

LEONARD KEHL—Big Seven indoor pole vault record holder, will have to give his best effort in order to retain his crown. Chief opposition will be the Sooners Bill Carroll. Carroll beat Kehl in the dual last Saturday, but Kehl might surprise.

Wildcats' "Cracker-Box" Reason For No Ducats

DON CAMPBELL—Colorado senior, is favored to retain his Big Seven 60 yard dash title in the conference indoor championships at Kansas City this weekend. Campbell set a new conference mark in .08.2 last year. He will graduate at the end of the winter quarter at Colorado.

A number of students were very much put out by the "No tickets for Nebraskans" at the Kansas State-Nebraska game to be held March 11, at Manhattan.

The reason is very simple. There is not enough room for all of the K-State students to see the game. The Wildcats' Nichols gym is very small, both for seating capacity and floor space—a "cracker-box."

The quarters are so cramped that the athletic department must print four different activity cards. The cards are four different colors and two colors are admitted to each game.

Usually at six o'clock, students holding one set of colors are admitted. Then at seven, if there are any seats remaining, another group is admitted. A number of the second group is left out "in the cold."

According to Business Manager A. J. Lewandowski, Nebraska saves tickets for the students from the visiting school, whenever they receive notice to that effect.

BILL MCGUIRE—Will be in for plenty of trouble when he tangles with Bob Karnes in the mile run. McGuire set a new conference record in 4:17.2 last year but has not shown last year's form in early meets. He will also compete in the two-mile.

LOOKING IT OVER—And worried, is track Coach Ed Weir. The form sheet (Daily Nebraskan) favors the Huskers by 7/12 of a point over Missouri. The Tigers, even though not a full strength, defeated the Huskers on the local oval. With enough out-side help, the Huskers could pull another surprise.

Midwest AAU Swimmers Here Saturday

The Nebraska swimming pool will be scene of another outstanding aquatic exhibition on Saturday. The Midwest A.A.U. championships will be held this year in the Cornhusker pool.

Preliminaries will begin at 10 a. m. and the final results will be at 2 p. m.

Some of the best swimmers in the Midwest will participate in the meet.

Of special interest to Nebraskans will be Dick Paynter. During his tenure at Omaha Central Paynter dominated Nebraska prep swimming for three years. He holds the state records in the 100 and 200 yard freestyle races. His outstanding accomplishment was winning the National Junior A.A.U. 100 yard freestyle last year.

Also back to match their skill against stronger competition will be some Nebraska prep swimmers who were in the state high meet last week.

Dave Van de Water, who last week set new records in the 100 yard back stroke and 150 yard individual medley, should do very well even though he will have keener competition.

BOB BERSHIRE—Leading the Big Seven's great crop of high hurdlers, must retain his crown won last year if the Huskers have hopes for another surprise victory.

Student Union Table Tennis Team Bolstered

The University of Nebraska table tennis club will be seeking revenge this Friday as they travel to the University of Omaha. The Huskers dropped a 16-9 decision earlier this year.

Nebraska hopes have been boosted by the addition of Eddie Sarkisian on the team. Sarkisian, who enrolled at the university this semester, was number two player in Persia.

Also competing this Friday will be Creighton University. Neither Omaha or Nebraska have played Creighton this year.

The Nebraska team is sponsored by the Student Union Competitive Games Committee.

Spring Practice Forced Indoors

BY IRA EPSTEIN.

The weather proved to be a stumbling block to Coach Bill Glassford as the spring football practice got underway Monday.

Sunny skies and spring temperature softened the sod to the extent the Cornhuskers were kept inside the first day.

Bill planned on keeping the boys in again Tuesday.

The Field House arena was sufficiently large for the 80 participants who went through early chores. The Monday drill moved along with clockwork precision.

Glassford received his first bad news when he learned that three boys turned up with first semester scholastic hurdles.

Three on List.

The athletes on the ineligibility list are Tracy Busch, Pender end, Rich Yost, Omaha South back, and Bobby Hahn, Grand Island back.

Busch and Yost are not in school, but Hahn, ace runner and blocker on Grand Island's State championship prep eleven, had a change of making the grade in the fall.

Until Glassford can take the boys outside, he will not hold a scrimmage. While inside, he will stress fundamentals, "two on one" contact work, and work with the backs.

During spring practice, Glassford is planning on making necessary line changes. Position changes thus far are the following: Joe Ponsiego, Chicago, was moved from back to end; Dick Carr, Eagle, transferred from back to end, and Richard Goll, Tekamah, switched from guard to end.

Four Missing.

Gridders missing from Monday workouts were Bob Mullen of Connelville, Pa. veteran tackle who was keeping a dentist appointment, Herman Dinklage, Wiener tackle who has a leg injury, and Herb Reese, Omaha tackle who still is busy with the wrestling squad.

A lot of us were surprised last Saturday night as we listened to the Iowa State-Nebraska basketball game over the radio. Perhaps some of you weren't, but I am willing to venture to say that at least 99 percent were just as shocked as I was.

The athlete of the week was undoubtedly Guard Joe Brown. Brown, the guy with ice-water for blood, is always "cool" when the pressure is on. Every time Coach Harry Good needs a few points, in goes Brown.

Brown is able to grasp the situation and do what is necessary to bring victory. He also seems to play his best game on foreign courts—something not very common among athletes.

The Bradley, Missouri and Iowa State games were, by far, the best performances this year. All of these games were played on the road.

Track Coach Ed Weir should be given credit for the way the dual meets have been run off. Everyone has started promptly, with the field events commencing at seven and the running events at 7:30.

It's quite a job to see to it that every meet runs off according to the schedule. There was a delay in the Sooner-Husker dual Saturday though. The broad jump ran overtime, but that was through no fault of the officials.

Some of the Oklahoma tracksters were doubling-up on events and that caused them to be late with their jumps. The mile relay was held up because of that.

None of the spectators seemed to mind though, for they were listening to the basketball game, through the courtesy of Jack Burley, the announcer. They were kept up-to-date on the score throughout the entire meet and when the overtime started, Burley held the "mike" to the radio and gave the crowd a chance to hear the game.

Burley, by the way, does a nice job handling the announcer's job.

Most of the fans missed the two new records set at the end of the meet. Merwin McConnell's broad jump record and the Huskers relay conquest received no notice by the fans when they were announced.

Knox Jones, track student manager and staff sports writer, has compiled a very interesting "dope-sheet" for the Big Seven indoor meet at Kansas City Friday and Saturday.

The sheet, according to the best times and marks of conference athletes, represents a lot of work and Jones has done a fine job in compiling all the figures.

Don "Moose" Cooper is laying off work-outs this week in hopes of fully recovering for the Big Seven meet. If Cooper is ready, he will add greatly to Nebraska's chances for another surprise indoor victory.

Leonard Kehl, pole vault record holder, is slowly improving in his form. Kehl is somewhat hampered by a back injury. Sooner Bill Carroll is favored to take that event, but Kehl always works the best when the competition is the toughest.

Coach Bill "I'm a Nebraskan" Glassford had his football hopefuls running a top speed in his first Spring practice of the year. The boys seem to be in as good a shape as they were last fall.

NU Is 16th Cage Team

Nebraska's league leading cagers were finally recognized in the Associated Press' National Standings Tuesday by being placed in 16th place. The Cornhuskers, ignored by the ratings for the whole basketball season, garnered a total of 96 points.

Coach Good's cagers have a good chance to up their position in the next couple of weeks with two conference contests remaining and a playoff with the nation's top team, Bradley, providing the Huskers win the league title.

Also representing the Big Seven and in 13th place in the rankings this week is Kansas State. No other conference team received mention.

Vacanti Named Football Coach At Fairbury

Sam Vacanti, ex-Husker quarterback and professional football player, has accepted the head football coaching duties at Fairbury High school, replacing Frank Sullivan, who resigned.

The official announcement came Tuesday afternoon.

The Board of Education had interviewed many Nebraska graduates for the position.

Vacanti will start his new and first coaching assignment some time in August. Vacanti is one of Glassford's assistants for spring practice.

Here's Your Chance, Pick The All-Team

In order to give the students of the University a chance to voice their opinions as to whom they think should be placed on the All-Big Seven basketball team, the Sports department of The Daily Nebraskan will run the pictures of those players who we think are deserving of the honor.

"We do not have pictures of all the players so, if your "favorite" is left out, do not feel that we are passing him by. A story, telling of his ability will appear, whenever his picture is not run.

All letters should be addressed to:

Cyclone Track Head Tabs Twenty-Six For Big Seven Meet

AMES—George Brettnall, Iowa State track coach, has named 26 men to represent the Cyclones in the twenty-second annual Big Seven indoor track and field meet at Kansas City this weekend.

Sixteen of the list are sophomores, probably the greatest number of first-year men to represent any school in the meet.

Busiest man will be Jim Doran who will compete in the 440, both jumps and the shot.

Brettnall has hopes of his hurdlers and distance men surprising the dopesters to help Iowa State improve on the 1949 scoring in the meet. R. G. Wolf, Mac Verner, Vern Robinson, Jerry Moorhead, and Lee Maddocks have all shown improved speed and form over the hurdles in recent meets.

Gene Shaver, Ed Smith, and Mac Baty are the distance men rounding into good shape.
