Council to Seek Solution Of 'Rag' Delivery Problem

Axtell Gives Health Center Study Report

A study of the Student Health Center conducted by the Student Council campus improvements committee was reported on by Kent Axtell at the Council's weekly meeting Wednesday.

Specific complaints of the students regarding the service were cited and answers to these complaints were given by Axtell.

The Council investigation stemmed from an attempt to seek an explanation for the various "gripes."

According to Axtell, the committee in charge of the study conferred with Dr. Samuel I. Fuenning, Student Health director, in order to determine what the facilities, services, finances and responsibilities of the center are. The committee presented the students' complaints at that time.

Answers to "Gripes" Following are some of the "gripes" and the answers submitted by Axtell:

1. Students desiring treatment at the center have to spend too much time waiting their turns.

Answer: There are times, admittedly, when the student must wait much longer than he wishes to receive attention, but the same situation exists at the office of any doctor nowadays.

If the physical plant were larger and arranged more conveniently, efficiency could be improved. Future building plans provide for such a plant, but the temporary building will have to suffice now.

2. Students are hospitalized too often if they go to the center for treatment and examination.

Answer: Any such fear on the student's part results in large part from an erroneous opinion that may be formed by some student who feels he should have been released from his hospital bed sooner.

3. Students are dissatisfied with diagnosis.

Answer: Such comments as "They never do anything but give me a pill and tell me to go to bed" are the result of more error (See Student Health, Page 4)

R. G. Gustavson To Speak Today

All male University students are urged to attend a convocation to be held tonight at 8 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Chancellor R. G. Gustavson will speak on the latest developments in the national manpower situation.

Some of the major points of the chancellor's talk will be: provisions of the new draft law; the tests which will be offered college men for postponement of induction; and University ROTC programs.

Dr. Gustavson has been in Washington obtaining the latest information on the selective service program.

Questions will be answered from the floor.

'Nebraskan' Distribution Called 'Poor'

The Student Council Wednesday passed a resolution, suggested by George Coble, favoring the investigation of The Daily Nebraskan distribution.

It was decided that the campus improvements committee of the Council, under the direction of Mary Hubka, should make a complete investigation of the inadequate distribution.

Council members cited numerous examples of "poor distribution." In some cases, it was pointed out, certain buildings receive no copies of The Daily Nebraskan. In others too few papers are available for both students and faculty.

"Printing Delayed" Kent Axtell, pointed out that faculty distribution may not be the fault of any student staff members, but that printing often is delayed. This, he said, often makes it impossible to provide proper distribution.

The Council agreed that something should be done to remedy the situation. "If The Daily Nebraskan staff has distribution problems," said Bob Raun, president, "perhaps the Council can help them out."

The Student Council also decided to publish in the new Freshman Handbook a list of all honorary and professional fraternities, their initiation fees and semester dues. Also to be included, if possible, is a list of social sororities and fraternities and their initiation and monthly fees.

Should Publish Lists It was also suggested that these same lists be published in the special edition of The Daily Nebraskan which is to be sent to prospective students during the summer.

Next year's student migration will be held Oct. 6, according to plans made by the Student Council. Tickets for the migration to Manhattan, Kas., for the Kansas State football game, will be less than $10. This cost will include round-trip train fare and game ticket.

A motion was made by Gene Berg and passed by the Council concerning the investigation of the Panhellenic council. The Student Council, through the judiciary committee, will make a complete investigation of the constitution, operations and policies of the Panhellenic council.

Study 'Advisable' "Since the Panhellenic council is to be represented on the Student Council under the proposed constitution," said Berg, "and since the council has the power to investigate campus organizations, it would be advisable and worthwhile to make such a study."

The Council also discussed several points of the proposed Student Council constitution, which was published in the April 18 issue of The Daily Nebraskan. The constitution will be presented to the Faculty Senate and (See Council, Page 4)

AKP Series . . . Idealism Veils Communist Plans Says Dr. Lancaster

The red threat that the U. S. faces today is not a theoretical communism but the old ruthless imperialism of czarist Russia masquerading in the trappings of an idealistic faith.

Dr. Lane Lancaster, chairman of the University political science department, drove this point home in the fourth of a series of five lectures Wednesday evening at Love Library auditorium.

The series is sponsored by Alpha Kappa Psi, to focus attention on communism as a threat to the American economy. The last in the series will be given by Gov. Val Peterson at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 25.

Policy Unchanged Red Russia's political policy, Dr. Lancaster said, is the same old czarist drive to expand imperial territory, the same search for warm water ports, the old demand for control of the Dardanelles, and the same desire to create a ring of buffer states and spheres of influence.

"The ancient game," he explained, "is only being played for higher stakes. For the old empires have gone—the German, the Turkish, the Austrian, the British—and Russia faces a single rival, the United States. The real offense of which American Communists are guilty is not belief in a strange creed, but simply treason."

Sees Little Danger Dr. Lancaster said he sees little danger of Russia's red faith winning many American converts. "The real danger," he said, "is that it will win so many among the miserable and disadvantaged elsewhere that we shall face alone a world in arms."

Our principal defenses are two: First, we must exploit the still unused revolutionary possibilities of our democratic faith in such a way as to give greater reality here at home to the old idea of liberty, equality, justice and fair play. Second, we must implement with vigor a foreign policy which can demonstrate that these ideals may be realized by men everywhere," Dr. Lancaster declared.

Citizens in Danger Speaking about the first of these defenses, Dr. Lancaster found cause for concern about "the present public temper" which daily subjects citizens of "the most transparent integrity and unimpeachable patriotism" to the danger of being labeled as traitors.

"Unless there is a reassertion of common sense," he said, "we stand in danger of creating precisely the situation which preceded the seizure of power by the Fascists and the Nazis. This would mean, of course, the destruction of all moderate groups and the settlement of all public issues by violence."

As to the second defense, Dr. Lancaster said "Our free institutions are the result of our wealth, not the other way about."

We cannot expect the Chinese and the Indian peasants to be thrilled by listening to discourses on the beauties of free enterprise while their main preoccupation is their next meal, he said.

May Accept Reds "But," he said, "it isn't hard to understand how they might accept (the red) gospel if, along with it, come rice and fish and new opportunities for themselves and their children."

"We cannot buy friendship with dollars," he said, "but we can with money do a little to create those prosperous conditions in which alone free institutions flourish."

"In this connection," Dr. Lancaster said, "it seems little less than scandalous that the proposal to supply famine relief to India should have been the subject of debate. Wise policy would have sent it direct to the White House—we are as concerned as we pretend to be over the Russian threat."

Former Prof Fired at Vassar

At a monthly meeting, January 26, Professor Feuer, champion of Spencer, engaged in a fist fight with Prof. Joseph Katz, who favors Plato. Feuer and the three others who sided with him were released the following week.
