

Frosh, Junior Law Teams To Begin Moot Competition

University of Nebraska freshman and junior law students, composing 106 teams in all, will act as attorneys in appellate cases in the law school's fourth annual Moot Court competition which opens at 3:30 p. m. Monday.

Twenty-eight freshmen teams and five junior teams will be acting as lawyers for every type of defendant ranging from an accused murderer to a dismissed school teacher seeking reinstatement.

First argument to be heard in the beginning session of the "mock court" will be by students Joe Vosoba and R. Steinacher, attorneys for the fictitious "Arturo Valentino," found guilty of murdering his sweetheart after she rejected his proposal of marriage.

Down Town Judges

Vosoba and Steinacher, composing one of the 10 junior teams who will participate in the proceedings this week, will match wits with the state's prosecuting student attorneys, G. Stahl and R. Moodie. Three downtown Lincoln lawyers, Julius Hopkins, Royce Harper and Bob McNutt, will "sit in" as judges of the case and hand down the appellate court's decision.

Valentino, "the man, who when his sweetheart refused to marry him, pointed a gun to his head and said, 'There is nothing to live for,'" was charged with first degree murder. Student attorneys Vosoba and Steinacher will argue that the girl, fearing his suicide attempt, reached for the gun and was accidentally shot in the ensuing struggle.

Both "attorneys" have filed pleadings in the form of a brief, which cites the points upon which the appeal is based, and discusses them.

Following the "Valentino" case, second case on the trial docket will be heard at 7:30 p. m. that night. This case will be presented by student "attorneys" J. Jones and H. Schwartz, arguing against another team composed of D. L. Brock and W. D. Blue.

"Judges" for the case of "William F. Malsh vs. Garrard Glen" will be Don Kroeger, John Binning and Dick Harnsberger, all of Lincoln. This case involves an insurance difficulty on a $50,000 cheese factory which burned down.

Written By Board

Both cases, as are all others on docket to be argued between Monday and Thursday in junior competition of the court, were prepared and written by members of the Board of Advisors, supervising the Moot Court.

With actual competition beginning Monday, winners will be picked from six of the junior team and will argue before the Supreme Court next spring. Senior team members, Glenn Feibig and Donald Boyd vs. Forrest Fugate and Richard Berkheimer, will also appear in senior competition in next spring's session.

Freshman participation begins Dec. 6, with the first practice case of moot court competition. A total of 48 arguing teams will compete. Compulsory for freshman students, this round has no connection with the actual competition of the court session.

Other Cases

Among the cases to be appealed in this session is one in which the constitutionality of a certain statute prohibiting political participation by a university instructor will be argued. Plaintiffs for this case will be freshman "attorneys" Edward Addison Cook, III, and Michael Madden.

Lawyers for the defendant, Mary Jones, an instructor dismissed from her job because of participation in politics and who is seeking reinstatement, will be a freshman cousin-team, P. Engler and M. Engler.

The mock court, which has begun at this time of the year for the past four years, is a memorial to the late Thomas S. Allen, the first student to graduate from the University of Nebraska Law school. Idea of the court was set up by the Board of Regents and the faculty as a training for students in arguing appellate cases.

New Directory Ready Monday For Students

Student Directories will go on sale next week beginning Monday, in Union booths, bookstores and the organized houses, according to Bob Mosher, business manager.

The publication is recognized this year by a light gray cover in contrast with scarlet and cream colors of last year.

The annual publication contains a complete list of University students, faculty members, Lincoln addresses, phone numbers, classifications and hometowns of all regularly enrolled graduates in the University. The Directories also contain information on student houses, religious groups and clubs on the campus.

Booth Sales

Booths will open Tuesday and continue through Friday. Mickie Fike, who is in charge of booth sales, said that persons who have already paid for their Directories may pick them up at the booths by presenting their receipts. Lee Alexander will be in charge of book store sales.

Yuletide Singfest Set for Sunday

The third in the series of five community Christmas singfests will be held at St. Paul Methodist church on Sunday evening, December 4th at 8:00 p. m. under the auspices of the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce and the Lincoln Ministerial association.

Rev. John Wichelt of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church will preside and give the meditation. Robert Stepp will lead the community singing and Beverly Tracy, contralto, will provide the special music. Camp Fire Girls under the direction of Miss Phyllis Dent will usher.

The public is invited and urged to attend.

Campus Chatter

A lot of fellows about campus are getting a little bit leary about this "starvation dinner" deal. It seems that a few pockets are on the lean side. It's all for the good of the cause, fellows.

Going out to the Italian Village Friday night before the Military Ball are Hank Lammers and Adele Cramer, Cub Clem and Poochie Rediger, Bob Yarwood and Donna Burley, Frank Munk and May Scherf, Bill Cozier and Shirley Hudson.

Arbor Manor patrons will be Tom Millikan and Shirley Baker, Bob Waters and Kay Mecke, Betty Boothe and Bryce Shopp, Jack Barnhart and Nancie DeBord.

Sigma Nus and their dates going to Harold's Steak house are Don Hutton and Ginny Noble, Jack Craig and Jean Loomis, Jack Young and Pat Dishner, Earl Comeford and Molly Myhre.

Pat Hanlon passed the candy twice to announce her pinning to Fred Kinghorn. She passed candy at the Chi O house and then at Loomis, ye old home.

Don Rice and Evie Osoff of Omaha announced their engagement Wednesday evening.

Zeta Beta Tau is having a dinner party before the ball Friday night. Couples attending will be Aaron Schmidt and Kathy Clements, Ed Kantor and Fran Hansen, Milt Maisel and Peggy Judd, Ajon Farber and Pat Lannon.

The Pi Kaps will migrate to the Victorian tea house before the Ball. Couples include John Berigan and Jan Liljedahl, Gene Wiedmaier and Jan Zlomke, Emerson Inks and Liz Rogers.

Class Head Filings Attract Only Two

No one has filed for senior class president. Two persons have filed for junior class chief executive.

That was the situation at 4 o'clock Thursday at the Student activities office. Filings for both titles close at 4 p. m. today.

The class officers, to be elected Tuesday at an upperclassmen's election, are the traditional planters of the ivy at the Ivy Day ceremony. This year they will play a part in the Junior-Senior Prom, according to Roz Howard, member of Innocents society, sponsors of the dance.

Filings should be made in the Activities office in the Administration building before 4 p. m. Students applying must have a 5.5 average and have qualified junior or senior standing in their respective colleges.

Information which all applicants must submit includes full name, college and number of hours now being carried. Grade averages will be checked by election officials.

Frank Hoffman and Perky Flab.

Dates going to the Military Ball from Ag campus include Georgia Tivey and Art Becker, Dot Bowman and Stan Lambert, Joyce Shaner and Johnny Sals, Joyce Schroeder and Rex Messerschmidt, Jeanne Holmes and Phil Olson.

All of the excitement this week end seems to be centered in one place on one night—namely the Military Ball Friday night Saturday night is the first basketball game of the season. We predict a record crowd after Friday night's blowout.
