

Budget Committee Slashes University Appropriation

The University's budget has received another blow. A recommendation by the state legislature's budget committee will constitute a $400,000 cut in the governor's budget and a $2,600,000 cut in the budget requested by the University. The legislature's budget committee has recommended that $7,400,000 in property tax funds be appropriated to the University for the 1949-51 biennium. In the governor's budget, it was estimated that the University will receive $4,600,000 in tuition fees. The University, however, has based its budget on an estimation of $3,400,000 in student fees.

THE BUDGET committee has apparently taken the governor's figure as the correct one despite the fact that C. Y. Thompson, president of the University Board of Regents, recently called the figure an error.

Thompson stated that "this error can be corrected by cutting the cash fund figure in the governor's budget from $4,600,000 to $3,400,000 and increasing the general fund appropriation from $7,800,000 to nine million dollars. This action will assure the University of receiving the $12,400,000 the Governor has recommended."

"The University will turn back to the general fund any tuition money it receives in excess of the $3,400,000."

THE BUDGET committee has agreed that a reduction of $400,000 in the University's building maintenance and repair budget is possible. This can be made up from the University's share of the 1.1 special building fund levy, a committee member said.

It has been pointed out that the governor's budget has been based on the funds spent during only one year, a year when the University College of Law was not in full operation.

The University has also pointed out that the governor did not consider the fact that enrollment at the University College of Medicine in Omaha has increased and that the cost of operating the hospital has increased about $200,000 a year.

AN ADDITIONAL cut in appropriations has been made in the board of control budget which has been decreased by $695,690. The budget committee will ask that this amount be taken from the board's share of the special building fund.

University officials have stated that veteran enrollment has shifted from the sophomore level to the junior and senior classes. Instructional costs at this level are greater because upperclass subjects are more specialized and the classes must be broken up into smaller units.

A summer school activities bulletin, including the entire summer school program of events, will be published this month by the Student Union, under the direction of Lee Best, publicity chairman.

Plans are being made to depart from the usual procedure of a simple list of facilities and events, and to make a pictorial leaflet which will give handy descriptions of place to go, and what to do on Nebraska campus during the summer terms.

The programs of each department, college, or division of the University are in preparation at the present time, and will be turned over to Miss Best for final compilation and publication. In previous years some of the vital events publicized in this manner included golf, bait and fly casting, tennis and horse-shoe championship tournaments; recitals and plays; All-State music and speech performances, movies, dancing and swim parties.

Today's your last chance to get tickets for the Farmers Fair barbecue Saturday, April 30!

Ducats for the gala outdoor event can be purchased at the Ag Union for 70 cents each. Sales, however, are restricted to Ag students, faculty and alumni of Ag college due to a limit on the number that can be handled at the barbecue.

The barbecue will begin at 5:30 p. m., April 30, immediately after the rodeo and open houses. The pit will be lighted at a rally following the Cotton and Denim dance on Friday evening, April 29. There will be singing and some skits to depict Saturday's activities during the Friday evening rally.

"Unionology," edited by Lee Best, with Frank Jacobs and Betty Aasen handling writing and art work, has recently achieved the acclaim of the National Association of College Unions, and is being sent to all Unions, along with the 1949 convention materials.

During the past year, these publications and other Union news releases have been co-ordinated through the work of the publicity and hospitality committee.

INCLUDED IN the advance form are lists of clearly defined requirements for graduation so that none will be overlooked.

On the front of the form is a graph to be filled out with the student's freshman examination scores so that he may have a profile of his attributes.

When registration time approaches each semester, all the student needs to do will be to appear before the assignment committee to OK his schedule.

IF AT ANY time the student wishes to make a change in the courses he wishes to take or his major or minor, he will see his advisor for help in changing his curriculum. A new form sheet will be made out then with the changes made.

The plan was worked out by a committee of Arts and Science professors, headed by Dr. William H. Werkmeister of the philosophy department.

"We think this plan will save time for both students and advisors," said Dean Charles H. Oldfather of the Arts and Science college.

General registration procedure was revealed yesterday by Dr. Floyd Hoover, assistant registrar.

Appointment cards for registration will be issued next week from Temporary building B "as usual," according to Dr. Hoover.

SENIORS WHO have earned 89 hours to date may pick up their cards Monday, April 25. Juniors with 53 to 88 hours will be issued cards Tuesday and Wednesday, April 26 and 27. Sophomores, students with 27 to 52 hours and not in the Junior Division, will appear Thursday, April 28.

Junior Division students may get their appointment cards Friday, April 29.

Junior students whose surnames begin with A-L will receive their slips on Tuesday. Those whose names start with M-Z must apply on Wednesday. Juniors have been divided because they comprise the largest group. Numbers will be divided between the two groups so that the last group will not be slighted on the appointment numbers.

IN FIGURING hours earned, the courses being carried at present by the student do not count. Names of all students eligible for registration that day will be on a list for checking by the assignment committee.

A student who is not an official junior or senior but has proof that he has earned the necessary hours may register if he presents credit book, grade reports or evaluation slips.

All students must present their identification cards when applying for an appointment card. These will be punched in the lower right hand corner.
