Lengthy Classes . . .

(The following editorial is reprinted from the Blue and Gray, Harrigate College, Tenn.)

The subject of classes held over the hour is a problem continually discussed by the students but seldom brought to the attention of offending professors.

Before labelling the offenders we feel that it is necessary to commend those profs who are attentive of the time and dismiss their classes promptly. But for those consistently unaware of the time allotted them we have distinct categories—the well-meaning enthusiast, the proverbial absent-minded professor and the talkative egotist.

Least offensive of the three in the eyes of the students is the well-meaning enthusiast who conscientiously retains his students with a sincere intention of giving them their due. There are many times when a minute or two more would suffice to wind up a lecture or to clear up points of discussion. If it is an occasional event, the students do not object; when they woefully await it daily it becomes another matter. Regardless of how well-meaning a prof may be, he asks for and receives time not due him.

The talkative egotist is not only unduly proud of his vast store of knowledge but usually has a lush crush on the sound of his own voice. In most cases involving members of this classification the students are eagerly awaiting the official end of class ten to twenty minutes before it is due. Our egotist can roar and roar after the ten-of mark, and a mere few, if any, will listen to him.

Our absent-minded professor is a victim of circumstances. Chances are students are not so hard on his name but are somewhat resentful anyway. More often he is of a pleasant nature and takes a hint the third time a notebook is slammed to the floor. Sometimes such a prof will request that someone remind him of the time several minutes before class is to end, but he does not do that as often as he should.

These teachers who abuse their time allotment take advantage of both the student and their colleagues. How many of these same offenders display a sharply raised eyebrow when a student creeps in late? They are highly resentful of tardiness and at the same time are often the cause of it.—Blue and Gray, Harrigate college, Tenn.

State Parents To Consult Child Expert

Interested parents can get three main kinds of practical help in raising their children Wednesday and Thursday at the University.

Dr. Frank Sorenson, director of the University Summer Session which is sponsoring the sessions along with the Nebraska Council of Family Life Education, said these are:

(1) Advice on personal child-raising problems at question and answer sessions with Dr. Ralph Ojeman of the Child Welfare Research Station at the University of Iowa, Dr. William Hall and Dr. Ruth Staples of the University of Nebraska, and other experts.

(2) Suggestions on how to organize and lead neighborhood groups which would serve as clearing houses for exchanging experiences and information.

(3) Information on books, pamphlets, study group aids and motion pictures. The conference will have a large exhibit on these aids, including books from the Nebraska Public Library Commission, Lincoln City Library collections, new books by publishers, government pamphlets and bulletins, and motion pictures most of which are available from the University's film library.

The conference will be held in Room 108, Burnett hall, starting at 9:15 a.m. Wednesday and ending Thursday at 3:30 p.m. The fee is $1.

Dr. Ojeman is the author of numerous articles on adolescent development, mental hygiene and parent education. In 1943 he was named chairman of Parent Education for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers and in 1944 was chairman of the Committee on Growth and Development of the American Educational Research association.

Lutherans Tell Summer Plan

The Lutheran Student association will meet each Tuesday during the summer session. The first meeting will be held June 13 at 6 p. m. at the Lutheran Student House, 1440 Q St.

Speaker for the evening will be Alice Otterness, Lutheran Student counselor from the University of Texas.

A Bible hour discussion will be held each Wednesday at the student house at 7:15 p. m. Picnics are also planned for the summer.

Boys', Girls' Staters 'Tired' After Week of Government

Approximately 550 tired Nebraska junior youths returned to their homes Saturday and Monday after a week's study of state government on the University campus.

The youths, Cornhusker Boys' and Girls' Staters, wound up their week's activities which included election of officers for their miniature states, inaugural ceremonies, a joint dance, tours, lectures and legislature and other official sessions.

One highlight of the Girls' State session was the inauguration at which Gov. Joanne Jacobs of Omaha Central asked for a state Hoover commission to survey Nebraska government with a view toward greater efficiency and economy.

The oath of office was administered by Pat Bradley of Scottsbluff, Chief Justice of the Supreme court.

Results of a poll taken at Boys' State revealed that the members favored increased taxes for Nebraska highway improvement. The margin was 212 to 75. The lads opposed a Federal tax cut by Congress and a cut in Marshall plan aid.

Climaxing the recreational program of both states was the third annual Boys' and Girls' State joint dance. Politics were forgotten for a couple hours as the mythical states joined.

Both sessions heard talks by Nebraska's real governor, Val Peterson. At the Girls' State inauguration he urged the high school juniors to carry on their interest in government and to make their influence felt in their hometowns. "Be participating citizens in your communities," he told the girls.

Lithuanian Delegate.

A Lithuanian delegate to Girls' State, who is observing the functions of the session expressed "surprise" Friday at the activity and knowledge shown by Cornhusker girls. A student at Hastings, the girl, Tatiana Mazuro, is observing the session in compliance with a plank that both parties had in platforms last year—to have a foreign student attend Girls' State.

More than 500 attended the annual reunion-banquet of Girls' State Saturday evening which featured a theme of "World Friendship." A new addition to the annual event was the distribution of a newsletter giving information about former Girl Staters since the state was organized in 1939.

Thirteen Seniors Become Officers

Thirteen graduating University seniors were sworn in as officers in the Navy and Marine Corps at ceremonies held on the campus following commencement.

One hundred and twelve others received Army and Air Force commissions.

Taking the oath for the navy from Commander R. P. Nicholson of the Navy ROTC faculty were Marine 2nd Lts. Edward Racely, Kenneth Hornbacher, and Robert Berkshire and Ensigns Richard Nash, William Nash, Russell Peterson, and Frederick Herzog. Other men joining the navy regular were Robert Hackbart, Harold Gerhart, Don Finstrom, Bruce Johnson, Gordon Pauley, and William Bayreuther, jr.

Bridge Lessons Start Wednesday

William B. Tyson, Union Bridge Instructor, will again teach beginning bridge in the Union Game Room, Wednesdays from four to six o'clock.

For those who know the fundamentals, Mr. Tyson will give brush-up pointers. The series of six lessons will include bidding, counting, playing hands, scoring, and many special pointers on better bridge.

Students, faculty and staff members are urged to register in the Union Activities office prior to the first session which will be held June 14.

Kerr Cops Union Ping Pong Meet

William D. Kerr won the Union Table Tennis Tourney held Saturday, June 10, at the Union. Kerr eliminated Del Harding in the first round, Ray Solhjoo in the second and then trounced Morteza Solhjoo in the finals, winning each match two games to one.
