Student Court? What's That? . . .

Whether or not the Student Council did a good thing by the University Wednesday when it repudiated its own proposed Student Court is a question that will be argued hotly and at great length.

But if any student gets the idea that the Council lacks the courage of its own convictions, he had better think again. In voting the Court down, the Council in reality only tabled an issue that had never been subscribed to by the group as a whole.

In our opinion, it was student apathy that killed the Court's chances of survival. Had the student body shown a great deal of interest in the Court, we feel the verdict might well have been different. A great majority of the students just didn't give a damn whether or not a Court was to be established. Because of this, those who sincerely wanted and supported a Student Court—and these seemed to be very, very few—will have to wait quite a while before they can realize their hopes.

And so we submit, for consideration by the student body and the Council, that if the students ever expect the Council to do big things for them, then the students will have to show the Council that they are interested in the Council's doings.

Big things don't just happen—they are the result of a great deal of thought and action by a great number of people, and not merely the brainstormings of a handful of original thinkers.

'Love' Maintains 'Lost' Department

Is that scarf still missing? Or was it a pen, a pair of glasses, or a much needed psychology book?

For the information of those students who have inquired to no avail at the lost and found department in the stadium, it may still be in the loss and found department at the Love library.

The unclaimed articles found in the library are sent to the loan desk on the second floor, where students may call for them. From time to time they are sent to the stadium, but if you recently "misplaced" something, it is very possibly still at the library.

Lambert to Head River Basin Group

Dr. W. V. Lambert, dean of the College of Agriculture, was named chairman of Nebraska's committee for the Missouri Basin Wednesday morning.

Tuesday, mornings meeting, called by Gov. Val Peterson, was attended by 28 representatives of different departments and agencies of Nebraska, including state, federal and University.

Governor Peterson gave two reasons for the organization of the committee at the beginning of the meeting: (1) that Nebraska be on the alert not to overlook any phase of the program so that the state might receive the maximum benefit from its every part; (2) that the governor, as a member of the interagency committee needs the advice and counsel of the various experts and specialists dealing with the various phases of the program.

Committee's Value.

Peterson expressed belief that a committee representing all parts of the development could bring needed balance to the program. Several N.U. representatives expressed willingness of the University to co-operate in the development of a Nebraska policy toward the basin program.

Chancellor R. G. Gustafson said, "The University has long realized its great responsibility and opportunity for service in the basin development program and welcomes this avenue for extending its service to the people of the state."

University faculty and staff members attending the meeting included Carl W. Borgmann, executive dean; Harry Gould, director of agricultural extension service; Marvel Baker of the University experiment stations; Earl Maxwell, extension forester; Roy M. Green, college of engineering, and H. F. Rhoades of the department of soils.
