

Huskers . . .

 into the waiting arms of Means.
 The rest of the second stanza was nip and tuck with South Dakota scoring the only other touchdown of the period. When the half ended, South Dakota was on its own 39-yard line. Jim Harvey, 195-pound star Sodak end, intercepted a pass from badly rushed Fran Nagle as the gun sounded.

Coyote Line Stubborn
 The stubborn Coyote line weakened in the second half and the Husker forward wall began opening wide holes, especially in the SoDak left tackle.

Jerry Ferguson, Scotsbluff speedster, took advantage of one of those gaps in the Dakota line when he sped 55 yards untouched for a score. Fergie had no blocking past the secondary on his jaunt.

Another hole in the left side of the Coyote forward wall gave Don Bloom the opportunity to make his second touchdown of the day. Bloom grasped the opportunity and sped 11 yards to score. Britt converted for a 27-6 score.

Wiegand Passes for Score
 The final touchdown of the day came in the dying seconds of the fourth quarter. Ray Magsaman, Albion end, grabbed a pass from Del Wiegand in the end zone with two seconds left in the game.

The lone SoDak score came in the second stanza. Fumbles by Nebraska and a hard-charging Coyote line backed the Huskers to their own two-yard line. Ferguson's punt from the end-zone was downed on the Coyote 22-yard line. On the very next play, Van Arsdale took a lateral from Andre and passed to Harvey Hanson. Hanson took the ball between Kenny Fischer and Bob Schneider, who thought they had him down, and squirmed his way to the goal-line.

Backs Impressive
 Carl Andre, Jack Van Arsdale, and Howard Blumhart provided a flashy backfield for the Coyotes. Van Arsdale's passing and punting were especially impressive. South Dakota averaged 40 yards per punt to Nebraska's 22. The SoDak total would have been greater but for a partially blocked punt by Damkroger.

A pair of flashy Coyote ends made life miserable for passer Fran Nagle all day. Nagle completed only five passes, one of which came in the first half. Del Wiegand completed two passes in his brief stint at quarterback.

Ron Clark Passes
 Nebraska unwrapped another passer Saturday. Ron Clark took a lateral from Nagle and faked an end run. He tore for the sidelines behind a host of Husker blockers and heaved a pass to Magsaman who had to leap high to catch the ball. The play covered 26 yards.

Nebraska's potent running attack was needed badly because their vaunted passing game was bogged down by alert Coyote backs. Don Bloom, Ron Clark, Bill Mueller and Jerry Ferguson each turned in commendable running games.

Rich Yost, Omaha fullback, was also good for consistent gains. Yost's hard charging play as a halfback merited a switch to the fullback post last week.

Frosh Add Color
 Adding color to a fine football afternoon was the newly added freshmen pep group. The frosh were formed in a big red N with white background and a red border. They aided the rest of the card section in forming a series of card flashes showing the shooting of the Coyote by the Husker hunter.

Husker Machine Needs Oiling Prior To Saturday's Battle With Minnesota

Fans attending the South Dakota game with expectations of seeing Nebraska's new quarterback, Fran Nagle, put on a dazzling aerial show went home disappointed Saturday afternoon.

Nagle was rushed badly on almost every occasion as he dropped back to pass, and was thrown for losses several times. Hitting only one of seven in a closely played first half, Fran was forced to throw hurriedly and a very alert Coyote secondary was knocking down his pitches.

Nagle Fading Too Deeply?
 It appeared at times that Nagle was fading too deeply behind the protecting cup set up by his blocking backs. He was being hit by ends and tackles who were skirting his interference. When Wiegand entered the game he was fading only a few yards behind the line and was getting much better protection.

Brilliant Catches.
 On the brighter side of the passing attack was the receiving. Several brilliant catches were made in the second half. Dick Regier made a diving catch of a Nagle pass in the third quarter for a Husker first down, and Ray Magsamen took one over his shoulder in the fourth quarter deep in South Dakota territory for one of the games' most sparkling plays.

Union Committees To Tab Members

Announcement of Union committee members will be made next week, according to Gene Grimm, Union Activities director.

All students who signed up for the committees during the past week will then be notified.

Union committees will be small, with specific administrative responsibilities, said Mrs. Grimm. In addition, there will be an "activities pool" of workers who will be assigned to work on certain events from time to time.

After several months of trial work as a worker in the "activities pool," a member may become a regular committeeman.

Workers will be assigned to work on as many projects as they are interested in. Definite appointments will be made on the basis of work, enthusiasm and responsibility.

Kansas State Headline Might Cause Confusion

Headline in Kansas State Collegian: "Expectant Grads to Meet." Grads expecting new bars, bonuses, babies, or what? Further reading in the story, however, gives the prosaic meaning of students who expect to graduate. What a letdown!

2. Means, Ferguson, Magsamen, Points after touchdown; Britt 2, (placekicks). Officials: Ronald Gibbs, St. Thomas, referee; Dick Pulliam, Grand Island, umpire; Bennie Beckerman, Iowa, field judge; Stuart Borenford, Colorado, head linesman.

Varsity and Frosh fall tennis practice is now underway. Practice time is from four to six, Monday through Friday. All those who are still interested, contact Bob Slezak at the courts or Room 104 of the P. E. building.

On the ground the Cornhuskers piled up 417 yards and 16 first downs. The blocking in the line was good with gaping holes opened up for the hard-running backs.

Downfield Blocking Poor.
 The downfield blocking was much poorer than that exhibited in last Saturday's contest with the freshman eleven. The majority of the Scarlet's gains were between five and eight yards, and only the running ability of the backs made possible the longer jaunts.

V. Arsdale Top-flight Performer
 Individual standouts for the Husker eleven were backs Don Bloom, Bill Mueller and Ron Clark; linemen Walt Spellman, Fred Hawkins and Darwin Salestrom.

But probably the top candidate for player of the day honors was Van Arsdale of the Dakotans. Van Arsdale was the sparkplug of the undermanned Coyote squad. A real triple-threat, his punting kept the Huskers at bay quite a bit of the time. Harvey Hanson, 198-pound right end was the other South Dakota hero, both offensively and defensively.

Another department showing weaknesses was punting. South D. eta gained on virtually every exchange of kicks, aided by the punting of Jack Van Arsdale.

One of halfback Gerald Ferguson's boots went out of bounds a scant five yards from the line of scrimmage. The punt averages showed the Coyotes averaging 40 yards per try against 22 for Nebraska.

Jim Elliot, 155-pound quarterback from Mitchell, Louis Roper, 180 pound Lincoln quarterback, and Bob Miller, 210 guard also from Lincoln, reported to Hanscom Friday.

Any student interested in becoming a manager for the various intercollegiate teams at the University of Nebraska should meet with Pat Patterson Monday at 5 p.m. at the N Club room in the Coliseum.

Frosh Divided Into Four Teams

Coach H. H. "Ike" Hanscom sent his freshmen squad through rugged drills Friday in an effort to pick four full teams.

He emphasized these teams are subject to change at any time since he now has 11 men to work with. The frosh players showing the most individual improvement will move to the first team.

Minnesota Line Averages at 216; Breaking Record

Nebraska will meet one of the heaviest, if not the heaviest, Minnesota lines in the Gophers' history when Bernie Bierman brings his team to Huskerland Saturday.

Bierman will be able to field this potent forward wall, averaging 216 pounds: Jerry Mitchell and Jack Zupetz, 195 pound ends; Leo Nomellini, 255 pounds and Jerry Ekberg, 228, tackles; Harry Hendrickson, 200 and John Lundin, 190 pounds, guards; Clayton Tonnemaker, 246 pound center.

The Gopher backfield also boasts some huskies. Bierman could use three fullbacks weighing over 195 pounds. They are Dave Skrien, 200, Frank Kuzma, 195, and Ken Beiersdorf, 195.

Halfbacks Bill Bye, Ralph McAllister, and Bill Elliot all weigh 180 and over. Bye is the speedy back who has wrecked Nebraska's defense the last two years.

Dick Anonsen is one of the heaviest quarterbacks the Huskers will meet this year. Anonsen weighs 180, unusually heavy for a quarterback.

Leo Nomellini and Clayton Tonnemaker have been picked by many forecasters to make All-American this year. Last season Nomellini was chosen to come all-star teams.

Although Bierman has 28 lettermen returning this fall, he will depend greatly on sophomores. Twin guards, George and John Holm, George Hudak and Dick Gregofy, left halfbacks, are second year men called on by Bierman.
