AIChE Plans Inspection Trip

The student chapter of the American Chemical Engineers will take a trip to Omaha, Thursday, Nov. 16. While there the group plans to inspect the facilities of the Western Mineral Products Company, the Storz Brewery or the American Smelting Company, and the Refinite Corporation.

Campus Chatter

Today is THE day—the last day you have to make up your mind whether you're going on the migration train or not. Dates planning to go via train include Roz Howard and Cathy Withey, and Sterling Seaton and Donna Michlich. Others planning to go besides the Cob, Tassel, Band, Student Council, Mortar Board and Inno-cent aggregation include Pat Larsen and Dean Killian. The Sigma Chi is going enmass in anticipation of an intermural football game with their Iowa chapter. It looks like a good party!

After all his musings in the crib, Dick Beindorf has finally struck upon a great idea: He is organizing a fraternity for all ex-navy men—Rho Rho Rho.

Sigma Phi Epsilon climaxed Homecoming activities Saturday morning with their annual Sig Ep Breakfast. Couples that attended were Pat Berge and Dale Armstrong, Bev Flesher and John Andreason, Nancy Miller and Dave Myers, Jean Oaks and Jim Keenan.

Mel Swanson, team doctor at Student Health, escorted Jan Fairchild to the Homecoming dance. He also took her flying in his plane last week. Hmhmhmhm.

It seems that Bob Clark is a little flustered. "Rosalie," one of his many classmates has been giving him a bad time. Tut, tut, now, Rosalie.

Going steady: Rog Phipps and Lois Smith, Don Coupens and Jean Dana, Bev Deal and Mike Madden, Nancy Miller and Don Snyder, Ruth Hiatt and Jerry Brown, Pinned are JoAnn Hall and Ed Childress.

Al Fleishman came all the way down from Omaha to take Jan Hufford to the Homecoming dance and later to Don's Supper Club.

A new advertiser joined the parade of planes that take advantage of Saturday football games here. They didn't have a house decoration out and they didn't have a float, but the TNEs managed to get their "Welcome Grads" sign in the air.

The Sig Alphas plan to travel to Iowa State in style Saturday. They have chartered a converted B-10 plane. Going are Bob Scoville, Art Lovett, Raymond Beachley and Dick Kinsey.

Two Scholarship Recipients Named

Two scholars in the University business administration college were awarded scholarships of $250

each by Dean Earl S. Fullbrook Monday.

They are Nancy J. Buck and Robert L. Kellner.

Miss Buck, a junior, received the W. G. Langworthy Taylor Scholarship of $250 which is awarded annually to an outstanding woman scholar in the business administration college. The scholarship was established by the Board of Regents from a fund from the estate of Prof. Taylor.

Kellner was awarded the Congdon, O'Hara and Becker scholarship of $250 which is awarded annually to a senior male student in the college who is a good scholar and preparing for a career in public accounting. The scholarship is given by the accounting firm of the same name located in Omaha.

With Tongue In Cheek

By Cub Clem

Good old Bill Plank of the ISA pleaded Monday night for organization of the "independent independents." We take it he meant the unorganized Barb students. We really hadn't realized there was much of a difference. We thought all Barbs were unorganized. As a matter of fact, it looks as though all students are unorganized.

Evidently Plank sees four classifications of students—the "independent independent," the organized independent, the unorganized Greek, and the organized Greek.

As far as campus politics are concerned, we feel that no group is organized.

In the words of George Abbott, this may or may not be a good thing. In our opinion, the lack of more than one organized group is not a good thing, especially when that one organized group hardly deserves the adjective.

This gives The Daily Nebraskan very little of a political nature to print. And since student politics are traditionally the main editorial fodder of a college newspaper, it seriously hampers the editorial policy of a traditionally outspoken newspaper.

What The Daily Nebraskan would love to see are two or three or four strong political parties which would push their candidates or aims on the student body. As the scene now stands, students have little or nothing to choose between.

The Great Nebraska Political Lethargy is truly unique. Out at Colorado, for instance, the editor of the Silver and Gold can blast the student governing body—composed of members from three political parties—for kow-towing to the administration. The editor can cuss out the heads of each of the three parties. At Nebraska, the editor can lambast only the Student Council president.

Any other campus, I'll wager, offers better-organized and more interesting politics.

But at Nebraska we must sit back and watch student politics, student government and almost every other phase of organized student activity go nowhere simply because there is no student leadership.

What the University of Nebraska needs is some good old dirty politics.

Letterip

University Students:

The student spirit committee has been urging you to travel to the Iowa State game on the official migration train, and I urge you, on behalf of the varsity squad, to cooperate.

One of the biggest student responsibilities is the spirit shown on game days, and the team certainly will need your help Saturday.

We're going to try our best to win this game for you, and will put on a show that will make you proud of your varsity squad.

So, when a Corn Cob or Tassel approaches you about the sale of migration tickets, think about helping your team and backing it at the game in Ames Saturday.

Sincerely,
TOM NOVAK.

State Speech Group to Meet Here Saturday

Student representatives from about three dozen Nebraska high schools are expected to attend the University speech department institute which will be held coincident with the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Speech association, Saturday, Nov. 12.

Headquarters for both meetings will be the Temple building on the University campus.

For High School Debaters.

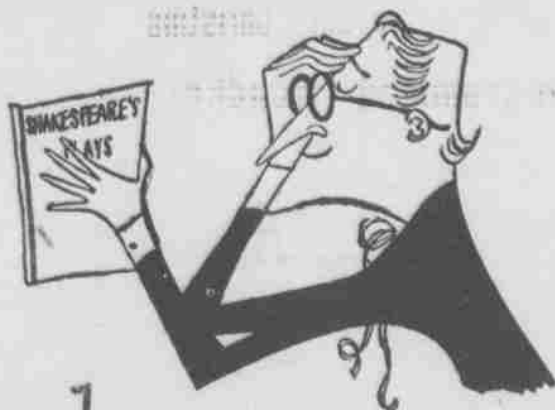

The institute program, co-sponsored with the University by the State Department of Public Instruction and the Nebraska High School Activities association, is planned especially for high school debaters who this year are considering the U. S. presidential election system.

During their morning session, the students will hear addresses by Dr. Leroy T. Laase, chairman of the University's department of speech and dramatic art; Dr. Roger V. Shumate of the political science department; Dr. James C. Olson, superintendent of the Nebraska Historical Society, and Dr. Halbert E. Gulley, director of forensics, University of Illinois.

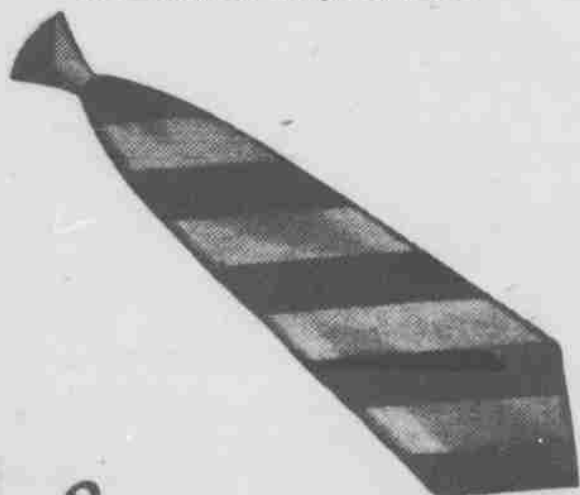

College Teams Will Debate

The afternoon meeting will be given over to a round of discussions and to hearing University of Nebraska and University of Illinois debate teams. Bruce Kendall, the University's director of debate, is in charge of the institute.

Two things every college man should know!

1. This is an English major.
Goes from bed to verse.
Glow when Johnson waxes poetic.
Thinks Ogden Nash is funny but knows John Greenleaf is Whittier.

2. These "Manhattan" Repp ties open a new chapter in smart fall styling. And best of all, the stripings are in your own Alma Mater colors.
