Big Seven Continues Show Of Power; Topple Favorites

Huskers Exception; Beaten By California U., 62 to 59

All of the Big Seven with the exception of Nebraska continued to display terrific basketball power in their games leading off this week. Of the four teams in action Monday night, only the Cornhuskers tasted defeat. The other three were not even threatened.

While the Huskers were falling before the Golden Bears of California, 62-59, Missouri, Oklahoma, and Iowa State had brighter evenings.

Missouri, the team which upset CCNY's grand slam college basketball champions last Saturday, dumped Ohio State's defending Big-Ten champions, 61-51.

The Buckeyes have only lost to Big Seven teams in the season thus far. Kansas State dropped the Bucks earlier in the year. Ohio State easily won their other two starts.

Fine Ball Handling

Fine ball handling and a style of play in which the Tigers kept possession of the ball until set for a shot, contributed to the

Reynolds Gets Helms Berth

The Huskers' Bobby Reynolds was given an offensive halfback position on the 1950 College All-American football team as selected by the Helms Athletic Foundation.

Happy Out; Majors Seek Replacement

Happy Chandler was ousted Tuesday as commissioner of major league baseball. The 16 major league outfits failed to vote Happy a new contract and told him that at the end of his current one he was through.

With this under their belts, the majors prepared to name a new commissioner.

Heading a list of candidates reported under consideration are George Trautman, chief of the minor leagues, and Ford C. Frick, president of the National League.

Others favored include Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds; Branch Rickey of the Pirates; former Postmaster General James A. Farley; J. Edgar Hoover and Thomas Courtney, former Illinois State prosecutor.

The name of the new commissioner did not come up for consideration at the Monday night meeting in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Will Serve Term

Reiterating his intention of serving out his term, which expires in April, 1950, Chandler said, "I have done the best job I know how to do. There is nothing to be bitter about. Nothing in life ever made me bitter. I am surprised, but not hurt."

The ouster was accomplished with amazing secrecy. Had those grouping against Chandler approached the wrong man in trying to recruit the necessary five for his defeat, they would have tipped off the pro-Chandler magnates and the cat would have been out of the bag.

But nobody knew what was going on until the meeting was called secretly.

Election of a commissioner calls for a 12 to 4 favorable vote and the trial poll among the magnates was nine in favor and seven against Happy. Then came a formal vote, 8 to 8.

Chandler, bowled over by the news, asked for a review of the magnates' vote and they voted again, this time 9 to 7.

No Conversation

Armstrong said he had no conversation with others mentioned for the job, including Paul Brown, coach of the Cleveland Browns; Andy Gustafson of Miami; Paul Bryant of Kentucky; and Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma. Wilkinson has already turned down any offers to go to the Gopher school.

Armstrong said he had "quite a few" applicants for the job, generally from high schools and small colleges. He added that they hadn't offered the job to anybody but that they would have offered it to Wilkinson if he were available.

Reynolds to Get Times Grid Prize

Bobby Reynolds, Huskers' sophomore All-American, was named Tuesday to receive the Los Angeles Times Player of the Year award.

Reynolds will appear at the Times Sports Headliners Banquet at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles Wednesday, Dec. 27.

The event honors 1950 headliners in all sports.

Wilkinson Gets Coach-of-Year

Bud Wilkinson not only led his Oklahoma football team to the National Championship this year but turned in the season's best coaching job in doing it.

That's the opinion of sports writers and broadcasters participating in the Associated Press end-of-season poll.

Wilkinson won out for top coaching honors in a close race with Charley Caldwell of Princeton and Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf, the old master from California.

The writers and broadcasters were asked: "Who did the best coaching job in 1950?"

Replies brought votes for 38 coaches with the 34-year-old Wilkinson a strong favorite. He received 44 votes. Caldwell, who led Princeton thru a nine-game schedule without mishap, drew 30 while Waldorf collected 26.

Paul "Bear" Bryant of Kentucky received 18 votes and Ivan Williamson of Wisconsin drew 12.

Others getting five and above included George Sauer of Baylor, Earl Blaik of Army, Bob Neyland of Tennessee, Andy Gustafson of Miami, Howie Odell of Washington, Biggie Munro of Michigan State, Bill Glassford of Nebraska, George Barclay of Washington & Lee, and Blair Cherry of Texas.

Will Serve Term

Reynolds' selection was based on his performance in the 1949 season, which ended with a 9-1 record.

Reynolds will appear at the Times Sports Headliners Banquet at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles Wednesday, Dec. 27.

The event honors 1950 headliners in all sports.

All qualifiers in the 50-yard dash of the Intramural Track and Field Meet be sure to be at the Indoor track at 5:15 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 14, for the running of the semifinals in this event.

Dodgers Stop Broadcasting Next Season

The first step of major league baseball's attempt to crack down on television and radio took place when the Brooklyn Dodgers announced that they will discontinue their broadcasting network in 1951 and curtail the radio description of their home games to a single New York station.

The Dodgers acted as an individual in this matter which made it almost certain that organized baseball will act in this manner instead of in one group.

The major leagues, opening their annual mid-winter meetings, in St. Petersburg, Fla., made radio and television their first order of the day. There were also strong indications that the minors were going to be granted the relief they claim they so sorely need.

The Cincinnati Reds were reported ready to do the same as the Dodgers and the New York Yankees were said to be working on reducing or eliminating the network which carries the New York games throughout the East.

Other clubs, which broadcast over networks, were considering action where definite commitments would permit changes.

By working out the problem on the basis of individual clubs, rather than taking concerted league action, baseball hoped to avoid any trouble with the Justice Department, which forced them to throw the radio and television rights open to all last season or face possible prosecution on anti-trust charges.

President George Trautman of the minor leagues and Frank Shaughnessy of the International League—the minor circuit probably hardest hit by the daily broadcasting and televising of major league games—were hopeful that a solution was near.

"The Brooklyn action is a step in the right direction and a most encouraging sign," Trautman said. "Now if the other clubs will follow suit, we'll have our biggest problem licked."

Five Records Set in I-M Meet;

Sigs, F. House, Presby Lead

Five new records were established in the preliminaries of the shot-put and 440 yard dash Monday in the continuation of the intramural indoor track and field meet and Sigma Chi, Presby House, and the Field House continued to pace their respective divisions.

Only the shot put record in the fraternity division withstood the assault on the record books Monday. Both the Independent and Interdenominational divisions marked up new records during the afternoon.

All three top marks in the 440 run went into the books as records since this is the first year this even is being held in the I-M meet.

Giles Breaks Mark

Bill Giles of Presby shattered the old mark in the Denom class by heaving the iron ball 48 feet, six and a half inches. This toss eclipsed the record of 47-5 set last year by George Prochaska of the Newman Club.

Cliff Dale, participating independently, established a new mark in the Independent class with a put of 47-9, erasing the mark of 43 feet set by Floyd Goff of Ag Men in 1949.

Grimm Tops

Paul Grimm of Phi Gamma Delta topped all the strong men during the afternoon with a put of 51-5. Grimm's heave stamped him as a favorite to cop this event in the fraternity division as well as All-University honors.

Other qualifiers in the frat division with good marks were Ted James of Alpha Tau Omega, 49-6, Tom Stoup of Sigma Nu, 46-1, and Dick King of Sigma Phi Epsilon, Wayne Handsby of Phi Gamma Delta, Eldon Dorn of Delta Tau Delta, and Don Dorward of the Sig Eps.

Qualifying behind record breaking Giles in the Denom class were Dick Stanbury of Presby, 43-6 1/2, and Bob Rudolph of Lutheran House, Cal German of the Ag YMCA, Bill Mundell
