

Can't Kill the College Paper Confidently Says 1912 'Rag'

"In colleges and universities today, the college paper is the one institution which cannot be killed."

The October 4, 1912 issue of The Daily Nebraskan was positive on this point and earnest in its explanation of the newspaper's place at the University.

"When the last freshman has been hazed, when the last sophomore has been flunked, when the last junior has made his promenade, and when the last lone-some senior is finally married, historians will commence to search for something to say in favor of those who at one time held a place in the destinies of the race. They will examine archives to find any possible gems of literature. They will dig about the ruins of universities and colleges in any attempt to discover any good traits and characteristics of the former inhabitants. They will work for long years to find cause for giving the once respected student a place in history.

"BUT THEY will search in vain, their efforts will be wasted, until some day the last discouraged historian will find a disintegrated-looking volume, clumsy in form and poorly printed, hardly distinguishable from the clinging debris—and he will hold in his hand a file of the college paper. At one glance the heart of the old fellow will commence to jolt a little faster, the second look will call forth an exultant cough, and at the third turn of a page the place of the student in history will be secure.

"In colleges and universities today the college paper is the one institution which cannot be killed. It may be on the verge of bankruptcy, its promoters may be expelled from school and the editor may have to run to preserve his life, and yet the old paper still comes out on time. The students may not subscribe for it, the advertisers may refuse to give longer to charity, and the paper may be the object of universal ridicule, but there is always some fellow who will work all night, flunk in classes, and give his last cent to keep the paper alive.

"OF COURSE college papers have their fat years like other institutions. Their editors do not always need a shave, the business manager is occasionally seen in a new suit, and frequently a body of students will be induced to subscribe quite generally. Sometimes the college paper is even in good repute. Its poetry is endured for a season with no show of violence, its swollen ideas concerning its own importance are charitably accepted.

coming year. She was introduced by retiring president, Gene Berg.

Miss Rosenbaum will be assisted in directing Red Cross activities on the campus by Marilyn Stark, vice-president; Jean Fenster, secretary; Bob Mosher, treasurer; and 12 operating board members.

BOARD MEMBERS revealed at the birthday party included: Historian, Harry Stalker; Publicity, Norma Chubbuck; Motor Corps, Lois Rodin; First Aid, Toni Fleming; Special Projects, Don Cooper and Frank Jacobs; Institutions, Anne Figge, Carla Renner, George Wilcox and Gloria Larsen; Student Adviser, Gene Berg.

The officers were selected by retiring board members in a secret election Wednesday afternoon. Results were made known for the first time at the anniversary celebration, the unit's first annual mass meeting.

THE UNIT was duly "christened" Thursday night with the presentation of its charter by Harold Hill, Lancaster County chapter director. Its purpose was revealed by a double reading of the Red Cross Articles of Faith by Berg and Miss Rosenbaum.

The annual report of the group was presented in a skit called "Bringing Up Baby." A resume of all Red Cross activities on the campus was given. The skit revolved around the unit birthday cake with one candle which was given to a board member only after he had approved his worth to Red Cross for the year.

Cokes and brownies were served to the guests in the Union ballroom.

THE GOVERNMENT expects this week-end to come into possession of a major share of the wheat in the United States through its price support program. In fact, agriculture officials said there is a chance that privately-owned wheat may become so scarce before the new crop comes in that the government may have to sell some of its big wheat stock back on the market.
