Council Throws Out Court Idea

Students Investigate Need for Union Addition

Only Campus OK Will Bring Enlargement

Fourteen students met Wednesday night to discuss possibilities of building an addition to the University's Union building.

Action resulted from a Daily Nebraskan reporter's inquiry as to when the Union addition would be built as provided in the University's ten-year building program. The reporter was informed that a Union addition will not be included in the program unless the students want it.

When the information was received in The Daily Nebraskan office, Student Council President Roz Howard was immediately contacted. Two of the publication's editors, Cub Clem and Fritz Simpson, and Howard then discussed the matter with Duane Lake, Union director.

Student Action

Lake said that a Union addition is definitely needed. "However, it will not even be considered unless a large majority of the students feel they want such an addition," he said. "Any action must come from the students themselves."

A group of students was then asked to meet and check all possibilities for a Union addition. The group included Merle Stalder, Paul Weltchek, Mary Ellen Schroeder, Hattie Mann, Jack DeWulf, Sue Allen, Walter Willi, Bob Reynolds, Blake Cathro, Harry Kimbriel, Gene Johnson, Roz Howard, Cub Clem and Fritz Simpson.

Lake was asked to attend the meeting and present any information concerning present Union finances, recreational facilities and needs as compared with Unions of other schools.

First Problem

"First," he said, "an addition would involve raising the Union fee of $3 a semester which is included in each student's tuition payment." He then presented a list of 20 major colleges and universities, all of which have Union fees higher than Nebraska's.

Lake also said that Nebraska's Union does not have as complete a recreational program as do other schools because of the lack of adequate facilities. "And I receive requests from organizations for office space every year which cannot be filled," he said.

The committee decided that a Union addition would definitely be beneficial to all students and that a program of orientation would be undertaken to inform them of the Union's present and future needs.

Complete Information

Next semester The Daily Nebraskan will publish complete information on Nebraska's Union plus comparisons with other Unions throughout the country.

A plan will then be devised whereby a poll reaching the largest number of students possible will be taken. The result of that poll will determine whether or not a Union addition will be constructed.

The original date of the convocation was Thursday, Jan. 26. The time will remain 7:30 p. m. in the auditorium of the Ag Activities building.

Dr. Lambert will discuss his 21,000-mile trip through the British colonies of Africa as a part of a three-man expedition for the Economic Cooperation Administration. He also will show movies taken on the tour.

Members Debate Election System

The Student Council dealt its final death blow to the Student Court Wednesday by a three-to-one roll call vote.

Only six representatives, three from the Judiciary committee that proposed the Court, voted in favor of establishing a student body to hear and try cases of student misconduct. Eighteen members mixed the plan.

Students to Pay Semester Fees Jan. 23, 24

Second semester registration fees are payable Jan. 23 and 24 in the Military Science building.

Students with A-L surnames will pay fees Jan. 23. Those with surnames from M-Z will pay Jan. 24.

One of the major bottlenecks of previous years in the registration set-up has been the confusion and delay on the drill hall floor, where students must fill out personal data and class cards.

Cards in Advance

This year students can pick up these cards in advance during the period Wednesday, Jan. 18 to Saturday, Jan. 21 and have them already completed before fee-paying days.

City campus students can obtain these cards in Temporary B, and Ag campus students can get them from Dr. Hixson's office in Ag hall. Cards should be filled out in ink.

According to Assistant Registrar Floyd Hoover, the only things a student need do to complete his registration are to claim his forms, deposit his class cards, and pay his fees—all done on the drill hall floor.

Open Hours

The Military building will be open from 8 to 12 a. m. and from 1 to 4:30 p. m.

Adds and drops are scheduled for Jan. 30 and 31. Course changes must be first approved by the adviser and the dean of the college. Numbers can then be picked up in the Love Library lobby.

Students who wish only to change sections should see their department chairmen beginning Feb. 1. It will not be necessary to clear with the assignment committee to do this.

Finishing with the court swiftly after weeks of discussion and deliberation, the Council moved on to try to iron out election and representation portions of the long-awaited Student Council revised constitution. Debate centered on the party system.

Discussion Brief

Discussion on the Court was brief, but Council members, in attempting to bring the subject up for a ballot, found themselves in a quagmire of parliamentary procedure.

After a complete mix-up on motions to vote on the Court, to amend the Court's constitution and to vote on the question, a resolution to "accept the idea of a Student Court based on the constitution drawn up by the Judiciary committee" was presented to the representatives. That motion was defeated.

President Roswell Howard then relinquished the chair to move that the Court be entered in the Council's files to be referred to in the event the Council is called upon to sit as a student court. That duty of the Council is outlined in its present constitution. The motion passed with only one dissent.

Breakdown of Vote.

Voting in favor of the Court were: Louise McDill, Council vice president; Fred Chael, Judiciary chairman; Ray Simmons, Law association; Don Sterns, Interfraternity council; Vladimir Lavko, Cosmopolitan club; and Mayer Moskowitz, Religious Welfare council.

Negative votes were cast by: Bob Raun, Ag Exec board; Gene Berg, Builders; Shirley Allen, Tassels; Bob Parker, Corn Cobs; Rod Lindwall, Innocents; Jan Cochrane, Mortar Board; Alice Jo Smith, Y.W.C.A.; Harry Kenyon, Y.M.C.A.; Betty Green, Panhellenic council; Ben Wall, ISA; Jim Stoddard, Engineering Exec board; Herb Reese, N club; Ginny Guhin, AWS; Janet Carr, Coed Counselors; Phyllis Cadwallader, hold-over member; Norma Chubbuck, BABW; Norma Jean Meyers, WAA, and Bruce Kennedy, publications.

Howard and Military department representative Al Potter did not vote.

Elections Debate.

Opening its discussion on election revisions of the Council Constitution, Council members passed a tentative motion to accept a party system.

The motion evolved from a proposal to decide on the desirability of a party system and to decide upon methods of representation for the new constitution. Discussion was opened by Louise McDill, election sub-committee chairman.

Council representatives will discuss the party system motion with organizations and vote on the issue at next week's meeting.

Suggested Systems.

Among the systems of election presented to the Council for consideration were: By organizations. The present system, colleges; all-campus election; precincts; sex-ratio, which would entail two ballots, male and female; greek-unaffiliated; groups insured representation, such as foreign students, and a combina-
