TC Will Show Activities In Open House Displays

Teachers college Open House Thursday afternoon and evening and Friday morning will feature exhibits emphasizing activities and services of the college.

Commercial arts, educational, psychology and measurements, educational services, extension education, history and principles of education, music education, school administration, practical arts and Teachers College high school exhibits will be displayed in Teachers college building.

Physical Education
 Open House for women's physical education will be in Grant Memorial; physical education for men in the physical education building; and elementary education will be at Bancroft school and in Teachers college. Library service will be in the education reading room of the library.

Commercial arts will feature displays and demonstrations of modern office equipment. Educational psychology will present its contribution to an individual from childhood to maturity with the use of mannikins.

Extension education will display its correspondence course work, off-campus activities and audio-visual aids. A pictorial history of education in the United States will be featured by the department of history and principles. Music education will display types of equipment and training aids used at the high school level for music education.

Slide Rule Exhibit
 The social studies division will present a display on crime and modern problems. The mathematics division will have exhibits on the use of the slide rule and the abacus, motivating devices in math, skills required for mathematical literacy and safety education taught mathematically.

Men's physical education will include displays of professional preparations, course material and the objectives of physical education. Demonstrations will be included.

The women's physical education display will include demonstrations of individual and team sports, rhythmic gymnastics, body mechanics and camping.

Booths, Displays, Exhibits to Highlight Department Tours During College Days

Booths, displays, exhibits and tours will highlight the open houses of the various departments during College Days. Almost every academic phase of the University will be shown to College Days visitors.

The College of Dentistry, under the direction of Ray M. Knapp, will present a display explaining how to become a dentist. College Days visitors will also see the dental lab and clinic in operation.

Typography and photography displays and a film, "Democracy's Diary," are scheduled by the School of Journalism. Visitors will also be permitted to view reporting labs and journalism classes in session. Individual conferences will be held Friday morning and afternoon.

The department of philosophy will conduct continuous classroom tours. The seminar room in Love library will be shown to College Days visitors before they see logic classes in session.

A film on criminology, another on the reproductive cycle and a third on problems in the field of sociology will be the main features of the open house planned by the sociology department. Dr. James M. Reinhardt, Alan P. Bates and Paul Meadows will explain the movies.

The open house of the geology department has been planned by members of Sigma Gamma Epsilon, honorary geological fraternity. Tours marked by dinosaur tracks will be followed through Morrill hall, where geological displays will be setup. A movie will be shown at the end of the tours. A miniature oil derrick will be set up between Morrill and Bessey halls.

Exhibits will be set up on main floor of Nebraska hall to demonstrate the work of the department of conservation. These will include displays on ground water in Nebraska and oil and gas development.

The department of botany has set up displays in the green house and in Bessey hall to exhibit botanical experiments. Lectures and discussions about botany will be heard by College Days visitors.

Tours and a movie on iron composites in South America will be offered by the geography department. Lab instructors will explain displays of maps and charts.

'Women Only' Sign Placed On Displays in Girls' Dorm

Too bad boys!
 Tours of the women's residence halls have been scheduled for College Days but include women only. The women's residence halls will be open to show the girls where some of the women on the campus live.

The women on the tour will see every party of the hall, the basement, the housemothers' quarters and their offices.

Those attending the library tour will see the study rooms on the first floor as well as the humanities reading room, the filing room and the storage room.

Alpha, Omega
 Administration building will have open house too. This open house, according to Dr. G. W. Rosenlof, has been set up "to make students feel that they are really a part of the university, and that the administration building is their Alpha and Omega."
 Visitors in Student Health will see the rooms for patients, the dining room and the provisions which student health has for psychiatric help and physiotherapy.

Books on good grooming, schools, and how to choose a career will be on display in Ellen Smith. The YW office, the drawing room, the kitchen, and the offices will be open for inspection. Any girl who knows that she will be attending college next year will have the opportunity to sign up.

Junior Division
 Interested persons may see how the junior division works. They will see what the junior division does and why it exists. Questions will be asked and answered by Dr. Arthur A. Hitchcock and other members of his staff.

The Alumni association will serve refreshments to alumni and their families and friends from 2 to 5 p.m. Thursday afternoon in Room 310, the faculty lounge, in the Union.

'AP' Wire Report Tells of Husker Holiday Parade Gallantly Swimming Down O Street

By Amy Palmer
 It might rain Saturday. This would be nothing new to waterlogged Nebraskans, but it might have a disastrous effect on the parade now scheduled.

Either way, though, the AP wires are ready and the following is a story that may be used in case the sunny weather is as damp as usual.

It was a terrific parade those Nebraskans had at their first annual College Days. The weather was wet as rain streamed down at the rate of twelve inches an hour.

Navy Guard Rowing
 The parade was led by the color guard. The flag bearers, all good navy men, had the situation well in hand as they rowed down the Lincoln streets past the roaring crowds. Next came the band looking sharp as usual in their red and white suits. Their water wings added a decorative effect with gold braid covering them quite well.

An outstanding part of the show were the Aquasettes. They had originally been booked for a night show, but since the weather had presented them with such an opportunity, they took part in the parade. They really looked good as they floated downstream going through some of the formations featured in their show at the coliseum.

Many of the floats had trouble keeping above the water line, but there were a few of those with more foresight that had hired amphibious jeeps to pull their displays.

Faded Crepe Paper
 Even though the water in the streets was a little distracting, it did add color. All the crepe paper had faded into the water about it and it all resembled a colorful, watery rainbow flowing beside the drenched floats. Those Nebraskans certainly do think of everything.

One of the most appropriate floats was from the Ag college. It featured a duck with various emblems praising the group which sponsored it. What made it so outstanding though, was the fact that it had been taken off the trailer and was just floating with the current. Underneath three boys swam with it to keep it from washing onto the sidewalks.

Outdoor Uke Club
 The prize winning float was indeed a gorgeous affair. It was sponsored by the ukulele club of this school. On a gaily decorated raft were six members of the club in bathing suits singing gaily that old favorite, "I'm Singing in the Rain."

Of the 54 floats entered in the parade, 36 of them showed up. Just goes to show how strong that old Cornhusker spirit is. During the long march (they were looking for O Street) there were only three losses. Two were drowned and one little boy choked to death on salt water taffy. Not even this could dampen the spirits of the crowd. (Our little joke.)

The College Days is over now, but the memory of it will remain for a long time. You just can't stop the Cornhuskers once they
