Dear Editor:

I'm afraid I can't make you see how I feel about them—how (I know) many of us feel about them. But, let me try.

I glory in their coming!

Bells symbolize the vibrancy of youth, the pulse of living, aspirations, the spiritual, the urge of idealism. We need them to summon us to think of other things than daily tasks and burdens. Why should they ring only on Sunday?

Ours is a utilitarian campus.

How completely lacking it is in the material things which have as their objective the pleasurable!

Why should not our campus be fitted to educate (e-duco) the more esthetic side of those young enough yet to learn?

Why should I blind myself to the beautiful by holding before my selfish eyes another use which I could have made of their price? An added instrument to my kit of educational gear? You and I could think of a hundred and one more "useful" (?) things! But, what is utility?

I paraphrase Lecomte du Nouy. The "useful" thing is defensive—its primary purpose is the perpetuation of the status quo. That which is outside of the mere utility range, a "useless" (?) thing, is that which leads us forward and upward.

Put in the mathematical terms of the engineer, we need to expend some energy for acceleration, over and above that required to maintain progress. Our velocity will increase only if we have an additional dv/dt.

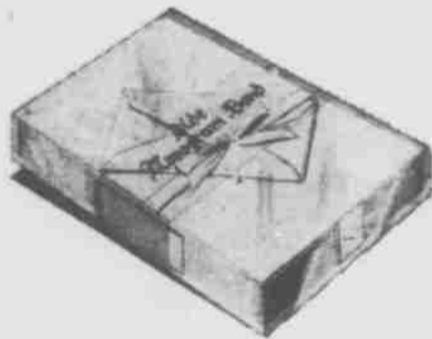

Yes, I glory in the coming of The Bells. May we have more "useless" things brought to us, until thoughtful idealism takes some manner of hold upon us all!

O. J. Ferguson.

Campus Chatter

Something new has been added in the way of serenades. Ye old sorority prexies did a pretty good job under the able leadership of Pat Nordin. From the viewpoint of the passer-by, Wanda Young and Gloria Ferschtman got a rousing welcome home by their sorority sisters. General comment of prexies after their return home: "Don't ask us what we did, just do what we say from now on."

Retraction: Fig Flagg is NOT an old-timer, he is one of the more prominent has-beens. (We hope this retraction raises your dating average back to normal, Fig).

Bud Schberg made a trip to Colorado U. last weekend to see Theta Mary Lou Marnaby. Sunds pretty important. Colorado also holds an interest for Jack Burley. He gave his pin to his favorite girl at Denver.

Christened several weeks ago, the Sigma Kappa annex out at Piedmont has been pretty popular for a certain Sigma Kappa-Kappa Sigma crowd. This week the party will be held at the Kappa Sig house in view of the barn dance to be held there Saturday night. Donna Prescott and Jim Kelly will take roll, assisted by Kay Schoonmaker and pinmate Rex Hoffmeister.

Going steady: Bobby Russell and Evie Young, Ted Randolph and Burdette Pecha, and Max Vestal and Joanne Noble. Engaged: Don Walker and Shirley Schafer.

Special for the week: Bill Cozier has TWO dates this weekend.

An early preview of the Theta Xi Mountaineer party: Planning to attend the post-game affair are Ken Johnson and Carolyn Cameron, steadies; Dean Armstrong and pinmate Joyce Buck; George Schantz and Mary Spencer. This is another costume party.

A lot of blankets and sheets decorated the Sammys yard Monday. Here's hoping the pledges are good pole climbers.

A note to tennis fans on campus: After a series of tennis matches, the big question again arises—who is the weaker sex? Janet Carr and Iris Wells won three out of four sets Sunday from Willis Kroger and Bob Steinhoff. They are now playing for blood.

New pinnings: Margaret Trimble and Curt Weatherhogg, Jan Harrison and Bob Reichenbach. In fact, it was a double pinning for Jan; she got her active pin the same night. Another diamond is sparkling on campus—Janet Kahn and Mel Engler are engaged. Another steady—Lou Eiler and Bob Axtell.

The Sig Ep "Comic Canter" Costume party Saturday night was a big success with a fine turnout and lots of good costumes. The prize for the best couple went to Clyde Luther and Marilyn Cummings who came as Mickey and Minnie Mouse. Other good costumes were Marv "Pretty Boy" Franklin and Bev Thompson who came as Tarzan and Jane; Don Darnst who came as "Champ," a punchy boxer; and Russ Laird, who made a convincing pirate.

With Tongue In Cheek

The King Features Syndicate is getting out of hand. They must think Lincoln newspaper readers are exceptionally smart; at least it would seem so from the crossword puzzles they continually send to the Lincoln Star.

We are something of a crossword fan ourselves, and when we saw the Oct. 8 Star lying on a table untouched, we thought we'd try our hand at the puzzle. Twenty minutes later we emerged from our solitary intellectual combat with three words, namely "llama," "Essen" and "retie," filled in.

We enlisted the aid of a law student and a pre-med student and after another half-hour we succeeded in adding "abating," "seemer," "artist" and "baton." There the joint command was forced to surrender. We left the field shaken mentally and morally and went out into the night in search of simpler pleasures.

Crossword puzzles circulated in such mass media should not be that difficult. As we see it, they should give Mr. and Mrs. America an easy way to prove to themselves how smart they are. About all they do is frustrate people.

Maybe the average person would like to spend hours trying to figure out a seven-letter word for "supporting figure of an entablature," a five-letter word for "primitive Christian love feast," a four-letter word for "French cold wind" or a three-letter word for "ship lumber piece." Personally, we think we'll pass it up.

Something must be done!!!
