A Bouquet . . .

Next to air conditioning, the most refreshing thing on campus this summer has been the multitude of All-State Fine Arts students.

For the past two weeks their boundless enthusiasm has filled the halls of the Union, the Music building, Temple, and Morrill hall. Nothing seems to be dull to them. The example of eagerness which they have set is something of which more regular session students might well take note.

Nobody asks, "What do we have to take this for?" Every one of the 250 All-Staters loves every minute of the work they take here. They know the art of learning and loving it.

Not only the students deserve praise. The director of the All-State course, David Foltz, deserves much credit too, for the hours of work which he and his staff have put into the program to make it successful.

The course has come a long way in the ten years since its beginning, when Dr. A. E. Westbrook headed the first course. Then the program was designed primarily for music students. Now art and speech students may also attend and learn about their special fields of interest. Plans for All-State in the future indicate even more advancement in the next ten years.

So a bouquet of roses to all the All-State course staff, and especially to the enthusiastic students, who make the entire program successful.

By the Way . . .

If you missed the talk given by Dr. Charles Malik in Love auditorium last night on "Is the United Nations Falling?", it is not too late to gain some benefit from the second in the series of All-University clinics on "Is a Third War the Only Answer?" Dr. Malik will be the chief consultant at a discussion period this morning at 10 a. m. in Love Library auditorium. The topic of the discussion will be the implications of the universal doctrine on Human Rights. Along with Dr. Malik, Chancellor R. G. Gustavson will appear to discuss the importance of the doctrine. Many faculty members will release 10 a. m. classes so that students may attend the discussion period. The series of talks have been planned to give students a first hand impression of world important events, and no one should miss the talks if they can possibly attend.

Another feature of the Summer Session program is the Summer Artists series, being sponsored by the Union. The second in the series will be presented tomorrow night, Wednesday, at 8 p. m. in the Union ballroom. This time a troupe of musicians and dancers will bring the authentic music of the gypsy tribes of southern Europe to the stage. "The Gypsies" program will not be limited to the native music however, and modern American music, South American rhythms, and classic music versions are included on the program.

The Daily Nebraskan column about Orphan Annie by Fritz Picard in the June 16 issue has created considerable interest and the Lincoln Journal Public Mind column has had several letters concerning it. The Daily Nebraskan will welcome any comment students want to make about that column, or any other matter on campus. A regular feature of the fall and spring paper, the Letterip column is still waiting for the comment upon any subject a student may care to write.

Though not University sponsored, many students will be interested in the Hayloft theater which gives its first performance tonight. For the first time in many years, Lincoln residents and visitors will have at their doorstep professional acting talent of high caliber. A varied program of eleven plays has been planned by the company. Several former University students are also working on the technical side of the productions. Hayloft Theater goers will find an evening well spent in attending the summer stock shows.

Along the same line but right here on campus is the summer production of the University theater. Noted during the year for its excellent productions of such plays as "Faust" and "School of Scandal", the theater turns to light comedy in the summer, and on July 24 and 25 will present the popular comedy "Three Men On a Horse." Tryouts for the play are being held tonight and tomorrow night from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Temple building. Students with any dramatic leanings should tryout for the cast. For those of you who just like to watch, mark July 24 and 25 as a must on your entertainment calendar.

EE Building Replaces U Hall; Ready for Occupancy Aug. 15

Efforts are being made to complete the new Electrical Engineering building by August 15, according to Charles Fowler, director of Buildings and Grounds.

The old building was torn down and construction begun on the new one in 1948. Part of the building is on the site of the old University Hall, the first building on the University campus.

15 Lecture Rooms

The four story building holds 15 lecture rooms; some having a raised seating arrangement for demonstration purposes; 17 offices, and 15 labs, completely equipped. Some of the rooms will be used jointly as offices and lecture halls.

The astronomy section of the Math department has offices and a classroom on first floor and a section of the roof will hold their astronomical equipment. The rest of the roof will hold all the outside antennae and other electrical equipment for outdoor use. The larger department shops are under part of the main power lab in the basement along with custodial and instrumental rooms.

Moving Day

Moving involves taking much of the equipment out of other buildings and installing it again. Dean Green, Dean of Engineering and Architecture, will take possession of his offices either before September 1, or after October 1. It will also house the heads of the department.

All facilities in the structure will be of the most modern type. Floors are covered with asphalt tile, wainscote side walls, acoustic plastic ceiling.

Contractors are: Olson Construction company, general contractors; Davis and Wilson, architects; Commonwealth Electric company, Natkin company, plumbing and heating.
