

Hosteling Offers Chance For Cheap World Travel

Ed. note: This is the second in a series of articles on opportunities for students to learn, serve and have fun during summer vacation.

It isn't necessary to join the navy to see the world, not with American Youth Hosteling offering opportunity to travel in the U. S., Central America, Europe and the Far East.

Trips sponsored nationally, locally or planned by the individual hosteler range in price from almost nothing for shorter local trips, $315 for a tour of the entire United States and $565 for a tour of the British Isles to $1,365 for the most expensive trip, one to Japan.

IN THE MINDS of many, youth hosteling is synonymous with inexpensive travel and to those whose pocketbooks do not match their urge to see other places and countries, the lower cost of AYH sponsored trips has a special appeal. This saving is made possible by the willingness of every group member to accept the simplest transportation, food and overnight accommodations that can be provided within the rules of safety.

Transportation is usually by bicycle, but some hostelers travel on foot and in Minnesota there are boat and canoe trips. The two rolling hostels that cross the country, one from east to west and the other from west to east, use a remodeled railroad car as a home base with bicycles along for side trips.

FOOD IS usually prepared by the hostelers themselves. Overnights are spent in the hostels along the way, including every type of shelter from made-over chicken coops to palaces.

Although hosteling is the cheapest means of travel, the main idea behind American Youth Hosteling is not to see the country as a tourist, but to take all the time necessary to know the people and stop at the spots that interest the group.

"FOR HOSTELERS traveling in small groups, half the fun is in planning your own trip beforehand," commented Miss Ruth Shinn, executive director of the University YW, who has done some hosteling in Europe. "In a hostel in England one evening we found people speaking English and German as their native languages. You also find people who have done 150 or 200 miles in the day"

Episcopal Chapel, Canterbury Club Provide Religious Activity

As the only Student Chapel on campus, the University Episcopal church conducts a program with a slightly different emphasis than other student religious organizations on campus.

Under the direction of Father Harry B. Whitley a regular church program is carried out for University Episcopal students. In addition, the Canterbury Club is organized to provide social activities and study groups.

PARTICIPATION by faculty members in University Episcopal church is emphasized by Father Whitley, who feels the University pastor should work as much with the faculty as with students. The faculty sponsors for the Canterbury Club, Kady Faulkner, associate professor of art, and Dr. William F. Swindler, director of the School of Journalism, take an active part in the activities of the club.

Miss Faulkner recently directed the redecoration of the University church. Dr. Swindler writes a column, "Canterbury Tales," about University activities for a church publication, "The Nebraska Churchman."

THE REDECORATION of the entire church has been one of the main projects this year. With the help of Miss Faulkner, students have refinished furniture and painted walls of the recreation room in the church basement. They have also obtained new curtains for the altar in the sanctuary.

Organized on the Nebraska campus a year ago, the Canterbury Club is part of a national association. Father Whitley was the first president of the Canterbury Clubs when they were organized under that name in 1938.

LENTEN SERVICES are being held on Wednesday mornings at 7 after which a breakfast is served. Another Lenten feature is the study group held on Sunday evenings at 6 p. m. Supper is also served after the study meetings.

"The Church on the Campus" is a favorite place for student weddings, and Father Whitley says, "Each spring brings a deluge of weddings to University Church."
