

Friday Ends Auto Stickers

"Students are again reminded that Friday is the deadline to get their parking stickers for this semester," Police Sgt. John Farrow said today.

University police will be on duty on the mall in front of the Social Science building from 8 a. m. to 4 p. m. on both Thursday and Friday to issue stickers. All students who wish to use University parking must have a sticker and permit.

Those students who have been observed throwing away permits are reminded that permits found thrown away will be sent directly to Dean Thompson. Students should also note that no parking is allowed in the center of parking lots.

New Instructor Joins Naval Unit

Lt. (JG) Daniel T. Wieland, Jr., Dalhart, Tex., is the new instructor in ordnance and gunnery with the University Naval ROTC, succeeding Lt. Cmdr. Donald Martin who completed his duty assignment here last spring.

Lieutenant Wieland is a graduate of the Naval academy. Immediately after completing his studies there in 1945, he became a gunnery officer aboard a destroyer in the Pacific, where he remained in the China-Japan area until the summer of 1949.

Students that the Council office, 305 Union, will be open to grant permits from 2-3 on Thursday and 1-2 on Friday.

The office will be open from 2-3 Monday thru Friday after this week to issue permits for new cars.

Palladian Party To Feature Orient

Soft lantern lights, faint odors of incense, and a kimono clad reception committee will greet guests at the Palladian's party next Saturday evening at 8:30 p. m. in 301 Palladian hall, Temple building.

The oriental atmosphere will prevail throughout the evening. Moving pictures depicting Chinese life and customs will be shown and Chinese games will be played. It is hoped that the program will acquaint guests and members of the group with the social customs of China. The program will conclude with the ancient custom of tea drinking.

Business Staff for Datebook Selected

Business staff members of the Builders' Calendar, the 1950 edition of the memorandum and engagement book, have been named by Nancy Porter, editor.

Bill Dugan will serve as general chairman of all Calendar sales. He will be assisted by: Jan Lindquist, local sales at bookstores and downtown stores; Mickie Fike, student sales; Kent Axtell, faculty sales; Jan Huffard, alumni sales, and Janet Dallam and Mary Lou Graham, special events chairmen.

The Calendar will be on sale about Oct. 15, said Porter today. They will include campus scenes and two page montages of famous Nebraskans.

This will be the second Calendar published by Builders, campus service organization. Last year's book was both a campus and

Coed Counselors Offer 'Coke Week'

Most of the "little sisters" on campus have been getting better acquainted with their Coed Counselor "big sisters" this week.

The reason? Coed Counselors inaugurated a "coke week" campaign for freshmen women in which they meet their big sisters for one or two cokes.

This gives them a chance to discuss their problems concerning University life, and to meet new students.

The organization has tried to contact all freshman women but a few have been missed. If those persons would like to be assigned to a "big sister," they should contact Dorothy Bergens, telephone 3-1490.

alumni success, commented Miss Porter.
