Huskers Edge IS, 7 to 0

70-Yard Runback Spells Victory

Special from Ames, Ia.—Harry Meginnis outfoxed the whole Iowa State team Saturday afternoon to score Nebraska's only score and beat the Cyclones, 7-0.

After a first half in which the two very evenly matched teams pushed each other up and down the field, the Cornhuskers came back to score and win.

Meginnis, Lincoln scatback, took over the role of injured Ron Clark in the third period when he grabbed an Iowa State punt and scampered 70 yards to score.

He took the slippery ball, dropped it, picked it up, juggled it behind his back, and finally stopped cold.

After shaking loose from the grasp of Cyclone fullback, Bill Chauncey, Meginnis feinted his way through the entire lineup of players from the corn state and ran down the west sidelines to score. Rich Yost converted to make the score 7-0 for the Huskers.

The game was played in the mud, making the ball slippery and hard to handle. Neither team could get its offense started and the Cyclones' passing attack was the big loser.

Iowa State, with sophomore quarterback, Bill Weeks, doing the passing, attempted 15 passes and completed only three. Fran Nagle, Husker ace thrower, chanced only three heaves with one completion.

For Iowa State it was the fourth year in a row that the Husker jinx has held a spell over them. Were it up to the Cyclone rooters each game was just one of those things. The boys from Ames have come out ahead in statistics in the last three games but the breaks just went to Nebraska.

Saturday the Huskers were held to only 88 yards rushing. They racked up a total of just four first downs and were on the defensive most of the day.

Dismiss Class for Religion Address

Southern Prof To Speak at 11

Dr. Arnold Nash, professor of religion at the University of North Carolina, will sound the keynote for campus Religion-in-Life week activities at an all-University convocation at 11 a.m. today, in the Union ballroom.

Nash, an Episcopal clergyman, will speak of collegiate religion. He is the author of several books on Christian marriage. Nash was the principle speaker at a Religion-in-Life week send-off dinner held in the Union last night.

Nash Goes to Ag

Ag campus will be host to Nash at 8 p.m. when he will address an all-campus convocation in the college activities building.

In addition to the convocation, Religion-in-Life week activities will begin in organized houses today. Lincoln and campus pastors will speak to organized groups Monday through Wednesday.

Other Religion-in-Life week activities include a second Nash convocation at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the ballroom. His topic will be Christian marriage. He will also be heard at a discussion group in the Temple lounge at 4:30 p.m. today.

Blain Arrives Wednesday

A second Religion-in-Life week speaker, Dr. Daniel Blain, medical director of the American Psychiatric association, will arrive on campus Wednesday for a 10 a.m. convocation in the ballroom. Blain is also director of the psychoneurotic medical division of the veterans administration. He will speak on "Mental Health."

The week will wind-up on Thursday with the trial of Roswell Howard, student council president, on a charge of spiritual insanity.

Nation-Wide Project

Religion-in-Life week programs are of national scope. They are held on all major campuses each fall. Nebraska's project is under the sponsorship of the Religious Welfare council.

The program is being planned by a committee of seven. They are: Alice Jo Smith, chairman; Dave Keene, classroom appointments; Rick Pond, group visitations; Sharon Fritzer, hospitality; Howard Tempel, Ag chairman; Keith Stephenson, send-off dinner; Marvel Phillips, discussion groups. Miss Smith is also in charge of speakers and the Howard trial.

Union to Close 'Informal' Season

Want to get your Thanksgiving turkey free? Here's your chance.

Taking the place of the annual Union sponsored "Turkey Race" held before Thanksgiving vacation each year, will be a "Turkey Trot" Friday, Nov. 19 at the Union ballroom. A 20-pound live turkey will be given away during the dance.

This will be the last informal Union dance before the formal season opens in December. Jerry Mayburn and his orchestra will furnish music.

Advance ticket sales will start Monday at a booth in the Union lobby. Admission is 40 cents. The turkey to be given away will be placed on display in the Union starting Thursday.

Plans are being made by the dance committee to have the pledge classes of Alpha Chi Omega and Kappa Alpha Theta assist during the dance. They were purchased at the AUF auction Thursday afternoon at the Union ballroom by members of the committee.

Mortar Boards Begin Search For 'Eligibles'

Filings for the eight Eligible Bachelor titles will open Wednesday, Nov. 16, Dorothy Borgens, Mortar Board ball chairman, announced. The Bachelors will be revealed at the annual ball Dec. 9 at the coliseum.

Any university man is eligible to file application, and there is no limit on the number of men in organized houses who may apply or the number of unaffiliated men. Final deadline for all filings is Nov. 18 at 5 p. m.

Send Applications

Candidates from organized houses should send written applications to Jan Nutzman, 1541 "S," or place the applications in the Mortar Board box in the basement of the Union.

Unaffiliated men may qualify by filing at the Union office window.

Each application must include the name, college, year in school and activities of the applicant. Candidates must have a 4.5 or 75 average.

Sixteen finalists will be chosen by Mortar Board members and presented to University women students, who will elect the winning eight. The date of the election will be announced later. All candidates are expected to have photographs available for the election.

legendary "Earl of Plymouth" Stradivarius violin finally bore fruit when the instrument was found after laying unused for 200 years. It is the only "unknown Strad" to come to light in more than 50 years.

Worth $40,000

Reputed to be worth over $40,000, it is one of the most expensive instruments in the world.

Free tickets are now available at the Union main office upon presentation of student identification cards.

Soloist to Use Stradivarius

A violin, 238 years old, will figure in the entertainment provided Sunday evening, Nov. 20, when Dorothea Powers, violin artist, combines her talents with the University Symphony Orchestra at the fourth annual Fall Concert.

The program, which will be presented at the Union ballroom at 8 p.m., will give students an opportunity to hear the strains of the once forgotten instrument.

One of Three Greatest

Acclaimed by many artists as one of the three greatest violins in the world, the violin bears the date of 1711. Its birth came during the era of Frederick Handel, the great German composer-violinist.

ELLIOT "BRUSHES" UP ON AUCTIONEERING—Dr. Curtis Elliot, ordinarily an Ec prof, turns auctioneer for the sake of AUF's current charity drive. He wields a brush from the auction block as Dr. Karl Arndt, his cohort, and also ordinarily an Ec prof, sits on-stage thinking up further comments for the auction crowd. The two professors donated their services Thursday to AUF as the second annual auction took place from 2-5 p.m. in the Union ballroom. They waved the brush, but didn't throw in the sponge—until AUF had a total of $430 from the three-hour event. Also in the picture is Jane Jewett, at left, who pays up after buying the services of both Elliot and Arndt as "hushers" for her sorority, Pi Beta Phi. Jean Oaks of the AUF and Paul Wiecek of the "Rag" (behind Oaks) keep the records straight.

Election of Honorary Colonel Set

An all-University election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 15, to select the six finalists for Honorary Colonel.

Military department and Student Council members will supervise the polls, to be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Voting booths will be maintained at both the city campus Union and Ag Union.

Nineteen candidates for the title were announced last week.

At the election Tuesday, voters will name six choices on each ballot. Failure to vote for six girls will make the ballot invalid, according to a Student Council ruling last Wednesday.

Must Present ID's

All students may check a ballot at the election by presenting their ID card.

Following the selection of the six finalists in the election Tuesday, the Candidate Officers association, sponsors of this year's Ball, will entertain the finalists at a tea Wednesday to choose the Honorary Colonel by secret ballot.

Candidates for Honorary Colonel, whose presentation climaxes the annual Military Ball, are: Marjorie Arendt, Marian Battey, Pat Berge, Jean Blaha, Sue Bjorklund, Dorothy Borgens, Jean Eckvall, Janet Fairchild, Myra Hauge, Margaret Knapple, Jane MacCuaig, Louise McDill, Margaret McGeachin, Grace Nielsen, Joanne Noble, Gloria Pinney, Eugenie Sampson, Janet Stratton and Catherine Worcester.

Last year's Honorary Colonel was Phyllis Harris.

NUCWA Plans Three Foreign Student Talks

Three foreign student speakers from the NUCWA speakers bureau will give talks at a meeting of parents and teachers at the Belmont school Tuesday, Nov. 15. They are Walter Willi, Edward Saad and Jane Abend.

They will speak about their own countries and their impressions of America.

Walter Willi is an exchange student from Switzerland working on a masters degree in economics. Upon receiving this degree he plans to return to Switzerland and work for a Ph.D. there. He is in the Cosmopolitan club and is editor of their publication, "The U.N. Cosmopolitan."

Edward Saad is a Arab from Jerusalem, Palestine and has been in this country two years working for a Bachelor's degree in architecture and engineering. Upon attaining this degree he plans to return to his native land.

Jane Abend is a native of Czechoslovakia but has been living in Munich for the last three years and attended college there. She is majoring in architecture and is in the United States on a permanent visa but is not sure what part of the country she will settle down in.
