

MECHANICAL AID—Marjorie Gade demonstrates the University's new reading accelerator, which will be used for the first time this fall to help students speed up their reading. The metal sheet moves down the page of a book, line by line, forcing the student to read faster. Through the scale on top, the machine is adjustable to any desired reading speed. Students may make arrangements with Woodrow Reed in Temporary Building A for individual practice on the accelerator.

Have Reading Troubles? Junior Division Offers Help

It's a good bet you didn't come to the University to learn how to read.

It's also a good bet that two or three of your professors would agree, at least privately, that you could use some good instruction in reading.

Realizing that reading difficulties are the basis of most study problems, the Junior Division is going to give students a chance to improve their reading this year. Anyone, whether freshman or graduate, may enroll for the ten weeks course offered by the Remedial Reading and Study Improvement lab.

This year's program, under the direction of Woodrow Reed, guidance consultant, is a continuation and improvement of a plan which has worked for several years.

The aim is two-fold: to help improve reading speed and comprehension, and to teach better study habits. The best thing about the lab is that it's as good in practice as it is in theory. Just to make sure that it was accomplishing all it set out to do, the Junior Division guidance department last year ran a little test on the program itself.

Results showed that students who took the reading study improvement course made better grade averages in their University work than did students of similar aptitudes who didn't take the course. The difference in groups amounted to a half point, grade averages between the two 5.28 as compared with 4.76.

New Machine Used
Guidance Consultant Reed and his associates are hopeful that their lab may be even more effective this year than last. They have a new model of a machine called a reading accelerator to help them.

If you are a slow reader it is likely that you have been that way for many years, and you can establish a new habit of reading only if you are forced to move ahead at a faster rate. When you are using the reading accelerator you can't go back to a line you have already read because a metal sheet is slowly sliding down the page of your book; you must keep going, even though it is more rapidly than you are accustomed to reading.

But bettering reading skills is only part of the work of the lab. A considerable amount of time is devoted to improving students' habits in at least three major fields—allocation of time and the

Two WAA Clubs Swing Into Action

Canoe club will hold its first meeting this Saturday at 11 a.m. Instruction will be offered by Miss Sheldberg, who is an expert on the subject. To swim or keep afloat for five minutes is the only requirement to join. All interested should meet at the back entrance to Grant Memorial prepared for a trip to Oak Lake.

Tennis club will meet this Thursday at 7 p.m. on the courts. Miss Joan Parks, who has previously taught tennis in Australia, will give instruction to beginners or others desiring it. Balls will be furnished by the women's P.E. department and racquets may be rented for ten cents each week.

Swimming club will also hold its first meeting this Thursday. It will begin at 7:30 p.m. Place of meeting is as yet indefinite.

Ag Permit Sale To End Thursday

Ag campus parking permits will be on sale in the Ag Union Thursday morning from 8 to 12 a.m. This is the last chance that students will have to obtain their parking permits, according to Jerry Johnson, president of the Ag Exec board.

Students must present their registration and ID cards before permits will be granted. If any student is registered in another college but has some classes on the Ag campus, he must bring his green registration slip.

Sponsored by the Ag Exec board, the permits are required at all University parking lots and along campus streets.

If the student has a parking permit for the city campus, they will not need another permit for the Ag campus.

Sprague Wins Rhoades Grant

Elmer Sprague, 1948 graduate of the University, has been awarded an extension of his Rhoades Scholarship. He and Mrs. Sprague will continue to reside in England while Sprague continues with his third year of studies in England.

He has been joined there by another Rhoades scholar from Nebraska, Richard Srb, who was awarded his scholarship last spring.

In a letter to the Nebraska Alumnus last spring Sprague wrote:

"Perhaps the most constructive thing we can do is to point out that Labour government, with its socialistic policies, governs Britain because it gained majority in the house of commons in the election of 1945 and again in February of 1950. Needless to say these were free elections. No party was sure of victory until the votes were counted. And the Labour Party can be turned out of office in the same way by any other party."

"Whether one approves or disapproves of the Labour government, there is no certain tyranny of socialized government."

The above was written in reply to a letter from a summer visitor in England to the Nebraska Alumnus which charged that the British people were losing many of their liberties.

University Honors 110 Of Faculty

The University Tuesday night honored 110 of its staff members who have served the institution for 25 years or more.

Each was presented with a leather-bound certificate of appreciation by Chancellor R. G. Gustavson at the annual faculty homecoming dinner held in the Union ballroom.

Dr. Ruth Leverton, University home economist, gave an illustrated lecture on her experiences last year as Fulbright professor of human nutrition at the Philippine Women's university in Manila. On her return to the United States she visited in Burma, India, Egypt, Turkey, Greece, Italy, Switzerland, England and France.

The faculty members honored included:

Movie Seats, Too Soft for Frosh

It happened at Nebraska! The freshmen are slowly catching on to the ways of college life. The seats in the Love Library auditorium were nice and soft, the lights were out for an orientation movie.

The movie ended, the lights went on and what happened? Three students were rudely awakened from a nice cat nap.

Further advice was given by Chuck Burmeister who said, "Have a frat looking introduce you to his good looking sister." This is a good deal if it can be arranged, but in case it doesn't, George Wilcox has this advice, "Play it cool. Write home for pop's check book and convertible. In the meantime, watch the draft list and call the girls of fellows who are leaving."

Gustavson Heads March of Dimes

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson was revealed today as the 1951 state chairman for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. This is the Chancellor's fourth consecutive year as head of Nebraska's March of Dimes campaign.

Basel O'Connor, president of the NFIP, requested that the NU prexy organize the county and city campaign directors in the annual March of Dimes drive from Jan. 15-31.

The Chancellor's reputation as a scientific researcher and as the recipient of many awards has given him a distinguished record, stated O'Connor's news releases. The release added that the citizens of Nebraska will have a chairman who will greatly help the paralytic adults and children who are dependent upon volunteer collections to receive proper treatment.

Cut Out and Save

Yell Squad Plans Visits to Houses

The eight cheerleaders will visit some of the organized houses on the campus tonight to teach students "The Cornhusker" and "The Chant" songs which the University is attempting to revive; and a few short yells.

The men will travel in teams of two, visiting as many houses as possible. They will come about suppertime.

Frank Piccolo, yell king, urged all students to learn these songs. "We need full student cooperation in this matter. Those students whom we are unable to contact should take it upon themselves to learn the two songs," Piccolo said. "We are trying to build up school spirit. Every student is important."

YMCA Explains Stag Party Plans

The University YMCA is holding its annual stag party in the YM lounge in the Temple building at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The purpose of the party is to acquaint old and new students with the functions of the YMCA and give them a chance to meet the officers and the cabinet.

Right now, the YMCA sports committee is very interested in anyone who would like to play on the intramural sports teams. The social committee, foreign movie committee, and program committee are also looking for interested students. Anyone who is interested in joining the YM but who can't attend the stag party is urged to drop into the Temple lounge and see Charles Kemp, executive secretary of the YM.

Anti-Red U.N. On Debaters '50 Agenda

University debaters will start discussion Thursday on the year's topic concerning information of a new international organization of non-communist countries.

The discussion, which is the first this year, will be held at 7:15 p.m., Room 203, Temple building. This is the last chance for students interested in University debate to sign up, said Donald Olson, director of debate.

About 30 students have contacted Olson so far about participating in intercollegiate activities. First exhibition debating will be done Oct. 14 at the fourth annual Nebraska high school social studies and debate clinic at the University. Jack Solomon and Charles Rossow will meet the University of Mississippi, debating the negative side of the national high school debate topic. Resolved: That the American people should reject the welfare state.

The same day two other University debaters, Doris Carlson and Joan Krueger, will debate before a similar clinic at the University of Kansas at Lawrence.

88 Freshmen Enter NU Medical College

Eighty-eight freshmen were welcomed into the University of Nebraska College of Medicine in Omaha on Sept. 5. This brings the total enrollment to 339 for the school year '50 to '51, the largest number of students the college has ever had.

Newman Club Begins Activities

The Newman Club inaugurated its busy season of activities Friday night, Sept. 22, when more than 200 students danced to the music of Bobby Mills and his orchestra.

In conjunction with All-University Church Night, the "Welcome Dance" provided the necessary atmosphere for the Catholic students to become acquainted with their club, its Chaplain and its officers.

Dick Walsh, social chairman, acted as M.C. for the intermission program. Mary Pitterman sang two numbers and then Alice Jo Smith, Lincoln, accompanied her in a duet version of "Sam's Song."
