Pub Board Appointed

AWS Mart Opens Frosh Activities

AWS will officially open activities to freshmen women this afternoon in the Union ballroom when it presents the annual Activity Mart.

The mart marks the end of the six-weeks' ban on participation in activities by frosh women. It will be held from 4 to 6 p. m. and is designed to give freshmen an opportunity to learn about the many activities on campus.

Seventeen organizations will have information booths to explain their functions and to inform students as to when their work is carried out. Explanations of each booth will be given over the loudspeaker during the two-hour period.

Organizations

Organizations which will be represented at the Mart are: Associated Women Students, All University Fund, Barb Activities Board for Women, Coed Counselors, Cornhusker, Daily Nebraskan, Home Economics club, Independent Students association, Nebraska Builders, Student Union Board, Tassels, Women's Athletic association, Presbyterian Student house, Red Cross college unit, YWCA, Cornshucks, and University 4-H club.

AWS members will also be on hand to answer questions.

In order to make the Activity Mart more helpful to students than in the past, AWS will contact in the near future all girls who sign up for activities to make sure that they have participated in those activities.

AWS Advise

Although the Mart is primarily set up to acquaint freshmen with activities, the AWS advises students to have a fairly definite idea of what activities they are interested in. They are also advised not to sign up for more activities than they can actively participate in.

Along with the Activity Mart, AWS sponsors Coed Follies and Ivy Day Sing. It also enforces house rules and carries out tasks assigned by the dean of women.

Counselors Urge Emblem Contest Entries

The Coed Counselor emblem contest is still open to all members of that organization, according to board members.

Several emblem entries have been entered in the contest already. Requirements for entries include a neatly composed idea, in pen and ink or color, which should be turned in at Ellen Smith hall in Miss Elsie Ford Piper's office.

The contest will close Dec. 5. Members of the Coed Counselor board and Miss Piper will act as judges. A prize, which will be announced later, will be given to the winning entry.

The emblem to be chosen will be the first symbol ever to be used by the Coed Counselor organization. It should symbolize the work done by the members in their "big sister" endeavors, and the general work of the organization.

Only Coed Counselor members are eligible for competition.

Independent students who have not signed up for their Cornhusker pictures, may do so by calling or coming to the Cornhusker office anytime from 12:45 to 5 p.m. daily.

T. J. Thompson To Welcome R C Delegates

T. J. Thompson, dean of student affairs, will extend an official greeting to Red Cross delegates from six states at the midwest regional conference to be held on campus Oct. 29.

Thompson will headline the convention at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Union ballroom. He will be introduced by Aubrey Rosenbaum, Red Cross president who will officially open the convention.

Surrounding States

Delegates from Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado, Wyoming and Missouri will assemble to discuss Red Cross collegiate volunteers and the national blood program. Some 80 students and faculty sponsors from more than 20 schools are expected, according to Marilyn Stark, Red Cross vice-president. Miss Stark is in charge of registration for the conference.

Miss Stark, who also heads the housing program, plans to use the facilities of organized groups for students who will be staying over night in Lincoln.

To Explain Blood Program

Saturday morning the delegates will hear two Red Cross officials. Mary Sue Burham and Ruth Frederick explain the blood program in Kansas and Nebraska. They will also hear from Elizabeth Hunter, college activities specialist in the mid-west area.

The afternoon session is a discussion of "Recruiting College Volunteers." Gene Berg, Red Cross student advisor and former unit president, will lead the discussion.

Luncheon will be served in the Union ballroom at noon and a coke hour is planned for late afternoon.

National Officer to Speak

Howard Wilson, a member of the national Red Cross Board of Governors will speak at the luncheon. He will discuss national fund raising policies. Wilson is a resident of Lincoln.

Another Lincoln man, Harold Hill, manager of the Lancaster

Station Rally To Send Off NU Team

Parade to Start From Coliseum

"Down by the station" at 9:45 this evening Husker ralliers will cheer the football team as it leaves for Columbia to meet the Missouri Tigers Saturday.

Starting at the Coliseum at 9:15 p. m. the rally will go down 16th street, past the Union and on to the Burlington station. As the cheerleaders go down sorority and fraternity row, they will issue a call to all members of organized houses to join the rally.

Glassford to Speak

At the station, Coach Bill Glassford and several football players are expected to speak briefly. Another feature of the rally will be fireworks, according to the committee.

On the basis of the successful early morning rally held before the Penn State game, the rally committee hopes that this rally will be even bigger because of the more convenient hour.

To Boost Morale

Several team members said after the Penn State rally that the expression of backing was very encouraging. Students will have a chance to boost the morale of the team by attending the rally and cheering for an upset win Saturday.

All Corn Cobs, Tassels and pepsters will be present at the rally to add color and pep.

This will be the first station rally since the Husker fans met the team on its return from the Notre Dame game last fall. The station rally was one of the best of the season last year.

Members of the planning committee for the rally are Frank Piccolo, chairman; Wes Kolbitz, Jane Linn, Jo Lisher, and Bob Parker.

County chapter, will be on hand to act as co-host of the convention. Hill has taken an active part in planning and organizing the conference.

Other Red Cross officials who will attend the sessions are: Mrs. Betsy Northrup, director of volunteer services; Vern Zimmerman, state Red Cross representative; Tom Hawk, assistant director publicity; and Jean Fitzsimmons, field director at the local V A hospital.

Homecoming Parade Plans Announced by Pep Groups

Rules, judges, and the general outline of the Homecoming parade were revealed Tuesday by the joint Tassel and Corn Cob parade committee.

An annual event during the Homecoming week end at the University, the parade will follow approximately the same procedure as past parades.

50 to 60 Floats Expected

A probable entry list of fifty or sixty floats are expected to comprise the parade. Also present will be some of the University band, and possibly some of the Lincoln high schools' bands. The University will not excuse the entire Nebraska band because of the conflicts with Saturday morning classes. However, some of the members who do not have classes are expected to lead the parade.

Beginning at the Coliseum at 10:30 a. m., the various floats, decorated cars, and bands will move down O street and continue back to the starting point. Lincoln police will aid in directing traffic.

Welcome Grads Theme

The entries will be judged on originality, color, and how the float stresses the Homecoming and Cornhusker theme. The organizations entering are urged to emphasize "Welcome Grads." The slogan for Homecoming is "Jam the Jayhawks."

Parade entries are divided into two divisions—men's and women's. Organizations composed of

Melick, Pfeiffer, Matzke Chosen

At the end of a grueling two and one-half hour session the Student Council announced the '49-'50 members of Publications board.

They are M. J. Melick, senior; Leon Pfeiffer, junior; and Jerry Matzke, sophomore.

Miss Melick, a former Daily Nebraskan editor, is a member of Builders board, YWCA cabinet, Red Cross publicity director and a member of Chi Omega.

Three Student Leaders Back AUF Drive

Three Nebraska students, leaders in international affairs on this campus, today added their endorsements to the coming AUF drive.

Bill Edmondson, NUCWA president and candidate for a Rhodes scholarship, commented on the drive, "AUF is extremely valuable in supporting and furthering the projects and drives internationally and domestically. It is a combination of many beneficial groups all deserving your most generous support."

Susan Reed, NUCWA publicity director, told a Nebraskan reporter, "Contribution to the WSSF is only one of the fields of AUF. But it is a good example of AUF's effort to meet the needs of people who are on a common ground with students here at Nebraska. The WSSF campaigns in American colleges for funds to aid universities abroad and is the only agency organized for this purpose."

"The international organization for aid to university groups in war-devastated nations serves in Europe and Asia without discrimination to race, politics or religion. Aid falls into five major categories: food, clothing, housing, books and medical aid."

"From the Nebraska student to AUF—from AUF to WSSF—from WSSF to other university students—the group marked for the same role in their countries' future as we are in ours."

Sue Allen, chairman of the proposed model general assembly on campus next March, commented, "The WSSF, which receives aid from AUF, helps to support educational reconstruction through UNESCO."

All three students concurred in the opinion that University students should "SACRIFICE FOR AUF."

Pfeiffer, business manager for the Builder' summer edition of the Rag, is secretary of Kosmet Klub, treasurer of Builders and a member of Kappa Sigma.

Matzke, a former Rag reporter, is a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

The three members were selected from a slate of 21. The members were chosen by secret ballot. Each candidate was interviewed for approximately five minutes.

Each was questioned by Council president Ros Howard and vice-president Louise McDill. The officers asked for reasons of application and what each candidate would do if he were elected.

During the interviews the back row of the Student Council room was lined with the editors and the business managers of Daily Nebraskan, Cornhusker and Cornshucks. According to Jack Shirmmer, Cornshucks editor, the interviews were recorded and the new pub board members will be held responsible for fulfilling their campaign promises, by all three groups.

The duties of the publications board include selection of staff members for Rag, Cornshucks, Cornhusker and Cornhusker Countryman. It is also responsible for signing contracts for the publication.

The Pub board is headed by Prof. Roger Shumate of the Political Science department. He is also chairman of the University publications board. Four other faculty members make-up the board.

It is the policy of the publications board to meet monthly with the editors and business managers of the various publications.

38 Nations Represented At Nebraska

The U. N. Cosmopolitan announced in its October issue that out of 125 foreign students enrolled at the University, 38 nations are represented.

Highest on the list of nations supplying the students is China, boasting a total of 21. Canada, India, Turkey and Iran follow closely in their quota of representatives.

Countries with students at the N. U. are:
