We Question . . .

The faltering ISA received aid from a somewhat unexpected quarter Wednesday as the Student Council agreed to provide the initiative needed to alleviate the organization's plight. The Council plans to compile information of independent groups on other campuses and pass it along to the members of ISA. These varied ideas and functions of other schools, it is felt, will furnish the Nebraska organization with the necessary "shot-in-the-arm."

It is the feeling of the Council that it is performing one of its most important duties—being interested and helpful in the welfare of the student. We commend the Council members for this desire to extend student government beyond the parking situation and men's activity points.

But there are some questions that come to our minds as to the wisdom of intervening, (if we may be so bold to call it that) in the problems of the Independent Student's association or any organization. One of the reasons presented for ISA's condition was the lack of leadership. Is it too optimistic to assume that leadership will immediately spring forth among the independent students if interest is only aroused?

Constitutionally, the Council itself could not provide men and women who would give time and effort towards the organization. Yet it is highly possible that the Council will find a "problem child" on their hands. The temptation of parental guidance through future trials and tribulations will be great. By assuming the responsibility of placing the organization on its feet again, will the Council also contract to see that it stays there?

Another question: How will the members of ISA feel towards the Council's action? We doubt whether they will welcome it with open arms. If interest is absent among the members themselves, why would more be generated with the participation of an "alien" group of people? Many of the plans of the Council in this project could easily be carried on by ISA themselves—if they had cared to do so in the past or will care to do so in the future.

What is the extent of ISA's representation of the independent student? The membership figures do not indicate that ISA embraces the thoughts, feelings, and desires of the unaffiliated population on the campus. Last year's ISA members did not represent one-eighth of the independent enrollment available. More important ISA is not the only unaffiliated organization on the campus. There are others who offer the same privileges of ISA members; one group goes further and supports candidates for elections.

If the Independent Student's association were the only unaffiliated group on the campus, the Council's action would be justified. The independent student should have the same equalities afforded the Greeks, and if he does not, he should receive help from the governing body at the University. But ISA does not represent the entire independent population. Why then, is this one organization singled out to receive a lend-lease program from the Student Council? We believe ISA itself should decide whether it wants to remain as an active organization, not the Council.

Selection Team to Visit Campus To Discuss Aviation Program

Two U. S. Air Force officers, Capt. Robert Council, and Capt. Frank Voigtmann, will arrive on campus Nov. 13 to interview students interested in officer training programs offered by the Air Force. They will be located in the Union, and will be available from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. each day of the week.

Qualified applicants, upon finishing their courses, have an opportunity to learn about all aspects of aviation at the same time as they earn in the U. S. Air Force.

College men may either enter into a year's aviation cadet pilot course or a navigator training course. As a cadet in either course, they will be paid $105 a month and awarded a second lieutenant's commission upon graduation. Pay and allowances will amount to about $5,000 a year when they are ordered to active duty.

The qualifications for application include being between the ages of 20 and 26½, being single and a citizen and having completed at least two years of college work.

Both men and women have an opportunity to apply for Air Force officer candidate school. There they will go through six months' intensive training in administrative and technical subjects of importance to their career in the Air Force. During OCS days, their pay will be equivalent to that of a staff sergeant and upon graduation they will be awarded commissions as second lieutenants. They will receive all pay and allowances due that rank when they are ordered to active duty.

Applicants for officer candidate school must be between the ages of 20 and 26½, citizens, have at least two years of college or be able to pass an equivalent examination, and may be either single or married.

The two Air Force officers who will be here comprise what is known as an aviation cadet selection team. They are able to process qualified applicants for any of the three courses immediately.

Those of Love hall are: Joan Holden, president; Phyllis Armstrong, vice-president; Irene Greenwood, secretary-treasurer; and Grace Dunn, social chairman.

Hepner officers are as follows: Pat Ball, president; Betty Scott, vice-president; Shirley Hines, secretary-treasurer; and Marilyn Erwin, social chairman.

The freshman presidents will work as members of the house council, which is composed of upperclassmen. The vice-president's and secretary's duties will include helping with hall meetings. The social chairman will work on all dorm parties with the dorm social chairman as well as in their respective halls.

Men Beware: Coed 'Sadies' Out Nov. 18

If'n ah should ax yo, chillun, what would yo-all say was the mostes' imp'ant event in November?

Why sho! Sadie Hawkins' Day on Nov. 18.

The idea started as the brain-child of cartoonist Al Capp, serving as the major annual athletic event of the mythical mountain community of Dogpatch.

Daisy Mae has pursued Lil Abner across miles of comic strips. Millions of Capp fans look forward to the event each year.

A number of colleges have given the frolicsome footrace a place on activity calendars. Coeds climb in to short black skirts and off-the-shoulder blouses and take off after their favorite bachelors. On many campuses the penalty for being caught is: take the fast girl that did the catching to a dance.

University Styles

A majority of colleges, however, have confined pseudo-Dogpatch events to the status of costume balls, house parties and the like. At the University, the Union has had a couple of hill-billy style dances.

For benefit of the unenlightened—it all started sometime in the nineteenth century. Sadie Hawkins, daughter of Squire Hawkins, was the homeliest gal in all them hills. When her 21st birthday rolled around and she was still husbandless, the Squire took steps.

He assembled all the quaking bachelors of Dogpatch and said, "Now when ah fires this gun yo-all starts runnin'!"

"When ah fires agin, Sadie starts runnin'. The man she ketches has to marry her. . ."

As a Dogpatch scribe recorded later, "The old maids thought it was a good idea, so they made it a tradition."

Pursue Men

Thus, whenever November rolls around, Daisy Mae, Moonbeam McSwine, the Wolf Gal and other fantastic femmes take off across country in pursuit of Lil Abner.

biennium for lack of funds; raising the wages of hospital employees; increasing the salaries of full-time faculty members and the nursing staff, both of which are well below standards of other medical colleges in the midwest; providing additional funds for supplies and equipment for the hospital, prices of which are rising steadily; and providing funds for new faculty members and technicians to meet the hospital's responsibility to its patients and to the young men and women receiving instruction there.

All these things have increased the medical college budget to $2,600,000 for the biennium, compared with $1,625,401 appropriated for the current biennium, he said.

Programs Asked

Other new programs, Chancellor Gustavson explained, have been requested of the University by various groups of interested Nebraska citizens. He gave five examples of these programs which he said were typical.

The College of Engineering and Architecture plans to expand greatly the research of the engineering experiment station. The biennial costs are estimated at a minimum of $40,000.

The Agricultural experiment station has planned a program of research to tie in with the problem posed by the Missouri Basin development program. This work will cost at least $125,000 for the biennium.

Ag Plans

The Agricultural experiment station plans to open an experimental farm in the Buckskin hills region of northeast Nebraska. The region's climate and soil pose special problems in farm management which would be worked out on the experimental farm. This program will cost an estimated $70,000 including the purchase of the farm.

Nebraska never had a forestry research program, despite its national forests and shelterbelts. The Agricultural experiment station wishes to develop a $60,000 research and development program during the biennium. The experiment station also needs $50,000 to operate the cattle research program at Fort Robinson which, within two to four years, will be self-supporting.

Nebraska is now spending a quarter of a million dollars annually for special education of handicapped children. The University's Teachers college and College of Medicine in Omaha have been asked to start a $35,000 program to train teachers and physical therapists.

Cartoonist Capp always includes several twists to his plot, so the Sadie Hawkins Day is never dull. Most common of his habits is that of including some other female "menace" in the plot, just to give Daisy Mae plenty of competition. Last year saw such dilly's as a "Pig gal" and a "Hawk gal."

There are two twists to this year's plot. Pappy Yokum is missing and presumed dead. So, for the first time since her maiden days Mammy Yokum will be in the running. Second twist to the plot is the presence of big-city hoodlums.

Be on Race

These two, Big Stanislaus and Ratsy, are attempting to organize betting on the footrace in the best syndicate style.

Young and old readers, with many college students among them, doubtless, breathlessly await the outcome. In the meantime, collegians across the country are enjoying the opportunity to go primitive with Dogpatch parties.

Poultry Team To Take Trip

The University Poultry judging team will leave for Chicago Monday, Nov. 27, to compete in the contest to be held there Nov. 28 and 29.

I. L. Williams, assistant professor of poultry husbandry, is the coach for the 1950 team. Members of the squad include: Boyd Rouse, Christian Yamate, Androes Polemetis and Arthur Epstein.

Before contest time, three team members will be chosen from this squad according to ability as determined by future contests. The team and their coach plan to drive to Chicago, where one day will be spent watching terminal market facilities while the next day will be used for judging activities.

Approximately 20 teams representing universities located in the midwest and south, will compete. Any student who is interested in this line are urged to see Williams in the near future.

Bourke-White Books Exhibited

Persons interested in looking over books written and illustrated by today's convocation speaker, Margaret Bourke-White, have the opportunity to do so in the Social Studies Room of Love Memorial library.

Erskine Caldwell's volume titled "You Have Seen Their Faces," will be on display. It is a story of the Southland with which Caldwell is so familiar. Illustrations are by Margaret Bourke-White.

New Officers . . .

EDUCATION OFFICERS NAMED—The Association of Childhood Education International named officers for the coming year at their annual banquet Tuesday evening. They are: Marilyn Lutz, vice president; Adele Coryell, secretary; Sue Brownlee, treasurer; and Marcia Bekins, president. Dr. Frank E. Sorenson said a serious problem existed in the lack of properly trained elementary teachers. He spoke at the dinner held in the Union ballroom. Sorenson said that "Nebraska parents no longer are satisfied with unqualified persons trying to teach our youngsters."

Residence Halls Hold Elections

Officers for the three sections of the Residence Halls for women were elected Wednesday. A hard-fought publicity campaign marked all three elections.

The candidates were nominated by a committee of dorm councilors and from the floor in a meeting Nov. 1. All were required to be freshmen.

The officers of Raymond hall are: Sue Gorton, president; Anne Lear, vice-president; Pat Lindgren, secretary-treasurer; and Sally Hall, social chairman.

Those of Love hall are: Joan Holden, president; Phyllis Armstrong, vice-president; Irene Greenwood, secretary-treasurer; and Grace Dunn, social chairman.

Hepner officers are as follows: Pat Ball, president; Betty Scott, vice-president; Shirley Hines, secretary-treasurer; and Marilyn Erwin, social chairman.

The freshman presidents will work as members of the house council, which is composed of upperclassmen. The vice-president's and secretary's duties will include helping with hall meetings. The social chairman will work on all dorm parties with the dorm social chairman as well as in their respective halls.
