

Old Soldier . . .

The scale model of the University's first building, University Hall, is shown above. The model was presented to the University by the class of 1897 at the Alumni's Round-Up luncheon on Saturday. A committee headed by J. V. Corttelyou of Lincoln secured plans and had the model made. Another active participant in the project was Miss Flora Bullock, secretary of the class.

The gift was presented to Chancellor Gustavson by Robert Manley, '97.

The scale model is done in soft wood. Each detail of the brick is etched on its surface. Campus old timers report that the replica is perfect in each detail with the exception of a flight of basement stairs which may have been added after its construction.

The replica will be encased in glass and put on display at a spot which has not yet been determined. Until its display time the model will be stored by the alumna office, although it is now the property of the university.

The structure, as it appears in the model, is remembered by few. Ever since its construction the old hall has been under going renovation. Its first major change came when its second and third floors were removed.

The building was condemned several times. Finally wooden braces were placed against its exterior walls. Last year it was declared unfit and torn down. At the time of its demise, U hall housed the modern language department and the school of journalism. Since then these departments have moved to Burnett Hall.

Girls' and Boys' Staters Conclude One Week's Training in Government

It's all over!

The week of training in government for approximately 500 high school boys and girls is nearly completed. Boys' Staters will return home tomorrow and Girls' Staters will leave the campus Sunday.

During their one-week session, the Staters have organized town and state governments, elected officers, and watched their own state's government in action. The preppers have watched the University in action, too.

A dance in the Union, a coke in the Crib and life in dorms and sorority houses have been part of the Staters week.

Boys' and Girls' State is sponsored annually by the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary. The students are selected by local posts from high school juniors.

While in Lincoln they are chaperoned by University personnel, Legion members and university students, who acted as counselors.
