

Recent Art Work Additions On Display at Morrill Hall

The new acquisitions to the University Hall art collection are now on display on second floor of Morrill hall near the gallery of recent art.

Eleven works, including three sculpture pieces, three oils, one tempera painting, two drawings, an etching, and a lithograph were acquired this year from the Nebraska Art Association's 80th annual exhibition of contemporary art. The show was on display at Morrill hall from March 5 to April 2.

The eleven works were selected by Frederick A. Sweet, associate curator of painting and sculpture at the Art Institute of Chicago, and Otto Karl Bach, director of the Denver Art Museum.

Recommendations

The two men, partly on the basis of the opinions of the general public who saw the show and on the opinions of the University art department staff, made the recommendations for the purchases. These recommendations must still be approved by the University Board of Regents.

Many show spectators were surprised that nearly all of the eleven acquisitions were of contemporary style—some even abstract.

In response to this Dwight Kirsch, director of the Morrill hall art galleries explains: "Some of the works which were bought this year are a departure from the general trend of the Hall collection. The things bought this year must be looked at in relation to works already contained in the permanent collection. The new purchases will be extremely valuable as teaching material."

Purchases

"What is unusual about the results of the 1950 show is the amount of purchases made from it for private collections. Nebraskans bought over $7,000 worth of paintings this year as compared to $1,200 last year. It is also interesting to note that some of these purchases were made by University students who are just beginning to collect," commented Kirsch.

Gaston Lachaise's bronze portrait "Head of John Marin" has been regarded by many as one of the greatest portrait sculptures of this century. The piece was modeled in clay and cast in bronze.

Marino Marin's "Horseman," another bronze, is an imaginative piece of casting done by an Italian sculptor in a Chinese style. Marino now has his own show in New York City.

"Adam" by William Zorach is carved from a mottled pink and gray granite boulder from Maine where Zorach works each summer. Zorach is one of the best known American sculptors.

Frosh Actors To Give Play May 18, 19

Production date has been announced for the first experimental theatre play with a cast comprised entirely of freshmen.

Max Whitaker, director of "Guest in the House," announced that the production would be given Thursday and Friday, May 18 and 19 from 3 to 5 p. m. at the experimental theatre in the Temple building.

Written by Hagar Wilde and Dale Eunsion, the play was found quite popular by Broadway goers and was later incorporated into a motion picture with Anne Baxter taking the principal role.

Consisting of three acts, the play will employ the acting of 13 cast members which Whitaker announced as follows:

Diane Downing, Emily; Dick Shubert, Douglas; Proctor, Marjorie; Line, Anne; Proctor; Betty Stratton, Aunt Martha; Alice Meyers, Lee; Proctor; Jack Moore, Dan; Proctor; Mary Kay Tolliver, Miriam Blake; Wes Jency, Mr. Dow; Gertrude Carey, Mrs. Dow; Dave Sleser, Dr. Shan; Lucy Lawrence, Pamela Rhodes; Chris Trap, Cam Tracy, and Ward Lindley, John. Serving as production manager will be Dennis Vernon.

Action

Action of the play begins when Mr. and Mrs. Proctor, together with their healthy, bumptious youngster, Lee, a pleasant sensible, agreeable and happy family, meet Mrs. Proctor's cousin, Evelyn. She has heart trouble and must be treated as an invalid. She has a psychopathic terror of birds and she plays "Liebestraum" over and over again on the victrola in her room.

The gradual, but decided change which occurs in the Proctor household, is slowly traced to Evelyn and her neurotic personality.

Whittaker Comments.

Said Director Whitaker, "The suspense of the play is hastened as the audience begins to realize that this girl is capable of using any means to achieve her own desire. The climax of the play comes as a shock but we feel that Evelyn has achieved her just reward."

Whittaker stated that this play will be the first ever to be presented by freshmen at the University. He added, "It is a culmination of the year's work that the freshmen acting group has done." The group was just inaugurated this year.

Two-House System

A second major issue arising at last night's Council meeting concerned the possibility of establishing a two-house system of legislation for future Student Council.

The proposal was made by Rod Lindwall and calls for one house to be made up of representatives elected from colleges, and the second house to be formed from representatives from campus organizations.

In support of the proposal, Gene Berg commented, "Under a two house system much more could be done. I'm getting tired of hearing talk about time, the important thing is to have a good constitution." He then moved that discussion on the committee plan be tabled and a committee appointed to look into the possibilities of a two-house system of government.

The motion was passed and the following committee appointed: Rod Lindwall, Gene Berg, Ginny Guhin, and Louise McMill.

Abstract in Oil

The abstract oil painting "Mediterranean Landscape" by John Heikler was done during a trip by the artist to Europe last year.

"The Desert," an oil of a Texan landscape proved popular with show visitors, especially the school children. The painter, Everett Spruce, achieved the warm colors by painting with rich juicy pigments straight from the tube.

Mark Tobey's 'Icon'

Mark Tobey's "Icon," though reminiscent of finger painting, is an abstract scene done in Tobey's distinctive style—calligraphic white lines superimposed on a low-keyed painting surface.

"Draped Reclining Figures" is a page from the sketchbook of the artist, European Henry Moore. It shows 12 misshapen figures arranged like a wallpaper pattern on the shaded background. Paul Klee, whose famous Bauhaus school of art had such a tremendous influence on modern art and industrial design, did "Seeking Balance" in ink and water color.

Acquisitions

One etching and one lithograph are included in the print acquisitions. Of historical significance is John Sloan's "Memories," which shows a familiar scene dated 1906. It is an etching.

The lithograph was done by a famous Mexican artist, Jose Clemente Orozco, "La Bandera," is a strongly patterned illusion reminiscent of some of Goya's war etchings.

The Hall Bequests

The Hall bequests provide, from income on the principle, enough funds to add each year, selections from the Nebraska art association's show. The bequest was left the University in 1930 by Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Hall.

"General unsolicited comments indicate that this year's show is one of the best of recent years. The people who saw it seemed to get a lot out of it," stated Kirsch.

The University art faculty provided gallery talks throughout the duration of the show for interested groups who attended. Students from Doane college made the trip to Lincoln as did a group of art students from Hastings college.

There, he will teach courses in which two of his recent textbooks are being used. The books are "An Introduction to Critical Thinking" and "A History of Philosophical Ideas in America." 'Esquire' Suggests 10 Steps For Male's Ideal Courtship

Most American women grow up, become engaged, marry and have children without ever coming closer to a good double-distilled, 90-proof job of wooing than the nauseous beatings of a Dagwood for that great American heroine, Blondie, claims Esquire magazine, May edition.

To help the poor American male who has the will but scant knowledge of the way of wooing and winning his woman, the May issue of the magazine features an eight-page supplement, "The Art of Our Courtship." This is highlighted by an outline of the 10 phases of a deluxe courtship from the first date to the fireworks.

Loyalty Oath Under Protest At California U

The University of California loyalty oath issue has been under fire by the faculty and students alike. The oath was put into force by the board of Regents who state that the oath must be signed by April 30.

The Daily California, official U.C. publication, reports that the Associated Students of University of California called a protest meeting recently to complain about the Regents' loyalty oath.

Members of the U.C. faculty have also held meetings to discuss the loyalty oath. Members were in favor, the Daily Californian reports, of defending non-signers of the Communist loyalty pledge. The members then declared that they would defend only non-Communist non-signers.

An editorial in the Daily Californian states, "In order for a non-signer to get the faculty under this new policy, he must be a non-Communist. How is this to be determined? The easiest way, of course would be for the non-signer to state: 'I am not a Communist.' Such a statement would, in effect, destroy his status as a non-signer."

The Daily Californian stated that the faculty might request an injunction from the state supreme court to forbid enforcement of the "sign or quit order."

Another course of action, the paper reports, might be a suit against the Regents filed in the name of one or more non-signers.
