Hats off to Bill Glassford and his fighting Cornhuskers. That's the sentiment of every football follower on the campus today. Because of their scrappy footballers, the students of NU can hold their heads high once again, when someone asks them how their football team is doing

For the first time in ten years the mighty Gophers of Minnesota have fallen before the onslaught of a Husker grid machine. And what's more, for the first time in 48 years, they have fallen to Nebraska in Minneapolis. It's been a mighty long drouth, but now it's over.

The 32 points amassed by the Cornhuskers in Minneapolis Saturday are by far the most markers made by any Nebraska football team against the Gophers in the history of their many meetings which stretches back over 50 years. Fourteen was the previous high. The Huskers made that in their last win back in 1940.

Sophomore Bobby Reynolds added considerably to his already large total of yards rushing in the game Saturday. Bobby netted 161 yards in 17 tries with the ball. Add that to his 187 yards gained in the Indiana opener and you see that the Grand Island flash has amassed 348 yards in two games and in 34 times at carrying the mail, that's over ten yards per try.

Bill Mueller, the other half of the Reynolds-Mueller combination nearly netted 100 yards during the afternoon. He gained an even 100 but lost two to wind up the day with 98 yards to his credit.

Only five backs carried the ball for the Huskers Saturday which makes it appear as though it was a pretty select backfield. Minnesota gave the ball to ten Gophers in hopes of finding a couple that could consistently dent the Husker defense

Reynolds, Mueller, Fran Nagle, Ron Clark, and Bill Wingender were the Scarlet five.

Nagle was the only Cornhusker throwing the leather during the afternoon, too, while six Gophers tried their hands at the aerials. Nagle averaged over five yards per dentical to their last week's lin the .550 bracket this week dash their hopes

Two Huskers handled the punting for Nebraska, Reynolds toeing the ball seven times and Wingender once. Two Gophers comprised the Minnesota kicking staff, also. Reynold's average of 38.6 was tops for the afternoon.

Both teams had four receivers for their passers. prospects Wingender, Reynolds, Larry Carney, and Gerry Ferguson were the NU pass catchers. Wingender's 32 yards in resports desk. Or perhaps intuition is no good for forecasting foot- ceptions was the high mark in that department.

The two teams were penalized only 65 yards during came out of the Minnesota fracas the game, the Gophers 35 and the Cornhuskers 30.
