Cotton and Denim Dance To Open Farmers Fair

Rag Contrasts 'New and Old' Page Sizes

Today's front page is a far cry from what students and faculty members have been seeing in The Daily Nebraskan this semester. The amount of news-filled space represents the old tabloid size, the size to which The Daily Nebraskan will return unless students vote for a 50 cent fee raise to continue the present seven-column paper.

Students will have the chance to express their approval or disapproval of the larger Daily Nebraskan in their Wednesday 9 o'clocks, with the proposed Union fee raise. The seven-column paper has been running on the same subscription price which paid for last semester's five-column "Rag," and this fee has not proved sufficient to make ends meet. If the students vote "yes" on the subscription hike, they will continue to receive the larger paper.

Short of Space

Last semester, working with the amount of space represented on today's front page, the "Rag" staff often was unable to print much of the news which came into the Nebraskan office. It generally was necessary to cut stories down to the minimum facts; and if an item wasn't the "big" news of the day, it ran the risk of not being printed.

Had the tabloid size been used throughout today's paper, on all four pages, much news again would have been lost. "Just Around" and "News and Views" would have been tossed out, and the other columns which appear in the larger "Rag" on other days of the week would never see print. Sports would take a heavy blow, and editorial space would be limited.

Continuance of the present, "king-size" Nebraskan depends on the student vote.

Ag Goddess, Whisker King To Reign at April 28 Affair

Union Addition Drive Enters Final Stages

Campaign maneuvers are still in strong operation in the drive for a Union addition.

"Nebraska Next" posters with large bold red letters, active campaigning for support from campus organizations, scheduled radio time on University programs, a planned questionnaire to be taken to every part of the campus by a staff of nearly 100 Union activities workers—all are a part of the big drive initiated at the beginning of this week by the Union expansion committee.

The campaign will continue through Tuesday, April 25. Wednesday the students will decide in an all University poll whether there will be a Union addition.

So far, 42 organizations have pledged their support of the increase in fees which is necessary before any expansion may be accomplished.

They are:
Independent Student's Association, Gamma Lambda, Pi Kappa Phi, Women's Athletic Association, Phi Upsilon Omicron, Alpha Omicron Pi, Kappa Phi, Theta Xi and All Women's Society.

Pioneer House, Norris House, All University Fund, Towne Club, Sigma Chi, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, Beta Sigma Psi, Tau Sigma, Innocents society, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Delta Tau, Zeta Beta Tau, Kappa Sigma, University Builders, Sigma Kappa, Alpha Chi Omega, Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Alpha Mu, Delta Delta Delta, Amikita, Alpha Gamma Rho, Corn Cobs, Pi Beta Phi, Gamma Phi Beta, International House, Love Memorial, Alpha Phi, Chi Omega, Phi Gamma Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma and American Society of Civil Engineers.

The questionnaires to ascertain students' opinions will be taken out Monday afternoon by a special group of workers who will be fully informed on the Union situation as it now stands and will be able to answer questions concerning addition proposals. They will note the views of the students regarding the considered facilities.

More information about the large scale student contacting and results will be published in following editions of the "Rag." It is planned by the committee that the student contacts will be as representative as possible.

In order that this may be accomplished, the contactors, who will not merely be pollers, will take out the forms to all parts of the campus.

Also the survey will be more authoritative if the student interviewed will include simple information about himself. This will eliminate any haphazard tabulation on the part of either the interviewer or interviewee.

This is the reason for the preliminary section asking personal information.

The committee is asking the co-operation of students in grading the questionnaire sheets. The compilation of returns from the contacts Monday afternoon will be revealed in Tuesday's edition of The Daily Nebraskan.

It is felt by the committee that with the student contacts a careful analysis of the feeling on the addition may be made. It will give an opportunity for all students to participate in the planning of the building if the vote is "yes" Wednesday at the election.

Members of the committee wished to point out to students that as students visit the polls they should remember that the fee increase is the only means

Graduate students have been requested to wait until June 6 or Sept. 11 to begin registration. They will not need ticket numbers.

Journalism Groups Plan May Banquet

Five journalism organizations will combine to sponsor the annual spring journalism banquet at Cotner Terrace on May 11.

The banquet traditionally marks the climax of student activities for the year in the School of Journalism. All students in journalism, staff members on any campus publications or others who may be interested, are invited to attend.

Like the last two years, the speaker will be a journalism professor from a neighboring state institution, Prof. Leslie G. Mosler, director of the University of Iowa School of Journalism and past president of the Iowa Press association, has accepted the invitation to be this year's speaker.

Sponsoring groups include Gamma Alpha Chi, women's advertising sorority; Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism professional; Kappa Alpha Mu, photography; and both the campus and state professional chapters of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism professional.

Following a custom of previous years, undergraduates, who have been initiated into Sigma Delta Chi this spring, will be guests of the chapter at the banquet. Other guests will be five state newspaper editors who will be initiated into the professional chapter at a special ceremony preceding the banquet.
