

Meet Students Behind Your '49 Farmers Fair

By Arlen Beam

People often wonder what it takes to put a Farmers Fair over. It takes a lot of work, and some good leadership. Here is a brief sketch of the Farmers Fair board and what they are doing.

Don Smith is the manager of the Fair and it is his job to oversee all the activities of the Fair. Don has been very active in campus activities all through his four years of school. He is a past member of the agronomy judging team, and retiring president of Alpha Gamma Rho, member of Tri-K, and Alpha Zeta. Don was a chairman of the barbecue committee last year.

IN CHARGE of the publicity committee we find Phyllis Ross and Don Knebel. Phyllis is a senior at Ag and is majoring in Home Economics. She is also a member of the Home Ec club, and a member of the Y.W.C.A. Don is an Ag junior who is majoring in Technical science. He is a member of Tri-K, Block and Bridle, and a former reporter for the Rag.

Harriet Moline, Sue Bjorklund, and Keith Arterburn are in charge of the open houses. All the departments are holding open house all day Saturday. Harriet is an Ag senior and is past president of Loomis Hall. Sue is a member of the Col-Agri-Fun board, and Phi Upsilon Omicron in addition to her Fair board duties. Arterburn who is president of Ag Men's Social Club is also a member of Block and Bridle.

AT THE HEAD of the rodeo committee is Bob Eggert. He was a member of the junior livestock judging team and is a member of Block and Bridle.

The women's program for Saturday afternoon is being directed by Eunice Jensen, a senior at the College of Agriculture.

Connie Crosby who is chairman of the Cotton and Denim dance on Friday night, is president of Phi Upsilon Omicron, secretary of Omicron Nu, and a member of the Col-Agri-Fun board.

Charles Athey is in charge of the parade and concessions. In addition to his Farmers Fair board position he is a member of Tri-K and Ag Men's Social Club.

Departments Plan Unique Displays

The departmental open house exhibits will open at 9:00 a. m. Saturday. The exhibits will be open all day Saturday, closing time is 6 p. m.

Displays, that are going to be presented by the various departments, include a show counter and retail display by the Meats department and a floral display exhibited by the Horticulture department.

The Foods and Nutrition group are planning an experimental cookery and frozen food demonstration during their open house. There will also be various displays on home furnishings and gadgets by the department.

Mr. Richard M. Bourne, Instructor in Economics; Mrs. Hedy S. Newmann, Instructor in Architecture; and Mr. Robert N. Coppel, Instructor in Journalism, will judge the exhibits.

JIM CURTIS DIGS IN with his spurs and hangs on as this bronc takes out from the chute with a determined lurch. Part of the large crowd at last year's rodeo can be seen in the background. Bleachers to accomodate 3,500 have been set up by the new permanent arena near the beef barns.

Agri View

By Don Knebel.

Students on Ag campus, staging their twenty-fifth annual Farmers Fair, have again promoted a tradition which is now well-established at the University.

The Fair, in the past one of the most important events on Ag campus, has two objectives: First, to stage a demonstration of agricultural activities in order that citizens of the state may become better acquainted with its functions. Secondly, to provide a community enterprise, managed and directed by students, which develops initiative, leadership and personality.

To the students who participate in the gala event a salute of recognition is due from the Fair Board. Although the activity requires the constant attention and efforts of all members of the Board, the students who "pitch in" make the Fair a success.

While working together, they have promoted spirit, both among the students themselves and the faculty. Their efforts will be directed toward tying the city campus closer to the ag campus. With this in mind each student has played an important role in setting the scene for the Fair of '49.

So, if looking for a week-end of gay festivity, the Aggies extend their hospitality to you—

Women's Meet To Feature Films

Films representing the various departments of Home Economics will be presented Saturday, April 30, for the women.

The films will be shown first Saturday morning beginning at 10 a. m. in room 321 of the Foods and Nutrition building. There will be a 5 minute interval between each film.

At 3:30 in the afternoon the films will be shown again. Those shown will include "Your U Shaped Kitchen," a film to show how conveniently arranged a modern kitchen can be. Another film called "Digestion of Foods" shows exactly what happens to your food as you eat it. The afternoon program will be over at 5:10.
