Poll to Pick Staff Queen

Six "most beautiful freshmen" were chosen Monday to be finalists for "Miss Daily Nebraskan." The six, chosen by the staff, are Beverly Deal, Sue Eastergard, Molly Huston, Juanita Rediger, Mary Jane Rooney and Margaret Thomsen.

"MISS DAILY NEBRASKAN" will be chosen from these six freshmen in a campus poll to be taken today by the feature department.

To show what Nebraska University could have entered in the "All-American Freshman" contest, The Daily Nebraskan has been conducting their own contest, entirely devoid of any commercial aspect. The winner of the freshman contest, had it been approved by University officials, would have been entered with the winners from 14 other colleges to vie for the "All-American Freshman" title.

judged by beauty alone, not for scholastic achievements, activities, contributions to the University, etc. No finalists had any down slips on file at the Registrar's office, however.

The winner of the "Miss Daily Nebraskan" contest will be featured in a full-page article in Friday's Rag. She will not be presented any gift from the Rag staff, but will be honored merely by the title alone.

Council Group Will Discuss DP Problems

A special committee of the Student Council will discuss the problems of displaced persons at a meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Council room.

Attempts will be made at the meeting to co-ordinate all of the individual efforts now being made to arrange transportation, board, room and spending money for these displaced persons.

Dr. G. W. Rosenlof will attend the conference. An erroneous article in Sunday's Daily Nebraskan stated that the meeting would be held on Thursday.

Change in Queen Nomination Told

A change in the method of nominating the Ivy Day Queen was announced Tuesday.

Instead of filing for the Queen, all Junior and Senior women will vote for five candidates Thursday, March 10. If five candidates are not listed on the ballot, the ballot is invalidated.

Senior women are eligible for the Queen if they have a 6 average. A list of the eligible women will be at the polls.

Polls will open Thursday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Ellen Smith hall and at the Ag Union.

The Queen will be elected at a general election, March 17, from the five candidates.

Faculty-Student Meeting Proposed at Open Hearing

What is the faculty's opinion of the Student Council's plan for encouraging open political parties? If the faculty does not favor this solution of the problem of unsatisfactory representation in the Council, what other solution does it offer?

These are the questions which would be presented at an open meeting of the Faculty Senate and student body which was proposed last night. The proposal was offered by students at an open hearing held by Dick Schlessener and Bill Schenck, chairmen of the Student Council judiciary and constitutions committees.

ONE OF THE main obstacles hindering the solution of the problem, Schlessener said, is that it has been "difficult to get concrete statements as to what would make the faculty happy."

The administration has thrown the matter into the lap of the Student Council, an organization which has been accused of being "controlled."

The question was also asked as to whether the action of open political parties would actually solve the problem. Several students expressed the opinion that working, open political parties may not be a solution, but that they are the only path open to the Council.

If the Council plan is approved, it was noted, a lessening of the restrictions imposed upon political campaigning would be necessary for its success. In the opinion of several students, these restrictions prevent the student interest necessary for the life of political parties.

YM Presents Russian Film 'Stoneflower'

"Stoneflower," renowned Russian film and winner of various awards for its brilliant color photography, will be shown to campus audiences this week end. The movie will be shown at 8 p. m., Friday, March 11, and Saturday, March 12, in Love Library Auditorium. English sub-titles will promote charity. Admission is 50c.

Sponsored by the campus YMCA, the film provides "a land of enchantment on the screen." The story is a type of fantasy with a certain amount of seriousness needed.

The young hero of the tale is Danilla, a stone-carver who smashes a vase he has carved because it isn't as perfect as he had dreamed it would be. He is lured away from his home and his bride by the Lady of Copper Mountain and by his own desire to see for himself the perfect stone-flower.

The old men of the village warn him that men who have seen the stone-flower seldom return, but he follows the mysterious fantastic mountain-lady anyway.

Whether the movie's superiority in color-filming is due to the secret new process of color photography which its makers claim for it, or rather to the wisdom of the director, Alexander Ptushko, is hard to determine. The film won first prize for color filming at the European Cannes International Film Festival.

Strictly Non-Commercial

If "Miss Daily Nebraskan" receives $100 from Twentieth Century Fox film corporation, it will not be with the sanction of The Daily Nebraskan.

We appreciate an outside firm's wish to acknowledge financially the co-ed who wins our title as being selected the most beautiful freshman coed, but we can not approve any monetary offers from such enterprise. The Daily Nebraskan's search for the most beautiful freshman girl is strictly non-commercial. In no way do we wish to jeopardize the dignity or freedom of the University by accepting offers from any outside groups. Furthermore, The Daily Nebraskan staff would resign enmasse before it would act in defiance of faculty action.

The Daily Nebraskan fully realizes its limitations and does not wish to appear obtrusive in matters concerning student affairs.

The Faculty's word shall always be supreme in our office.

Midwest Y Will Sponsor Student Summer Projects

Ed. Note: This is the first in a series of articles on opportunities for students to have fun, learn and earn money during summer vacation.

"New York City is our laboratory" is the slogan of the New York College summer service group's work-study project designed to give college students an opportunity to understand life in America's largest city next summer. A similar project is being offered in St. Louis.

Sponsored by the rocky mountain region student Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., the St. Louis community laboratory is open to 30 college men and women who will be selected to live and work for eight weeks in settlement houses, Y. M. C. A.'s and other community agencies. The entire group will meet twice weekly for a seminar session under the leadership of a qualified director to discuss the community problems that are being observed.

INTERVIEWS WITH CIVIC leaders and planned field trips will provide an opportunity to get underneath the problem of housing, illiteracy, inadequate recreation, unemployment, minority groups and delinquency. From these, students will see from the inside what is being done to combat some of the critical social conditions that prevail in a metropolitan center. Students also establish a "community" among themselves to provide social, recreational and worship experiences thruout the summer.

The St. Louis project offers complete maintenance for the summer as well as an additional stipend for qualified students in most cases. Wages earned will help cover the registration fees and incidental costs in the New York program.

AMONG THE LEADERS who have met with the New York college summer service group in recent years and are Harry Emerson Fosdick, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Reinhold Niebuhr and Norman Thomas. Field trips have been taken to the New York stock exchange, the Maritime Union hiring hall, The United Nations and a garment factory.

The group in New York describes its project as an opportunity for students to "become a part of this city of glorious achievement, of heartaches, tensions, conflicts and of cultural attainment. By understanding the social, economic, political and religious forces in New York they see more clearly the problems facing America and learn to take their places alongside those who struggle for justice."

For further information and an application blank, write to Miss Jimmy Woodward, 600 Lexington ave., New York 22, N. Y. Details on the St. Louis project may be obtained from Harold J. Kuebler, regional student YM-YW, 1269 Topeka, Topeka, Kansas.
