Looking For The Easy Way? Heed These Helpful Hints

By Fran Hanson.

Want good grades? No guarantee is given if you follow these hints, but it might help. New schemes are thought up and tried every fall, but HERE IT IS AT LAST—eight sure fire steps that lead to a successful college career!

1. Look alert. Take notes eagerly. (If you look at your watch, don't stare at it unbelievably and shake it to see if it has stopped.)
2. Nod frequently and murmur. "How very true," or "Why that's exactly what I believe." (And look sincere.)
3. Take newspaper clippings to class that deal with the professor's subject. (This demonstrates fiery interest and gives the prof something to say to the class. If you can't find clippings dealing with his subject, bring any clippings you can find,—he thinks everything deals with his subject anyway.)
4. Laugh at his jokes. (You CAN tell when he cracks one. If he looks up from his notes and smiles expectantly, he has told a joke!)

5. Ask for outside reading. (You don't have to read it, just ask for it.)

6. If you must sleep, sit in back and arrange to be called at the end of the hour. (It creates an unfavorable impression if the rest of the class has left and you sit there alone, dozing.)

7. Be sure the book you read during the lecture looks like a book from the course. (If you do math in psyc class or psyc in math class, match the books for size and color.)

8. Ask any questions you think he can answer. (Conversely avoid announcing that you have found the answer to a question he could not answer, and in your reader at that!)

Paste this clipping inside your freshman beanie, and if you're an upperclassman, wear one so you can do it. Whether you do any work outside of these eight suggestions is strictly optional.

Union Lends Art To NU Students

Through purchase of 49 paintings, the Union Picture Lending library has given any student a chance to hang their favorite painting in their room.

The Picture Lending library has had a literal "run on the bank" with over two-thirds of the pictures available loaned out for the semester. Through donations, mostly from Kosmet Klub, the system has satisfied many a student's desire for culture in their room.

Started a year ago, the Library has copies of many of the masters: Grant Wood, Van Gogh, Dufy Picasso, etc. Students may keep any painting for a semester free of charge. Any art lover or enthusiast should contact the Union office for selection of their painting.

GOLD'S . . . Third Floor

Campus Chatter

BY POOCHIE REDIGER

Fashion-minded Nebraska coeds returned to campus with a colorful array of fall clothes for the coming football season including everything from party dresses to class room casuals.

Out-of-Doors

Definitely prepared for those football games, Annie Lueder will brave the cold in the season's newest—a camel-colored, wool suit. The double-breasted jacket features a smartly belted back and the collar which can be worn up or down.

The newest thing in rainy-weather wear is being worn by Marge Arndt—the little boy slicker raincoat with a fisherman's hat. Featured directly from Mademoiselle, Marge brightens up the dreariest day in a yellow version of the slicker and hat.

Steady Wear

Classroom wear specials sweaters and skirts of the same color, or two-tone jersey blouses and skirts. Mary Hiseher keeps away the morning blues when she wears a pink cashmere sweater with a matching wool skirt. The straight lines of the skirt are offset by large pockets at the hips.

Shirley Sidles steps brightly from class in her sponge-soled red shoes that match her outfit of red flared skirt, black jersey blouse and red silk scarf worn at the neckline.

According to Vogue—corduroy is in this fall. Taking advantage of the situation, Betty Green falls into step in a dark brown belted-back jacket and forest green skirt. Offsetting the costume is a white, man-tailored shirt with small pin tucks on either side in front.

Jeanne Kain also has been seen in a multi-colored "Joseph's jacket" weskit with a matching plain-colored skirt.

Party Wear

Jean Leadly is dressing up in a two-piece dress of pink and gold metallic material. The jacket has a new high neckline and is nipped in at the waist with a wide band dipping in back. The narrow skirt keeps in line with the striking plainness of the design.

Pep Groups

More red and white uniforms will be seen around campus when the new pep section gets organized. The girls will wear red skirts and white emblem sweaters, similar to Tassel uniforms. The coed yell squad members will cheer in new white wool skirts, styled straight from the waist and working out into a wide flare. Their outfits are completed by the usual red sweaters and jackets.

No Key Trouble,

A hole in the wall—that's hardly an exaggeration in describing the All University Fund's new office.

AUF board meetings and business will be carried on this semester in the unused stairway north of the Crib entrance, around the corner and parallel to the Book Nook of the Union.

Trophy Or No Trophy . . .

The student body, more especially the organized houses and clubs who have participated in intramural activities, are pretty miffed at the treatment they received early this week from the department of intramural athletics.

Aside from eliminating a few of the popular sports, the department also saw fit to do away with Jack Best competition. Under the planned system, trophies will be awarded for each sport, but cumulative points for the entire school year will not be kept and no Jack Best trophy, symbol of intramural supremacy, will be given.

Unless we miss our guess, intramural participation will suffer. Maybe this is what the powers want. If that is the case, they might just as well do away with the entire intramural program, the purpose of which should be to get as many students as possible on the playing fields.

The spirit of competition has always played a large part in the intramural program. Without it, intramurals may become only an incidental part of university life.

The social groups interested have already begun making plans for a year-long grading system of their own for a supremacy trophy. Maybe this stimulation will keep intramurals alive.

Students deserve a better deal. And it seems the only way they can get a better deal is to take Jack Best into their own hands.

YW Members to Hold Annual Rendezvous This Afternoon

As a part of the upperclass membership drive, the annual YW fall rendezvous will be held in Ellen Smith hall this afternoon from 3-5 p.m.

The rendezvous, held twice yearly, is to acquaint new YW members with the opportunities offered in the YW for work and service. New members will meet with the cabinet members who will explain the various committees and commission groups.

Varied Activities

A variety of activities are offered, ranging from a social service tour, where members visit various social institutions, to a knitting and discussion group. Included are topics on religion, politics, and philosophy.

Those who attend will see a skit centering around a human machine presented. It will be given twice during the afternoon, at 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. Refreshments will also be served.

Drive to End Oct. 3

The YW membership drive, which is held at the same time as the YM drive, will continue until Oct. 3. The YM-YW groups are aiming for a record active membership this year.

According to Ruth Shinn, YW executive secretary, this year's drive will emphasize participation by the YW in all phases of campus activity, as well as interest in local and national affairs.

The membership fee this year is $1.00 a semester or $1.50 for the entire year. It has been estimated that $7.00 is spent on each member of the Y groups. The Community Chest contributes a part of the remaining money. The rest is raised by students who sell various things during the year.

Dean Lambert Tours Africa

Dr. W. V. Lambert, Dean of the College of Agriculture, is now touring Africa with a group of American agriculture experts, according to reports from his office.

Dean Lambert left Lincoln July 4, for London. He was accompanied by Dr. M. A. McCall, assistant chief of the bureau of plant industry, soils and agricultural engineering with the U.S.D.A. in Washington, and Dr. Arthur Cline professor of soil science at Cornell University.

These men were requested by the British government to study agricultural conditions in the British colonies in east, central, and west Africa. They are an official "Economic Cooperation Administration" group.

Dean Lambert's tour includes stops in Kenya colony, The Union of South Africa, Nigeria and the Gold Coast. When Dean Lambert's trip thru Africa is completed he will go back to London, returning to the U.S.A. from there.

He is expected back in Lincoln sometime during the first part of October.

Builders Meddle With Melick

For the second time in a week, M. J. Melick has a new position in University of Nebraska Builders.

Miss Melick is now to serve as Art and Publicity chairman of the campus service organization. Earlier in the week she was named chairman of the New Projects committee of the group, to replace Jim Williams, who was not expected to return to school.

Last night, Williams attended Builders meeting with the news that he was back for his third year at the University. With a sigh, Miss Melick volunteered to give up her new job for the Art and Publicity post, left vacant when Jo Frederickson did not return to Nebraska university.

Miss Melick had been appointed to the Builders board last spring as Editor of Scarlet and Cream, the Builders' monthly newspaper for high school students. She gave up that position this fall to Dick Kuska, appointed to the board to fill a vacancy created by the decision of Ginny Soltow not to return to school this fall.
