

'Midway Marvel' Show Planned For April 14 by Cosmopolitan Club

First it was Captain Marvel. Then came his protege, Captain Marvel, Jr. They are strictly comic book property.

"Midway Marvel," however, is the Cosmopolitan Club's own creation.

This mysterious creature has taken shape in the form of a show—put on and directed by the Cosmos themselves.

Using the circus and midway idea, they have developed this year's annual Cosmo Carnival, complete with serpentine, confetti and balloons.

Vendle Wood, Barker

Vendle Wood will play the role of barker at this April 14 event to be held at the Union. However, his job will only be a 40-minute one between 8 and 12 Saturday evening.

At 9:30 p.m. the big show starts. A Nigerian dance will serve as an opener for the program.

The European influence will enter the picture when Linda Sirks, well-known pianist from abroad, presents her rendition of "Rigoletto." Ola, her son, will take the spotlight in front of the curtain when he vocalizes about "The Flea."

Going from piano and song to the dance, Lois McGaushan will portray the Persian idea of the dream, complete with the appropriate background music.

Patsy Dutton Pantomime

Patsy Dutton and her pantomime will be included along with several other curtain acts and solos.

During the show, the six-piece South American combo will give out with a few studies in rhythm, while Albert Sorenson's orchestra will provide the general dance music.

Those coming to the dance may wear costumes if they wish to. Prizes will be awarded to those who have the best costumes, however.

True to tradition, the Cosmos will take their show to the Veterans hospital for a preview Thursday, April 12.

In the past two years, however, the Cosmos have not al-

LATIN AMERICAN RHYTHM—The University's South American Combo will make another public appearance, playing at the Cosmo Carnival on April 14. The Latin students' instruments include maracas, bongo and tumba in addition to

ways chosen a theme that paralleled with the carnival idea.

'Night in Heaven'

Two years ago, they featured the ethereal, "A Night in Heaven." A sultan and his court jester stole the limelight. A Persian slave dance was designed to amuse the ruler. He also imported a Ukrainian to do one of the country's folk dances for him—a la Ukrainian style. Somehow the United States crept into the picture, smuggling two Arthur Murray demonstration representatives along with it.

Turning from the oriental to the occidental, the Cosmos chose to "Ship Wreck" their performers on an island in the south seas. A Norwegian fisherman, one of the party stranded in the tropical place, demonstrated his love for one of the mermaids that happened to get washed up on the beach.

Sailors Sing

Sailors, members of the Cosmo Club, succeeded in taking the victims' minds off their troubles until the South American combo appeared to greet them and wel-

Ag Builders Reveal Guide

Jim Williams, past president of Ag Builders, officially presented the new Ag College Tours Guide at an Ag campus mass meeting Wednesday night.

Compiled by the publicity committee headed by Jim Williams and written by Dick Walsh, the guide includes scenes and written sketches of campus buildings and activities which frame a map of the grounds. A short history of Ag and a resume of the majors offered are also included in the pamphlet.

First In 20 Years

An aerial shot of the campus taken by Frank Lathrop, makes the cover of the book. Sketches printed in green color add to the guide's attractiveness. It is the first Ag college bulletin to be published since a campus map was printed 20 years ago.

Reports were given by the Ag Builders committee chairmen Phyllis Lyons, Den Linscott, Roger Sandy, Marilyn Sehnerdt and Jeanne Vierk.

Marilyn Coupe, University Builders president; Mary E. Meilenz, Builder's adviser; and Prof. E. Hixson gave talks.

Great Service

Hixson, associate director of resident instruction and faculty adviser for Ag Builders, commended Builders for their work and briefed members on what should be their future goals.

He thanked the Builders for the tremendous load that they have taken from the faculty by guiding campus tours. He emphasized that by contacting more people, Builders have the opportunity to tell our story. "This is doing the state a great service," he said.

Coffman Named Head of Ag Club

Rex Coffman has been elected president of the Ag Men's club, student social organization at the University Ag college.

Settling of Korean Situation Brings Unusual Results From Various Model UN Delegates

The NUCWA conferences have been progressing as expected. There are the interested parties who keep the meetings moving with their resolutions and sometimes negative acts. There are also the uninterested people who are in hopes that their instructors will see them and be impressed.

There are the Russian bloc walkouts and the indignant hammerings of the gavel by the chairman. All this and more has been happening right in the Union these past few days as the mock Political committee goes about its business.

late a definite plan. The Council also discussed the representation of the Religious Welfare council on the Student Council under the new constitution. Several members contended that since the Religious Welfare Council only meets once a month, it should not have representation. The majority of the Council, however, thought that it should be represented.

After discussion on the question, the Council decided to invite the members of the Religious Welfare council to state their ideas at the meeting of the faculty-student constitution committee Thursday.

The Council then discussed article six of the new constitution, which concerns the election and duties of Student Council officers.

Uproar Meetings

Such talks may sound dull, but there have been moments when the meetings have been thrown into an uproar because of some mistake made by an overheated speaker or other such incidents.

One of these mistakes took place the other night when the excited delegate from Yugoslavia jumped to his feet to protest voting without debate. The chair banged the gavel, told him he was out of order and then hastily recognized another speaker also on his feet. When asked what country he represented, his quick comeback was, "Yugoslavia and I'd like to protest the voting."

Vote at 2 Meetings

At the same meetings, one delegate representing South Africa was trying to be at both meetings so as to vote at both. As it happened both were voting at the same time, so she dashed back and forth trying to follow the proceedings in both rooms. She ran into one room and the chairman asked her how she would like to vote and what country she was representing. "I'm the United Kingdom, er, the United, uh, oh, I don't remember what country I'm from."

Then there was the time when there was a roll call vote to see if they should call the preceding question. No one was quite sure what they were voting on, but hated to ask. As a result, out of the 23 countries voting, 16 abstained.

Russian Walkouts

Wednesday night there were also walkouts on both questions by the Russian delegation. One of these was on a legal technicality and in the confusion afterwards one of the Russian delegates voted for Byelorussia and so helped pass the matter over which they were quibbling.

History was made as the Ukraine, a Soviet satellite, for the first time voted against Russia. A motion had been made to adjourn, but the USSR wanted to stay. In the show of hands, though, the Ukraine delegate voted to quit for the evening. Her most unpolitical reason was that she had to go home and wash her hair.

The last session of the Political assembly will be held tonight in the Union ballroom. No walkouts are expected, but then, you never can tell what will happen when NU starts imitating the UN.
