Love Hall, YM Acts Win at Ag Skit Night

Love Hall's skit, "Exam Week," and the YMCA curtain act, "Professor Paddy-pusher and His Pedaphone" were declared the winners of the 18th annual Coll-Agri-Fun skit night.

Over 400 people watched the Hall's portrayal of a girl studying for two final exams on her birthday and the renowned musician's rendition of "Dance of the Hour" announced the winners.

AGR's skit, "Mission Bait," placed second in skit competition, and "The Three Old Maids," curtain act by the YWCA, was judged second best of that group.

Seven skits and seven curtain acts were entered in the all-Ag College contest. They were judged on the basis of originality, audience reception, stage properties and time.

Miss Ruth Jones and Miss Dorsetta Schlaphoff of the home economics department and D. G. Hanway of the agronomy department were judges.

A traveling plaque for the winning skit was presented to Alice Boswell, director of the Love Hall group, and a $10 cash award to the YMCA as curtain act winner, by Jack Wilson, manager of the show.

Rex Messersmith acted as master of ceremonies and Neal Baxter was stage manager for the production.

ative from Denver, Colorado, acted as an observer at the conference.

Delegates arrived in Lincoln Friday night for the convention. Organized houses on the campus opened their doors to provide convenient housing.

Groups Housing Delegates

'New' Production of 'Faust' Wins Applause of Audience

'Producers' Revealed by Uni Theater

Theater royalty for the coming year will be Virginia Seacrest and Tom Donohoe. They were revealed last night as the 1949-'50 Honorary Producers.

Representing Kappa Delta sorority and Sigma Chi fraternity, Miss Seacrest and Donohoe were selected on the basis of University Theater ticket sales.

The two Producers were introduced last night for the first time at the premiere presentation of the Theater's version of "Faust, Part I." Their identity was a secret until curtain time.

After the fourth, third and second place winners in the contest had been revealed, Master of Ceremonies Clare Denton, president of Nebraska Masquers, called Miss Seacrest and Donohoe to the stage. They were presented with gifts, the traveling Producer

KK Sweetheart, Prince Entries Due by Nov. 8

Deadline for Nebraska Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet candidate entries is Tuesday, Nov. 8, Bob Sim, president of Kosmet Klub, announced today.

Entries may be turned in at the Kosmet Klub office, 307 Union. The Kosmet Klub annual fall revue will be presented Friday, Nov. 18, at the University Coliseum.

Selected on basis of attractiveness, poise, personality and scholarship, six finalists are selected from applications to be voted upon by Innocents and Mortar Board. The women's honorary group will select the male finalists and the male honorary group will select the Sweetheart finalists.

The night of the fall revue the Nebraska Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet will be selected by a popular vote at the door from the finalists. Selected by the two honorary groups resulting in one of Nebraska's great traditions.

Founded in 1911, Kosmet Klub has annually produced a fall and spring show.

Always the highlight of the fall revue is the presentation of the Nebraska Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet.

Last year Louise McDill and Dick "Ajax" O'Meara stepped through a large, red cellophane heart to become the 1948 Sweetheart and Prince Kosmet.

Pakistan School to Receive Part of AUF Contributions

From students, Nebraska, USA, to students, Karachi, Pakistan, will be the route of the money given to the AUF drive.

The entire World Student Service Fund portion of Nebraska's AUF fund, approximately $3,000, will go to build a hostel for the students in the University of Sind, Karachi, Pakistan. According to Ted Gunderson, fund drive chairman, the money is being earmarked in this way so that students will know exactly where their money is going.

Students Destitute

Of the student body of 5,000 in Karachi, the capital of Pakistan, 2,000 are homeless. These refugee students, many of whom are completely destitute, simply wander around in the streets, and some cannot afford to have meals, even once a day. The hostel would provide shelter and food at a low cost to those students. Students living in the hostels are required, besides their other studies, to learn some trade so that they may become independent by doing part-time work.

The land for the hostel has been donated and the University of Karachi can secure the rest of the money for the Karachi hostel if they have help from the students here.

Hostel Adopted

The Karachi hostel was adopted by the Nebraska AUF as their special project at the suggestion of Gunderson. At the International Student Service conference which Gunderson attended at the University's delegate, he heard Nasseem Beg, one of the speakers from Pakistan, tell of the needs of students there. Later he became better acquainted with Beg and decided that he would like to try to help the refugee students who flooded Pakistan after partition. He is now corresponding with Beg.

only all-university convocation of the semester.

As part of the University observance of the Goethe Bicentennial, Gustavson will interpret the German philosopher and author on the "every day" level. His subject will be "Goethe, Humanist and Scientist."

Dr. Gustavson, who has recently returned from meetings in Washington, D. C., on the United Nations, is an authority on the human aspects of Goethe.

The convocation is only one part of the University observance of the death of Johann Goethe in 1749. The Bicentennial is being celebrated all over the world this year.

Other programs which will honor the German are being held

Play Termed 'Spectacle Of Color'

By Walter Willi and Frank Jacobs

The University Theater came up with an entirely new production of "Faust" Monday evening.

The Goethe tragedy, combining a colorful blaze of lights, costumes, and vivid stylized imagery, gave a large and appreciative audience a different and unusual interpretation of the usually more conventional classic drama.

Generally, "Faust" is the dilemma of a man at the absolute limit of learning, having studied every great field offered by education. This causes him to lose his desire for any further intellectual accomplishment. Mephistopholes, the devil personified, opens a new door to Faust, leading back to emotional young manhood. On this journey to rejuvenation, he meets Gretchen, a pure, true child of nature; but being a mere instrument of Mephistopholes, he only brings her ultimate destruction.

Although presenting the play in extravaganza style, the cast competently succeeded in bringing the entire conflict to light. At times, especially during the Walpurgis Night scene with dozens of scantily-clad witches and wizards lewdly circulating around the stage, the production was a bit reminiscent of an excerpt from Dante's "Inferno."

In the title role, Jack Wenstrand found himself in the position of portraying both an older, doubting Faust and subsequently an emotional, virile character. Of the two, Wenstrand was more convincing as the near-senile doctor. From the tone of his voice to the mode of his walk, he remained perfect in his characterization. The dominating power of this first phase, how-

40 Houses File Homecoming Display Entries

Late entries, turned in before last Friday's deadline, swelled the organized house total to 40 for Homecoming decoration competition.

Expense accounts of each house must be turned in not later than Thursday, Nov. 3. The accounts are to be given to Innocent Paul Weltchek, chairman of the Homecoming committee, and cannot exceed $50. Weltchek may be contacted at 1345 R.

Will Give Two Trophies.

A traveling cup will be given to the winners of the men's and women's divisions, to be kept until next year. Plaques will be awarded to the houses placing first, second and third in each section, for their permanent possession.

Houses are reminded that their decorations must be completed by 6:30 p. m. Friday, and that their lights may not be turned on between 6:30 and 7:45. The Mueller Carillon tower is to be dedicated between 7 and 8 and it was feared that the decorations would have detracted from the ceremonies.

Judging Friday Night.

Judging will be done Friday night. The judges will be accompanied about the campus by five members of the Society of Innocents, but they alone will judge the entries. The judges are: Prof. Waljarvi of the Architecture department, Gail Butt of the Art department, and Col. Frankfurter of the Chemistry department.
