

AER Revue to Feature Fads of Past 50 Years

Highlights from the past half-century will be presented Sunday in "I Can Almost Hear It Now," Alpha Epsilon Rho's musical revue.

Written and produced by Gaylord Marr, the two-hour show will include humorous comment on the fads of yesterday, as well as music which had everyone's toes tapping in years gone by. The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Union ballroom. Admission is free.

Bob Vollmer will underscore the entire presentation with keyboard improvisations, ranging from music which sounds like a 1900 player piano to that typical of a sophisticated cocktail lounge.

Not Serious Commentary
Considerable research has gone into the preparation of this revue. It is by no means intended as serious commentary. Rather it is hoped to give the students who are too young to remember much of the past half century a sense of surprise, delight and discovery.

Many students may be like Patsy Dutton, who appears in song specialties throughout the revue. When told that her Girl-on-the-Police Gazette costume would include a feather b.o.a., Miss Dutton asked, "What's that?"

of the role of radio—its birth and rise as a leading cultural and entertainment medium—sustains the continuity of the script.

Marconi's Wireless
The revue begins with an account of Marconi's attempt, in three European capitals, to gain subsidy for further experimentation with the wireless. Flavouring this portion of the program, which recalls the years

Ralph Bunche--Holder Of Numerous 'Firsts'

Dr. Ralph Bunche, who is scheduled to speak at a University convocation Monday, May 8, has an outstanding list of firsts in many fields of endeavor.

He was the first Negro ever to be offered the job of assistant secretary of state.

He was the first Negro ever to serve as an acting chief within the state department.

He was awarded the Toppan prize for the best social science dissertation of 1934. His topic was "French Administration in Togoland and Dahomey." Since he was personally dissatisfied with the old method of obtaining material through reports, he made a trip to Africa to study the conditions for himself.

He received the Chicago Defender award in 1945 for his work on race relations. He worked in conjunction with Gunnar Myrdal, Swedish sociologist, on a book "An American Dilemma." During the course of their research, Myrdal and three southern towns.

Mediator
During the 1947-48 period, he Bunche was run out of at least was the principal secretary and representative of the secretary general on the United Nations

Palestine commission. In this capacity, he successfully brought the Arabs and the Jews in Palestine to an agreement.

During the 1944-47 period, he served as an adviser or delegate at nine major world conferences. This is considered to be something of a record.

He was co-director of the Institute of Race Relations at Swarthmore college in 1936.

He was principal research analyst on Africa and the Far East for the Office of Strategic Services in 1942-43.

He received Phi Beta Kappa and summa cum laude honors upon his graduation from U.C.L.A. in 1927.

Sports Editor
He was sports editor of the U.C.L.A. yearbook and won three letters on championship basketball teams.

He was valedictorian of his high school class.

These are only a few of the honors which have come to Bunche, who is the grandson of a Negro slave and son of a barber. Both of his parents died when he was 12 and he lived with his grandmother until his graduation from college.

He has served as chairman of the political science department at Howard university since 1928, but has been on leave from that post since 1941.

Orchestrating Show To Interpret U.S. Panorama

An American panorama and a dance interpretation of "Empire Jones" will be presented by Orchestras in the annual spring dance recital in Grant Memorial hall, May 5 and 6 at 8 p.m.

Lloyd Lotspeich will be the soloist in the southern interpretation, showing worship, gaiety, and work of the negroes.

The dance composing class of Helen Martin will compose the northern dance, which will show Tales from Paul Bunyon.

The second theme of the dance recital is based upon the Eugene O'Neill play, "Empire Jones." The remainder of the show will be presented by members of an intermediate modern dance class.

Students Urged To Consult Advisors Now

All University students are urged by the assignments committee to confer with their advisors at the earliest possible moment.

Students are asked to take care of arranging conference and meeting with their advisors this week so that they can devote next week to the mechanics of registration, according to Dr. Floyd Hoover, assistant registrar.

Dr. Hoover pointed out that students should take advantage of the fact that advisors are reasonably available this week. Later, he stressed, it will be considerably more difficult to see them.

"One of the most important phases of registration," stated Dr. Hoover, "is that of advising. Students should realize and take advantage of the advisors. Problems that arise with registration and the courses of study should be cleared up in conferences with advisors."

200 'Staters' Attend First Reunion Event

More than 200 former Boy and Girl Staters renewed former acquaintances and recalled happenings of former "Staters" at the first annual reunion of Boys' and Girls' State Saturday evening.

The former Staters heard greetings by Mrs. John Curtiss, president of 1950 Girls' State; Judge E. F. Carter, president of 1950 Boys' State; and Pon Chinn, Governor of 1948 Cornhusker Boys' State.

A skit entitled, "Letter to Ma," was given by members of former Girls' State, and a skit presenting familiar scenes of Boys' State was given by former Boy Staters. Dolly McQuistan, Glenn Rosenquist and Eldon Schaefer were in charge of the skits.

Kinsey Report on Female Sex Previewed in Redbook Article

The forthcoming book, "Sexual Behavior in the Human Female," Morris L. Ernst and David Loth viewed in a recent article by Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, is pre-appearing in the May issue of Redbook magazine.

Under the title of "What Kinsey Will Tell," the authors believe Kinsey's report will show that the sexual development of women is slower than that of men. Only about twenty-five percent of the females have experienced the climax of emotional excitement by the time they are fifteen, as compared with ninety-two percent among males. Women's experience in this respect does not become comparable with men's until the age of nearly thirty, the article states.

Educational Problem
This problem poses as a difficulty for our educational system, which is geared to handling students by age, the article continues, and goes on to declare that women, unlike men, retain their maximum sexual drive over a period of five or six years.

The Redbook article says that "petting" increases with the amount of education attained, but it states that one third of college women who marry never attain complete sexual satisfaction. This is true, the article says, despite the fact that in recent years, college women have been taught

Theatre to Present Final Play 'School for Scandal' May 8-10

With only five rehearsals remaining until the opening performance, cast members of the University Theatre's fifth play of the season, "The School for Scandal," are putting the finishing touches on a peculiar type of movement and dialect.

To be presented May 8, 9 and 10 at the Nebraska theater, the comedy written by Richard B. Sheridan, will highlight a form of characterization which typifies eighteenth century Britons.

Strongly satirical, the drama will poke fun at the stereotyped actions of oversophisticated London inhabitants.

Dallas Williams, director of the Theatre's final play of the year, said, "The play will be produced in the style and manner of the period in which the play was written. We are not attempting to be at all realistic in the stage work. We are attempting to use the style of acting that was used in 1777 in London, England," he said.

"Our modern style," added Williams, "is quite different. It is realistic and more straightforward. However drama of the eighteenth century stresses artificial and unrealistic action."

British Dialect
"A unique feature of the comedy," related Williams, "is the use of British dialect which will be employed throughout the entire play. It has been difficult to attempt to train 15 midwestern dramatists to use the British dialect."

"In order to obtain the correct diction, a native of England, Rita Shaw, has helped by serving as diction coach," said Williams. She has also been of great value to us through her theatrical experience."

"One of our greatest problems," stated Williams, "has been to affect the manners of the people of this period. In Sheridan's time, they behaved quite differently. Men and women both were very affected in their movements. Men were so sophisticated and serious in movement such as bowing that they appeared almost feminine."

It is necessary in the play to portray over-exaggerated manners that still appear virile and not feminine. In this period, men dipped snuff, wore long silk handkerchiefs, and lace on their clothing. Both men and women wore powdered wigs.

Cast
Cast members are: Sharon Fritzier as Lady Teazle, Mike Shanahan as Joseph Surface, Donald Sobolik as Sir Peter Teazle, Don Nichols as Sir Oliver Surface, Ced Hartman as Charles Surface, Marjorie Miller as Lady Sneerwell, Elaine Elliott as Mrs. Candour, Christine Phillips as Maria, Ralph Haneman as Mr. Crabtree, Milton Hoffman as Mr. Snake, Tom Stimpff as Sir Benjamin Backbite, Bill Klamm as Rowley, Jack Wenstrand as Careless, and Charles Huestis as Trap.

"The play is full of situations which prove embarrassing to the characters in the play," said Williams. "Some of the scenes produce excruciatingly funny to the audience."

Plot
"Many intricacies make for extremely clever comedy," commented Williams. "The plot of the story is laid in the first scene of the play, Lady Sneerwell and Snake are the shadier members

Applications Due For Oslo Study

Students interested in study abroad at the summer school for American students at the University of Oslo in Norway are urged to make their application immediately. The term will be held from June 26 to August 5 and about 250 American students will be admitted.

The courses, to be taught in the English language, are open to all American students who will have completed at least two college years by June of this year. The main emphasis this summer will be on courses pertaining to Norwegian culture, geography, language, literature, music and art. A total of six semester credits may be earned during the six weeks' course.

Charges for this session have been reduced following the devaluation of the Norwegian crown. The tuition for the six weeks term is $80; the student fee, which includes health insurance, is $10; and the excursion fee, $20. The roundtrip fare, tourist class on the Norwegian American line, is $360.

Application blanks should be obtained from the Oslo Summer School Admissions office, St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn.

Palmer Reports Business Loss In Small Towns

Many small Nebraska communities face possible extinction unless they "face squarely the issue of declining population."

That is the conclusion reached by Dr. Edgar Z. Palmer, head of the University business research department, who has just completed a study of factors responsible for the decline of business and population in Clay Center and in Clay county. This survey was made at the request of Clay Center business men.

Seven specific things "which need to be done to renew the fading life of the small city, as exemplified by Clay Center," were suggested by Dr. Palmer. His recommendations are as follows:

Suggestions
1. The diversification of agriculture in the surrounding areas, especially the more intensive types of farming such as livestock production, should be stimulated.

2. A city-wide program for the improvement of store fronts and renovation of interior displays should be inaugurated to make the city's stores as attractive as the same sized stores in larger communities.

3. The city should be advertised widely over the county by means of billboards and illuminated signs, especially at strategic corners where signs would help lead traffic into the business district of the town.

Improve Retail Trade
4. The town should make an effort to overcome any specific weaknesses in the retail trade lines.

5. The towns should try to enlist the aid of the state division of resources and industries and other agencies in attracting new small factories to the city.

6. The towns should stimulate local men's efforts to establish manufacturing.

7. Full co-operation of all city leaders is essential to any efforts for the goods of the city. The cities where this is possible probably are the ones which survive as the general population level is lowered in the region.

Student Writes Of Native Land

"Afghanistan Is Land of Little Light" is the title of a recent article written by Mohamed K. Roshan, a university senior, majoring in journalism. The article is currently appearing in the May issue of the Nebraska Electric Farmer.

Roshan, an exchange student from Afghanistan, relates how little electricity there is in the country, but that electrification is coming to them soon.

The Nebraska Electric Farmer, official publication of the Nebraska REA projects, has a circulation of over 42,000.
