A Good Man Leaves . . .

Nebraska university will lose one of the country's leading physical education directors when Louis E. Means' resignation goes into effect. Mr. Means, who has been director of physical education and intramural sports here for the past four years, has announced that he will enter the sporting goods and television business in Los Angeles, Calif.

Mr. Means has done a great deal for the average man in the University who does not have time for varsity athletics. He has built a new and enlarged sports program which is one of the outstanding programs in the country. He has added new and more popular physical education courses which have resulted in greater enrollments. Several leading universities use his book, "Organization and Administration of Intramural Sports," as a text in their professional courses. Mr. Means has served as president of the Nebraska Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation, and he has served as chairman of several national and district professional organizations.

Not only has Mr. Means done much for the University's physical education program, but he has been a great help in assisting Nebraska communities in formulating and developing recreational programs.

Every male student in the University who has participated in intramural athletics is familiar with the friendly, helpful attitude which Mr. Means always possesses. He has never neglected to give a student help and advice when they are needed. And his fair play in connection with intramural games has gained him many friends.

Our thanks to you, Mr. Means, for your help and guidance here. We are certain that your new profession will be as successful as your work has been at the University.

Music Theory Students Give Original Numbers at Recital

Jack Snider's fine French horn playing helped make "Rondo," his wife's composition, pleasant to hear.

TWO VOCAL solos and one piano number were also included. Suzanne Koehler's airy "Song of the Milkmaid" was especially effective because it fitted her voice so well. The "Twenty-fifth Psalm" was given an excellent setting by Gwen McCormack. Lawrence Lee's piano solo, "Scherzo," was enough different from other selections of its type to be refreshing.

"Motet" by Ed Wells and "Missa in Honore Sancti Benedicti" by Frank Gorton, were skillfully written pieces of sacred music. Both were performed by the University madrigal singers.

If some of the first works seemed rather conventional, the last two assuredly were not. J. Dayton Smith's arrangement of "Crepuscule Phantasies" for oboe, two clarinets, French horn and baritone voice, was unusual and effective.

Norman Todenhoff's arrangement of a rather delicate Jean-Jean "Etude" for clarinet and string quartet was a fine one and the performance was outstanding.

BY EMILY HEINE
Original compositions by 12 students in classes of musical theory were well-received at the annual recital Wednesday.
Miss Elizabeth M. Tierney was chairman of the program, which included selections for trumpet, voice, violin, marimba, madrigal singers, piano, French horn and instrumental ensembles.

Roma Johnson's arrangement of Samuel's "A Carol" for string orchestra opened the program. Sweet and touching in its simplicity, the music was satisfying.

FOUR SOLOS for orchestral instruments were all good compositions, well-performed. Lewis Forney's trumpet solo proved itself well in character with its title, "Hungarian Fantasia." Kathleen Rorbe's "Serenata" for violin was lovely, haunting melody, which her fine musicianship kept from sounding syrupy.
"Rhapsody Trizane," Catherine Elliott's marimba solo was showy and far better listening than the dressed-up technical exercises usually performed on that instrument.

Student's Paper Wins M E Award

Keith Kittle, Engineering college senior, tied for first place in competition for technical engineering paper presented by students at the Region 8 meeting of student chapters of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

His subject was "Die Casting Design." Don Olson placed sixth with a paper on "Modern Trends in Locomotive Design."

Participating in the competition Saturday at Lawrence, Kas., were from Nebraska, Kansas State, Arkansas university, Oklahoma A. & M. and Oklahoma university. Co-winner with Kittle was Jack Williams of Oklahoma A. & M.
