'Korea' Topic On NUCWA's Spring Agenda

Countries for the United Nations spring project will be assigned at a NUCWA mass meeting Thursday.

Dr. Norman L. Hill will speak on the "Korean Situation" for Nebraska University Council for World Affairs members at the meeting, in Parlors XYZ of the Union at 7:30 p.m.

Spain and Red China

Dr. Hill, of the political science department, will give special emphasis to the related problems concerning Spain and Red China.

Dr. Hill will discuss the question, should these communist nations be admitted to the United Nations?

According to Doris Carlson, chairman of the spring project committee, applications have been received from various houses, organizations and individuals on campus to represent the nations at the model political committee meetings slated for the first week in April.

Organizations and individuals filing will be given their preferences, if possible. Otherwise, a satisfactory arrangement may be worked out with the cooperation of the steering committee.

Rules of Committee

Dr. Hill will explain to students the rules of the political committee. These will include the regulations on recommendations, resolutions, floor rules and procedure.

Additional information will be given out by Miss Carlson on plans made by the steering committee for the conference.

Material will be given to individuals attending on rules of the political committee and on topics which will be discussed. Miss Carlson emphasizes that a general knowledge of the United Nations is all that will be needed to become a delegate. However, participating individuals will find the use of mimeographed material and other material available at the library helpful.

A United Nations literature exhibit is available in Love library.

Captain Hurd to Speak About Traffic Tickets

Having ticket trouble? Capt. Clinton Hurd, traffic division of the Lincoln police department, will give the students a few of his ideas on this question when he speaks on "How to Avoid Getting Tickets." Wednesday evening at 8:30 in Room 315 of the Union.

Advance In Korea Continues

Truman Powers Hit by Sen. Taft

Fighters of the U. S. Seventh division forged ahead in central Korea Monday to a point six miles north of Pangnim. The soldiers met rifle and anti-tank fire, but air observers reported that the reds were withdrawing.

Monday's action marked the first time the Seventh division has been identified in action since it withdrew from the Changjin reservoir last December.

Estimated red losses Sunday totaled 1,861 killed and wounded, as United Nations forces advanced at least 3 and one-half miles.

TAFT URGES LIMIT ON 'TROOPS-TO-EUROPE'

Sen. Robert Taft said Monday that unless congress limits the power of President Truman, as many as 18 U. S. land divisions may be sent to Europe.

In a statement for the troops-to-Europe hearings, the senate republican policy leader voiced his objection to any military aid to Europe until those countries definitely make commitments concerning their contributions.

Taft testified that it would be "foolhardy" to send even six divisions to western Europe's defense. He made his statements after the testimony of John Sherman Cooper, republican adviser to the state department, who said failure to provide foot soldiers for the Atlantic Pact defense force might mean "the greatest surrender in history."

LEGISLATORS DISCUSS 'GRANDFATHER' CLAUSE

Most of the members of Nebraska's legislative liquor probe committee, which is now investigating the "grandfather clause" of the 1947 liquor licensing bill, voted for the measure when it was originally passed.

The bill provided that no liquor manufacturer could be "interested in the ownership, conduct, operation or management of any Nebraska liquor distributor." But it contained the following exception, or "grandfather clause":

"Where the interest of the manufacturer of alcoholic liquors was acquired or became effective prior to the date of the passage of this act."

It is this clause which is now bothering some of the Nebraska legislators. Some have said that it froze the wholesalers into a monopoly because, in effect, it gave a distiller who had an interest in a wholesale firm a "permanent license" for the wholesale outlet.

'LEGISLATURE NOT ADVISERS TO NU'

The state legislature Monday adopted a resolution to urge televising of University of Nebraska home football games. During a 40-minute discussion 15 senators debated the issue.

At one point during the discussion, presiding officer R. W. Hill suggested that Speaker Ed Hoyt lead the senate "in one chorus of 'There is No Place Like Nebraska.'"

Sen. John Beaver objected to the resolution, saying that "we shouldn't go on record as advisers to the University."

The Weather

Wednesday mostly cloudy. High temperature, 40 north, 50-55 south.

Three NU Debaters Rank Superior At Annual Intercollegiate Meet

Final Session Fails to Agree On Resolution

Three University students were awarded superior ratings in debate at the eleventh annual intercollegiate debate and discussion conference held on the campus last weekend.

Wayne Johnson and Dale Johnson were judged superior as a debate team. Johnson, Johnson and Charles Rossow were each awarded superior as individual debaters. Debaters considered the question, "Resolved: That the non-communist nations should form a new international organization."

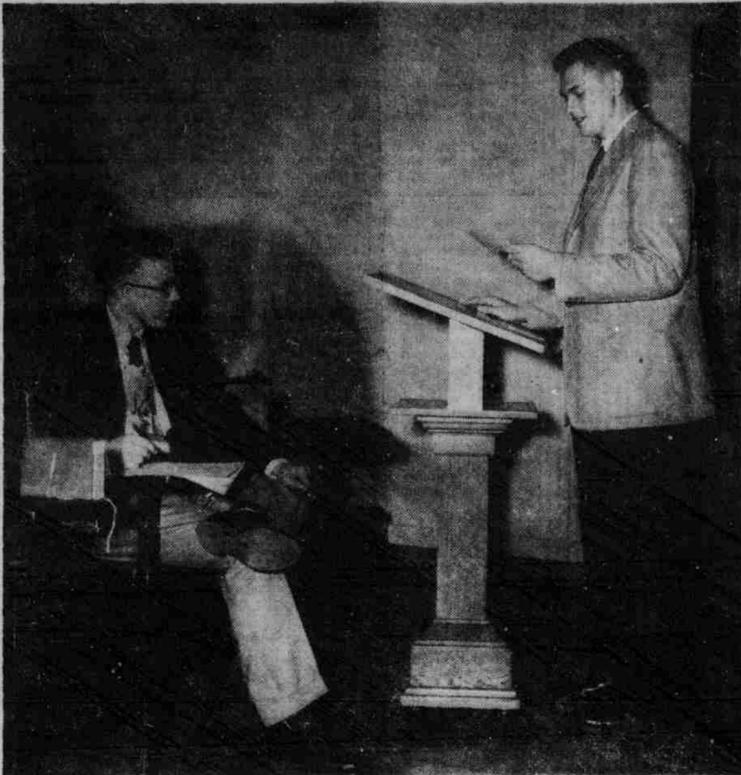

Joan Krueger was one out of the seven to receive a superior rating in all three rounds of discussion. Charles Rossow and James Wamsely were awarded a superior rating for two out of the three discussion periods. The topic discussed was, "What should be the defense program of the youth for the future?"

Bob Askey was the only student from the University to receive a superior in radio news-casting.

At the third and last round of discussion Saturday, which consisted of a parliamentary session, all superior winners of the two previous discussions assembled to debate and decide upon the resolution of three previous meetings.

A third party introduced a new resolution which defeated the other two parties. Therefore the session was unable to send the results of the discussion to Congress which had been done in past years.

The conference as a whole, according to Donald Olson, speech director, "was a success because of the complete cooperation on the part of the participants."

DEBATERS—Don Cunningham and Charles Klasek (l. to r.) are two of Nebraska's representatives at the annual inter-collegiate debate and discussion conference which was held on the campus this week-end.

Med School May Lose 'A' Rating

The University College of Medicine is in danger of losing its 'A' rating among the nation's medical schools.

The board of counsellors of the state medical society disclosed this information Sunday at its annual midwinter meeting.

Funds Inadequate

Inadequate funds for operation were cited as the biggest problem now facing the college. Chancellor R. G. Gustavson commented that it is just a part of a situation that has grown because of increased costs and too small a budget. He believes that the legislature is concerned about it and will remedy the situation, before the rating is lost.

Conditions of the college are "crowded and definitely not of the best," Sen. Arthur Carmody, chairman of the legislative budget committee, said last week after touring the school in Omaha.

The budget of the college must be increased by more than $600,000 to bring the school up to a par with the national average, according to Dr. Harold Leuth, dean of the college.

Leuth pointed out the fact that the average cost per day per patient is $12.64, one or two dollars below the average for any university hospital in this region. However, the students pay a higher tuition than most near-by medical schools.

The school has asked for a $2,600,310 budget for the next two-year period. The 1950-51 budget was $981,540.

The budget committee plans to visit the Lincoln campus in the near future.

Police Chief Comments on Good Behavior, Cooperation at NU

The students of this University received a compliment from the Lincoln Chief of Police, Joseph T. Carroll.

University students are at an age when difficulties, especially traffic violations, are to be anticipated, Carroll said, but records show that Nebraska students have caused a "minimum of such difficulties."

Carroll named the seriousness of the present day world situation as the chief cause of good behavior.

"Today's student is more serious minded," he said, "and carries more hours because of the uncertainty of his draft status. In normal times he has more time on his hands and looks for ways of letting off steam."

Cooperation from NU Students

The Chief "could not ask for better cooperation from the Nebraska students," nor from the faculty, administration, or campus police. "We have always had very wonderful cooperation from Chancellor Gustavson on down."

Carroll does not believe that the police departments in other college towns could have better students to work with.

The University, though, does cause Carroll's department a lot of trouble. During the football season, the abundant game traffic presents a great problem to the force. The problem has increased, he said, as the ability of the Husker teams increased. "We welcome such problems," the Chief added, "and hope that they continue to increase."

Education Beneficial

A University education is "definitely beneficial" to a prospective policeman, Carroll said. Many universities are including courses in law enforcement in their curricula.

There are several NU students doing field work for sociology 198 by working for the police department. The recent increase of interest in police work by universities, he said, has done a great deal towards making law enforcement a profession. "Policemen of today," the husky Chief said, "are hired for brains, not brawn."

University graduates make good patrolmen in Lincoln, Carroll said, because they understand the student's problem.

To climax the evening revelry the coeds will crown their Typical Nebraska Coed elected from twenty previously selected finalists.
