Huskers Must Win

The pressure is on the Nebraska Cornhuskers Saturday night in their game with Colorado in the Coliseum.

With the Big Seven basketball race half over and Nebraska, Colorado and Kansas State tied for first place, the Huskers must chalk up their sixth conference win of the season in order to remain one of the top contenders.

Two-fold Reason

Coach Good's cagers have a two-fold reason for skinning the Buffaloes. First, the Huskers have twice been beaten by Colorado.

At the pre-season Big Seven tourney at Kansas City the Buffs took a 67-37 victory and then second was amidst the 'Hills of Colorado' where the up and coming herd handed the Huskers a smarming 72-59 loss.

First or Second?

By the time the two teams meet Saturday night, they will either be dead-locked for first or tied at second. The standing depends upon the Iowa State-Kansas State game at Ames Friday night. In all probability they will be perched at second.

The Buffs have their own reason to want to win besides the title chances. Coach 'Frosty' Cox announced his decision to resign from the CU coaching helm and since then the team has been winning for 'Frosty.'

Their three victims have been Missouri, Kansas and Iowa State. The latter being one that edged the mighty Buffs in one of the first games of the season.

JIM ARMATAS—"Frosty" Cox's utility man, has hopes of once more being the "thorn in the Huskers' side." At Colorado, the little guard consistently broke up Husker plays. He has the highest percentage of field goals made for the Buffs and could cause a lot of trouble.

JOE MALACEK—even though hot and cold in the scoring column, has aided the Cornhuskers cause by using his 6'3", 195 pound frame to capture many rebounds. Joe is due for a hot night, and it might be this Saturday against the Buffaloes.

EUGENE ROGERS—scoring 162 points in 17 games, is the fourth high scorer for Colorado.

Cooper Is Shelved

By Knox Jones

Nebraska track fortunes suffered a severe setback Thursday. It was learned that Don Cooper, Husker sprinter and pole vaulter, sustained a pulled leg muscle in practice and may not be able to compete against Missouri on Saturday.

Cooper will definitely not run the 60 yard dash but may compete in the pole vault.

The Huskers have been counting on Cooper's points, particularly in the vault, and should he be unable to compete on Saturday, Nebraska's chances of beating the Tigers will be considerably impaired.

Lee Alexander, Plainview sophomore, is still shelved with an ankle injury and Bill Mueller and Jim Lyle will join Harry Meginnis in the 60 against Missouri. Lyle, Omaha senior, turned in a .064 in practice Wednesday.

Moans from M.U.

All is not roses in the Missouri camp either. Word from Columbia reports that sprinter Randy Vanet and quarter-miler Bob Schuster suffered pulled muscles against Notre Dame last week and will be unable to make the trip to Lincoln. Vanet is lost for the remainder of the indoor season.

Schuster, probably the Tiger's best quarter-miler, was being tabbed to place in both the 60 and the 440. His loss will also aid the Huskers in the mile relay.

Hurdlers Bill Self and Bob Foster, sprinter Roy Beavers and distance man Chester Franz are still recuperating in the Mizou camp from early injuries and are not expected to compete.

With the loss of Self and Foster the Huskers should score heavily in the high hurdles and Loyal Hurlbert may be able to bring home a blue ribbon in the 440 although he still has to face Tiger veterans Phil Klein, Gil Phillips and Jim Whitacre.

BOB PIERCE—the third of the towering three-somes.

Sig Ep Lead Narrowed; Both Fiji Teams Advance

By Bill Mundell

Sigma Phi Epsilon still leads the pack of intramural basketball teams in the fourth ratings, but its margin has been cut to a whisker. Four teams are crowding the Sig Eps for the top spot, three with perfect records.

Delta Tau Delta, Farm House, Alpha Tau Omega, and Phi Gamma Delta, rounding out the first division, are all within a field goal of the high perch.

The Sig Eps chalked-up their sixth straight contest last week, quipping the ZBT's for the second time, 43-15 with Art Hansen's 14 points helping a great deal.

The Deltas, ATO's, and Phi Gams also won their sixth straight last week. The Deltas had a rough time of it, edging Beta Theta Pi by the score of 29-28 with the ten points of Vandell. The Phi Gams took the 'big one,' dropping Sigma Nu, 41-35.

The ATO's copped two contests, a 88-22 massacre of Sigma Alpha Mu and a 41-28 decision over Pioneer Co-op.

Sigma Nu took the big fall in losing to the Fiji's, dropping from second to seventh behind sixth-place Phi Delta Theta which climbed a peg. The Nu's recovered Wednesday, however, to thrash Alpha Gamma Rho, 64-22 for the Aggies seventh straight loss.

A newcomer appeared in tenth position with the Phi Gamma Delta "B" team occupying that rung. The Fiji Bees are all victorious in five games and round out the top ten behind the Lutherans and Sigma Gamma Epsilon.

Absent from this week's ratings in Inter-Varsity, last week in sixth place. The Denom boys absorbed their first beating last week, a 27-38 decision to the Lutherans, giving them a 7-1 record.

Independents Stand Firm The independent ratings remained unchanged with the exception of three teams. Sigma Gamma Epsilon still holds down the top spot but is being pressed by the Warriors. Both have 4-0 records with the SGE's margins of victory more impressive.

Alpha Sigma Phi, YMCA, and the Lilies round out the first division with only the Lily record spotted with a loss. The YMCA cagers have the best record of the Independents, 5-0.

AGRI's Climb

Alpha Gamma Rho made the biggest climb in the Fraternity "B" ratings, jumping from seventh to fifth. The Aggies now sport a 4-1 record in "B" competition.

Phi Gamma Delta kept a strangle hold on the top "B" position with Sigma Phi Epsilon continuing in second. Alpha Tau Omega and Phi Delta Theta also remained firm in third and fourth to complete the first division.

Delta Upsilon and Sigma Nu each slipped a rung over the week, both being idle.
