To All Independents:

During the past year there has been much controversy over the place of the unaffiliated student on the campus. I and others like me feel that it is time for the unaffiliated students to gather in a strong, well-organized group to combat a number of critical problems.

First there is the question of student representation in such bodies as the former student council. Independent students must have a voice that can be heard!

Secondly the realization that a large number of students have very little or no social life presents a serious challenge which can only be met by the students themselves. We must have sufficient social recreation.

Next we come to intramural sports—at present a Greek monopoly. Independent students need dozens of teams in every sport in order to fulfill the objective of the intramural program: To give every student a chance to participate in at least one sport during each school year.

There are other such problems, but these are enough to make at least one point clear: Independents must organize, not in small groups, but in one major organization in order to successfully solve their own problems.

Now let us look at an organization which is tailored to the exact specifications we need. Already this group is backed solidly by sixteen smaller organizations as well as several hundred students; but this is not enough. This group needs the support of each and every unaffiliated student on the campus in order to function with maximum efficiency.

How about it Independents, are you going to sit back and watch while some of your fellow students have all the fun and satisfaction, or are we all going out and build ourselves an organization to be proud of—one that will represent all of us?

And the name of this organization: INDEPENDENT STUDENT'S ASSOCIATION.

Campus Chatter

Hattie Mann now holds the record of being chosen the first "queen" of 1949. A Resident of the Women's Dorm, she was elected "Hello Girl" at the BABW dance Friday night. Couples seen at the annual affair included Mary Chase and Keith Arterburn, Gene Robinson and Beverly Smith.

Probably one of the biggest rallies of the year, the pre-Minnesota rally Friday night more or less ended out at King's. In the snake-dance that covered the floor in a series of circles, couples seen were Sonny Menk and Jan Nutzman, George Wilcox and Pat Nolan, and Jack DeWulf and Mary Ellen Schroeder.

Marilyn Legge helped pin-mate John Cullen celebrate his birthday at King's Friday night. Also having a good time were Pat Lannon and Bill Bock, especially since they had another weekend date to look forward to.

Dancing to the music of Will Back at the Pike were Bob Berkshire and Nancy Moore, pin-mates Torchy Rediger and Bud Gerhardt, Louise McDill and Dub Newberg, and Laverna Acker and Bill Olson.

Football fans turned out en masse for Dad's day. After the usual run of game, open houses, and hour dances, a few sprightly college people still felt apt enough to go to a couple of house parties on campus. Besides the usual Theta aggregation, Susie Storz came down from Omaha to go to the Phi Psi get-together Saturday night with Buzz Howard. Also at the party were Larry Anderson and DG Dee Riddell.

It was just a little cool at the Sigma Chi hayride. In spite of early fall weather, a good crowd turned out. Among the hayriders, Jim Van Burgh and Jan Rymann, Vayden Anderson and Sarah Fulton.

Special release—Hattie Mann is not only the first queen of 1949, but she also got pinned Saturday night. The fellow—Dick Miller, TKE.

Going steady—Bob Hinde and Barbara Drost.

Announcements about campus activities.

They asked us to say that any student organization that has such an announcement are invited to bring them to KFOR and they will be glad to air them. "Seen on Campus," 10:30 Mon. KFOR.

Incidentally, about as near as we can figure, Jo Jen Loder should be the Simon's mystery girl next week. That's purely a guess, or rather let us say a prediction. Just call us "Drear."

More good news! The R. D. (radio department) will be doing a show from 9:30 to 9:45 p.m. every Tuesday over KOLN. The late word is that it's sort of a campus roundup. We'll have more on that later on.

Well he's back again this year, and since he is, we might just as well put in a word for him, The incomparable Dougdale, Charles that is, makes with the chatter and discs every Tuesday night at 10:30 on KFOR. It's "Dug's Diggins" through the courtesy of Johnny Johnsen's Nebraska Book Store. The kid's great.

Those among you who do not suffer the malady known as eight o'clocks might try alumnus John Carson's show at 8:15 every morning Monday through Friday over WOW. Most of us remember John as the only man ever to enter the Co-ed Follies legally.

With Tongue In Cheek

By Cub Clem

On the Omaha World-Herald's sport page Monday morning there was a letter to Sports Editor Floyd Olds by a benighted soul who evidently fancied himself something of a football fan.

Roughly quoted, he said that if the Cornhuskers lose to Iowa State and Colorado this year, Nebraska might just as well drop intercollegiate football. I don't think I could be sued for libel if I observed that what he said was just plain stupid.

Statements like that from Nebraska "fans" were one of the biggest reasons this University's football teams did so poorly after the war. They put the coaches, and the players, on the spot with little justification.

We think, and certainly hope, that the Huskers will beat both Iowa State and Colorado. This is beside the point. If the coaches and the team do their best, it's good enough for us.

If they don't, then and only then is the proper time for Nebraska fandom to begin exerting pressure.

Speakers Honor Rural Ec Dean

Approximately 200 people attended a dinner at the Union recently in honor of Dr. H. Clyde Filley, who retired Sept. 1, as head of the University's rural economics department.

Five speakers paid tribute to the service of the veteran rural economist to the people of Nebraska and to the nation. Charles Marshall, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, said men may gain prominence thru activities, thru service or thru being an outstanding personality "Dr. H. Clyde Filley," said Marshall, "achieved prominence thru a combination of all three."

Dr. Clarence E. McNeill, chairman of the university's economics department, spoke of Dr. Filley as an "outstanding cooperator." He said the professor is a great believer in business cooperation as well as in human relations.

Dr. L. B. Snyder presented Dr. Filley a gift of a chime clock on behalf of the rural economics department.

Fans Favor the 'Itty Bitty' Fish

Cornhusker's dead—Daily Nebraskan is looking poor—Cornshucks?—favored to win the race to the gurgling finish.

That's the sad story as seen through the fish bowl in the Editor's office Monday.

In commemoration of the past editors of the three campus publications, the members of the Daily Nebraskan staff increased their happy family recently by the addition of "three little fishes," which could be seen swimming around in their glass castle in the "Rag" office.

But alas, Cornhusker gave up the maddening race of survival in that den of activity and was found floating on surface, cold but happy,—dead as a mackerel.

May Daily Nebraskan and Cornshucks live to finish the race, while the Cornhusker staff wears a black band of mourning for its "long gone" representative.

Nebraska Writers Fete Anniversary

The silver anniversary meeting of the Nebraska Writers Guild will be held in Omaha Oct. 8.

Attending will be Dr. Esther S. Anderson of the geography department, who is secretary-treasurer of the Guild.

At the 25th anniversary luncheon, Prof. Robert P. Crawford of the University, fifth president, second secretary-treasurer of the Guild, will address the group on the "Return of the Pilgrim." Prof. Crawford served with O.W.I. during World War II.

A Victory—A Celebration

Well, it worked. They won. Kansas State students had a holiday following their 27-13 defeat of Colorado.

The student council at K-State had passed a resolution requesting a student holiday the Monday following the school's first Big Seven conference win and it received official sanction. This was followed by a K-State win Saturday and a student holiday Monday.

We sat in on the cutting of Simon's "Seen on Campus" last Monday. Imagine just sitting and looking at Sue Kent for thirty minutes. It's nice work.

Of course, Bondarin was there too, but he's not my type. Those two kids are doing a fine job with that program. They have instituted a new service known as the "Calendar of Events." This includes business and social announcements about campus activities.
