Boys, Girls States Draw 550 Prepsters

A week of studying Nebraska state government by conducting a miniature state is in store for more than 550 high school juniors this week from all over Nebraska.

The 300 boys and 250 girls who are attending their respective Boy's State and Girls' States on the University campus this week are holding a government laboratory to examine the functions of state government. They will conduct their own elections and appoint officers corresponding to actual state officials.

Boys' State election results are to be announced Tuesday with inauguration ceremonies scheduled for Tuesday evening. Girl Staters will wind up their elections Thursday with inauguration Friday at the state capitol.

Included in the week's activities are a visit to the State capitol to examine the work and meet the official of the office each individual holds; a three hour examination of a manual sent to the group prior to their arrival in Lincoln; and lectures on state government by officials.

Gov. Val Peterson will address both sessions. He will speak to the Boys Staters Wednesday evening. Chief Justice Simmons will conduct a general assembly of the boys, and speak at Girls' state.

The third annual Boys'-Girls' State dance will be Friday from 3:30 to 5:45 p.m., in the Union ballroom.
