

Herald Editor to Dedicate Henry Schulte Memorial . . . on May 20

One of the features of the Big Seven Track and Field Championships to be held here May 20-21 will be the dedication of the Field House as the Henry Schulte Memorial. The ceremonies will be held prior to the final event on Saturday afternoon. Frederick Ware, managing editor of the Omaha World-Herald and a close friend of the late coach Schulte, will make the dedicatory address as a plaque is revealed.

COACH SCHULTE was a member of the University athletic staff from 1919 until his retirement in 1938. During this time, he was credited with one of the greatest "missionary" jobs ever accomplished at Nebraska. It was through his efforts that track became, in every sense, a major sport. He also assisted coaching football under Fred Dawson and Dana Bible, helping to weld some of the greatest combinations comparable to the forward walls of the University's "point-a-minute" teams on which Schulte played as an undergraduate.

According to the Nebraska Alumnus, in an article published upon his retirement in 1938, "he was more than just a great guy—he was a tradition; a great tradition. He probably contributed more to athletics at the University and in the state than any other person."

COACH SHULTE was known nationally for his fine coaching. He was in charge of the U. S. team in the decathlon in the 1928 Olympics, and was responsible for having two National AAU tournaments brought to Lincoln.

Schulte was famed for his emphasis on teamwork, for, rather than depending on upon one two fleet-footed members of a team, he depended upon the team as a unit. It was his ambition to have a team that could score in every event in a contest, and this ambition was realized in 1937 when the Nebraska team established a world's record by achieving points in every event in the Big Six championships.

BESIDE BEING an outstanding coach Schulte was an advisor for the Innocents society, and established the "N" club Scholarship award.

The Innocents began laying the groundwork for the dedication a year ago. They, along with the Corn Cobs and Tassels and the University band will participate in the ceremonies.

The plaque is to show a head of Schulte, surmounted by the inscription, "Dedicated to the spirit of Nebraska as exemplified in Henry F. Schulte," and underneath the head the words "Friend of Youth—Builder of Men."

A bound volume of letters from associates and friends of the coach will be sent to Mrs. Schulte by the Innocents. Individuals who wish to submit letters for the volume are requested to send them to Innocents Society, Student Union, University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

History Prof To Travel to War Areas

Dr. Eugene N. Anderson, history professor at the University, has been selected by the War department in cooperation with the American Council of Learned societies to make a study of teaching and research in Germany and Austria.

He will leave for Washington early in May and spend about three months in Germany before he rejoins the University staff in the fall.

HIS STUDY will be part of the effort to re-establish an exchange of students and teaching data between American and German universities in subjects such as history, literature, philosophy, languages and the arts.

According to Anderson, the program is included in the general plan for the re-education of the German people in democratic thinking. His report will be used by the American Military government in Germany.

Dr. Anderson was a member of the 13-member commission that visited Germany shortly after the war and outlined the general policy for re-education. During the war, he served in the Office of Strategic Services and the State department.
