Huskers Into Second Spot In Big 7 All-Sports Race

Nebraska's athletes coming up strong in the latter part of the year are now in second place in the Big Seven all-sports race. Oklahoma leads with 11½ points to 17½ for Nebraska.

Kansas is third along with Missouri with 26 points followed by Iowa State with 26½, Colorado with 27 and Kansas State with 33½.

The Huskers have won the most individual championships, having carried wrestling, indoor track and basketball. Oklahoma's team balance has meant the difference so far, as the Sooners have placed no lower than third in any sport, while winning football and tying for basketball.

THE SOONERS took second place honors in crosscountry, wrestling and swimming and ended up third in indoor track.

Nebraska has won titles in basketball, wrestling and indoor track, but dropped to fifth in football, sixth in crosscountry and third in swimming.

Emphasizing every sport on the calendar, Oklahoma has won the conference all-sports trophy 13 times to Nebraska's three, Iowa State's three, Kansas one and Missouri's one.

Oklahoma, Nebraska, Iowa State and Colorado participated in every sport officially recognized by the conference. Kansas has no wrestling team, Kansas State has no swimming team and Missouri has neither a wrestling nor a swimming team.

With golf, tennis, baseball, and outdoor track still on the docket, the all-over rankings are as follows:
