity of a columnist of The Daily Nebraskan.

The Letterip column of The Daily Nebraskan has as its purpose the expression of student opinion. In Miss Schneider's letter of Feb. 24, she expressed her opinion. The editor is also entitled to his opinions and may answer editorially questions which arise from Letterips. However, when the editor's answer is of a derogatory and personal nature and has no relation whatsoever to the subject at hand, the editor has overstepped his authority. Such an editor's note attached to Miss Schneider's Letterip violated newspaper ethics. There was no need to cast aspersions on Miss Schneider's letter concerning NSA or on her grammatical proficiency.

If the columns written in The Daily Nebraskan are unable to stand on their own feet but demand editorial support, these columns are not worth the paper they are printed on.

Sincerely yours,

Meet The Council

Phyllis Cadwallader, Arts and Science junior, is another first term Council member. She is serving on the exchange student committee.

This committee is working on a program to bring foreign students to the University on a type of scholarship to be set up by the Council. At the moment the committee is working in collaboration with religious groups and organized houses to provide housing and transportation for the students.

Miss Cadwallader is also a member of the YWCA cabinet and Gamma Phi Beta.

Another junior council member, Paul Weltchek, is a member of the constitutions committee. This group checks constitutions of all campus organizations. Each activity must have its constitution approved by the Council in order to function legally.

In addition to his work on Student Council, Weltchek is a member of Zeta Beta Tau.

Faculty Cooperation Again . . .

In line with its campaign for more power for the Student Council, The Daily Nebraskan naturally favors Council representation on the faculty committee on student organizations and social functions.

The Daily Nebraskan has its own little reason for advocating such representation.

As part of a national contest to find "Miss All-American College Freshman," sponsored by the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, The Daily Nebraskan answered a wire asking the Daily to list what it considered the colleges with the most beautiful co-eds. When notified that the University of Nebraska was in the finals as one of the colleges where the search would be conducted, The Daily Nebraskan agreed to co-operate in sponsoring a contest to find the most beautiful freshman co-ed who would be presented on the stage of the Stuart on premiere night of "Mother Is a Freshman."

We do not deny that the search is a novel part of a movie company's publicity campaign for a forthcoming picture. However, since the movie is set on a college campus and has a plot which revolves around college students, professors and administrators, we did not think it out of place for the Daily to go along with the plan as have the other fourteen universities and colleges chosen to participate in the search.

And so the Daily, not realizing the limits of its freedom, planned to go ahead with the contest and gave the Stuart Theatre the impression that it would find the freshman co-ed to be presented on premiere night.

Today we received a copy of the letter addressed to Mr. Butterfield at the Stuart. It is from the faculty committee on student organizations and social functions. It says that the committee "deemed it unwise to grant approval to this organization (The Daily Nebraskan) to select a freshman woman, representing the University, to appear at the premiere or to be connected in any way with the publicity and advertising of this picture."

Thanks, committee. We are glad to learn that the University of Nebraska can not do what the Universities of Texas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Syracuse, Southern Methodist, Iowa, Alabama, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Utah, Cornell and Penn, Iowa and Oregon state colleges can do.

We are glad to know that the staff members of The Daily Nebraskan, comprised of seniors, juniors and sophomores from the various colleges, are not capable of making such decisions.

One additional thing—if we are going to follow a strict policy of not tying the University up with any "commercial enterprise or to be connected in any way with . . . publicity and advertising . . ." should not the University reject the contribution from the Cooper Foundation (which already amounts to $31,100) for landscaping the campus? After all, the Foundation does achieve a great deal of publicity this way, all at the expense of the University.

A SOUTHERN democrat filibuster against Truman's civil rights program was hoped to be prevented, but such a prevention would require the help of the Republicans. Senator Lucas of Illinois has a motion before the house that would limit debate by a two-thirds vote. If such a measure was passed, a filibuster would be next to impossible.

But to pass such a rule, the democrats need the help of the Republicans in the senate. Senator Taft said that GOP leaders would disclose their attitude after a policy committee meeting Wednesday.

BELOW FREEZING temperatures were reported throughout the state as March winds ushered in a fur-clad lamb. But to most of Nebraska freezing temperatures lowered the prospects of floods. Ice packs had almost disappeared along the Missouri, but other rivers were still swollen.

THE JOINT chiefs of staff seemed to have neglected someone when they asked for a unified medical service for the Army, Navy and Air Force. Anyway that is what the heads of the three departments think. All three departments are against any proposal of that sort, a spokesman said Tuesday.

SENATOR CONNALLY, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, predicted that the aid to Britain would not be cut. The committee research has shown that Britain does need help, Connally told reporters. And any reduction, he said, would hurt European economy.
