

Basis of Honor Recognition for Scholars Told

Student organizations that have 10 percent of their members included in the honor roll may be listed in the program for the Honors convocation.

Organizations should send information, to be checked for eligibility to appear in the program, to the office of Dean Thompson, Room 104, Administration building.

Such information should include: (1) full name and home town of each undergraduate member (no graduate members except those who graduated in January, 1949, to be included) and (2) name of faculty sponsor, when there is one.

THE UNIVERSITY Faculty Senate has also made changes in the basis for honors. Freshmen must have an average grade in the preceding semester of 6.5 or the above to be considered for the Honors list. Upper classmen must have an average grade of 7 or above for the two preceding semesters. When the number in any one college class with grades equal to or above the minimum exceeds 10 percent of the class, the upper 10 percent shall be listed.

Senior students who have an average grade of 8 or above for the two preceding semesters and also those who will have been on the Honors list for four years will be listed for Superior Scholarships.

THE REMOVAL of incompletes, change in grades, or clearance of old reports must be in the Registrar's office by noon, March 26, in order for the individual concerned to be considered for the Honors convocation list.

The Honors convocation committee, in order that the list of prizes and awards to be printed in the programs be complete, has asked that all prizes and awards which are being given for the first time this year be reported to Dean Thompson's office.

Waring Speaks To Journalism Convo Today

Houstoun Waring, editor of the Littleton, Colo., Independent, will address a School of Journalism convocation at 5:10 p. m. this afternoon in the Love Library Auditorium.

Known as one of the most progressive editors in the middle west, Waring has recently returned from the Eric Allen Memorial lecture at the University of Oregon. He is in Lincoln as guest of the Nebraska Press association.

He is widely known for the organization of an editorial advisory board for his paper. A meeting of leading social scientists and specialists in many fields is held each month with the editorial staff. The scientists offer criticism of various articles that pertain to their respective fields. In this way, Waring plans to eliminate inaccuracies in his paper.

The purpose of the convocation is to give the journalism students a chance to hear a successful editor give his views on his specialty. Attendance for all journalism students is required.

Hey, Neighbors! Square Dancing!

All you fancy square dance fellers latch on to your "Daisy Mae" and fetch her over to the square dance in the Ag union tonight. Better be there along about half past eight if n' you want to get the full ben-e-fit o' the occasion.

Your fa-vor-ite caller, Dave Sanders, has a combo set for aidin' him in his callin' work.

We got a couple o' those new fangled cinemas to keep your spirit primed durin' intermission. It's gonna cost yo' two bits to attend this here occasion, so bring your corn money—and don't forget your gal!
