

Fraternities Welcome Incoming Rushees

Wishnow Calls For Orchestra, Band Members

Openings still exist in both the university orchestra and band, Emanuel Wishnow, university orchestra director, has announced.

Wishnow disclosed that there is still need for qualified string players and violists. In addition, there are positions open for oboe and bassoon players. Anyone interested in trying out for any of these positions should talk to Wishnow.

Speaking for Don Lenz, university band director, Wishnow stated that positions for qualified oboe, bassoon and French horn players are still available to those who are interested and will qualify.

Students wishing to take advantage of these opportunities, have been invited to see either Wishnow or Lenz for interviews as soon as possible.

GETTING THINGS in shape for rush week are these members of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. Part of all fraternities' behind-the-scenes "clean up" period are such jobs as painting lawn chairs, washing windows, and sweeping off the doorstep...

...Rush week starts in earnest with rush parties such as this at the Alpha Tau Omega house. TV sets dotted the campus as special entertainment to "sell" rushees. Here, an ATO adjusts the dial of the house's new set to focus reception—and attention by the guests...

Reporter Call

To cope with the problem of covering news stories over the entire university campus, The Daily Nebraskan will need a large staff of reporters.

Students interested should contact Cub Clem, editor, in The Daily Nebraskan office as soon as possible.

*Students photographers who wish to work for The Daily Nebraskan should contact Clem or Hank Lammers, head photographer.

...It's all over. Having made up their mind, two rushees with Phi Kappa Psi pledge pins in their lapels move into their chosen house, with the aid of a new brother, Charles Oldfather, center. The pledges are Larry Franzen, left, and Larry Anderson, right.
